THE VILLAGE [illegible]

BY JOHN S. ZIEBER, PRINCESS ANNE, [illegible]

VOL. VIII. TUESDAY MORNING, [illegible]

VILLAGE HERALD.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

Three Dollars a year, to be [illegible] $2 00 if paid in advance; or $2 [illegible] within six months.

☞ Subscriptions paid within [illegible] after delivering the first number, [illegible] subscribed for, will be considered [illegible] ance.

No subscription will be taken [illegible] than one year.

No paper will be discontinued [illegible] the editor's discretion, until all [illegible] are paid off, and a labor [illegible] Instance, previous to the expiration [illegible] term subscribed for, will be [illegible] subscribed for a new engagement.

☞ Papers sent by mail will be [illegible] postage, to be paid by the subscribers.

ADVERTISEMENTS, under [illegible] square, will be inserted three times [illegible] cents for every subsequent [illegible] exceeding a square in the same proportion.

☞ Persons advertising more [illegible] time at a reduced price. Advertisements will be continued and charged [illegible] cordingly.

☞ All communications [illegible] editor must come post paid.

COURSE OF EXCHANGE.

PLACES.	per ct. discount.	PLACES.	per ct. discount.
U. States Bank	par	Philadelphia	par
Do. Branches	par	Baltimore	par
Mass. [illegible]	[illegible]	Savannah	[illegible]
Boston banks	[illegible]	New Orleans	[illegible]
Other Mass. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Maine [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Vermont [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Con. & Mass. [illegible]	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Other R. Island banks	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Connecticut [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Middletown banks	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Phenix bank of Hartford	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hartford bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
New Haven bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
N. York banks	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Albany	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Troy	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Newburgh	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Other N. York banks	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
New Jersey	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Long Island bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canal bk. N. York	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bank of N. York	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Trenton Bank Corp.	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Farmers bank of Del.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mount Holly	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cumberland bk.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
State bk. Camden	dis.	[illegible]	par
Do. Gloucester	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Do. N. Brunswick	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Do. Burlington	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Do. Morristown	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pattison bk.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Newark bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
PENNSYLVANIA.
Philadelphia banks	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Easton	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mauch Chunk	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chester	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Do. Corp.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lancaster bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Farmers' bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Harrisburg	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Northumberland	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Farmers' bank of Reading	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Do. Corp.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
York bank	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chambersburg	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lancaster bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lebanon	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Carlisle	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Gettysburg	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bank of Pittsburg	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Greensburg	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Brownsville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Washington	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bank of Delaware	par	[illegible]	[illegible]
Farmers' bank	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Branches	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

State of Maryland, ss.

SOMERSET COUNTY ORPHANS COURT,

April 22, 1844.

ON application of Robert H. Isaac, Sarah E. Isaac and Harriet Isaac, minors, by their guardian, Sarah Isaac, of Somerset county, praying that letters of administration may be granted to them upon the estate of the said Elizabeth Isaac, late of Somerset county, deceased, and that the Executors of the said deceased may give the creditors to exhibit their claims against the said estate of the said deceased, and that the same be published once a week for four weeks, in a paper printed in Princess Anne, Tine county, Test.

LOUIS POLK, Reg. Wills.

In compliance with the above Order,

Notice is hereby given,

That the subscriber of Somerset county, hath obtained from the Orphans Court of said County, in Maryland, letters of administration on the personal estate of Harriet Dashiell, late of Somerset county, deceased; persons having claims against the said deceased, are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof to the subscriber on or before the 30th day of September next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of the said estate. Given under my hand this 22d day of April, 1844.

ROBERT H. SELLERS, Exr.
of Geo. A. Dashiell, deceased.

April 23, 1844.

Insolvents' Papers.

For sale at the Office

BOOTS, SHOES, ANIMALS, IMPLEMENTS, BOOKS, &c. [illegible]

[illegible]

For the Herald.

[illegible]

To the Public.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

PRO PATRIÆ INDEPENDENTIA.

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess-Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1834.

We see by the proceedings of the House of Representatives, that Mr. Clay's resolution declaring the reasons of Mr. Taney, for the removal of the Deposites, to be insufficient, was laid on the table by a vote of 111 to 104; that requiring the public revenue to be deposited in the Bank of the U. S. after a given day, was also laid on the table by a vote of 118 to 98.

The following article is copied from the Globe of last Thursday:

—We understand that Mr. McLANE has resigned his office as Secretary of State, the resignation to take effect as soon during the present session of Congress as it may be convenient for the President to appoint a successor.

It is well understood that, in regard to some prominent measures which occupy much of the public attention, Mr McLane has entertained different views from the President. But the President, who has through life exercised his own independence of judgment, is too generous, and too just, to give up one esteemed by him as a true, an honest patriot, and faithful public officer, for a mere difference of opinion; and as no action by the Department of State was requisite in carrying into effect the measures in question, he saw no public necessity for a separation. Between two men of elevated sentiments, there was nothing in such a state of things to interrupt the harmony of either official or private relations, and their mutual confidence and esteem have therefore continued unimpaired. We know that the President has yielded to Mr McLane's wish to retire from his administration with regret, and that he has freely expressed, not only his high sense of Mr. M. Lane's patriotism, talents, and eminent services, but his sincere friendship—a sentiment which is fully reciprocated by Mr. McLane."

BALTIMORE, June 17.

Riot on the Washington Rail Road.

We learn that a very serious riot has taken place amongst the laborers on the Washington Rail Road, which has already resulted in the death of several of the parties concerned and by dangerous wounds of a considerable number of them.

The distributions to gain on the 'ay-roll on Saturday, in the neighborhood of Bladensburg, about 18 miles from Baltimore, and the parties engaged, then drew out a body of arms throughout the Friday night. On Monday morning, on application of the civil authority, Brigadier General C. S. Ridgely collected a volunteer force and marched to quiet the rioters. This measure succeeded with great propriety, apparently for a time, but have intimidated the peaceable people, for but they afternoon called in great force and laid waste considerable property and wages. Several shanties have been burned and other mischief perpetrated. Upwards of thirty have so far been confined for the offence and no damage so far as we have heard, has been done to the persons or property of the neighborhood.

The two ringleaders being from Ireland, Ridgely is in communication with Sir Lancelot Jackson, who is now in this town, upon a requisition upon the civil authority, for a military of Baltimore, who from the nature of infantry and Rifle-men was promptly ordered to the seat of action. They left the city at the Rail Road Gate about 11 o'clock. A fine troop of Cavalry has also left the city to join the forces under Gen. Ridgely.

Patriot.

THE MARKETS.

From the Baltimore Farmer of last Tuesday

Wheat, 1,05 a 1,10; Beans, white field, 2,00, Corn, yellow, 66 a 67, white, 66 a 67, Flour, by a wagon wheel family, 6,50 a 7,00, Super Howard 5, 4,94 a 5,00; City Mills, extra, 5,12 a 5,37; Red Clover, 4,00 a 4,50; Oats, 31 a 33; Peas, black eye, 1,50, Wool, Common and one fourth Merino, washed, 22 a 27, unwashed, 16 a 18; Pulled, washed, 25 a 26; unwashed, 16 a 18.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17th.

Bark—Sales of Spanish Oak during the week, have been as follows, 90 cords at $14 to 14 per cord, the latter price for prime. 26 hards changed at $25,50 to 27,50 per cord. No sales of Quercitron.

GRAIN.—

Corn—Sales of 2200 bs. mixed yellow 53 cents per bushel; sixty do. from store at 65; 800 Jersey do 65, 6000 do Southern Flat, afloat and from store 59 to 61 cents per bushel, a sale of 4000 bushels Southern White, to arrive, was made at 60 cents, 1000 do. do at 58 cents.

Rye—A small lot of southern afloat, sold at 92 cents.

Oats—1200 bushels Southern Oats at 31 cents.

Wheat—The transactions in wheat have been light, and the receipts small. 2555 bushels Pennsylvania from store 117 to 118, a cargo afloat of do. sold at 1,15, a small lot of Southern was sold at 1,12; 450 bushels from store 1,124. A lot of wheat on Schuylkill side of the city sold at 1,15.

Lumber—30,000 White Oak Hollow Spars, 20,000 pipe do. at $50 per M. Bulkhead

NEW YORK, June 14.

Sales of New York Wheat at 1,05 a 1,06; some South River Rye sells at 90 a 92; some Delaware white Corn at 68 a 70, yellow at 64 a 65.

From the Balt. Gazette of Friday.

A message was transmitted to Congress on the 19th inst. by the President of the United States, communicating official information of the unfortunate accident at Tacubaya. It appears that three of the guns of the frigate United States had been inadvertently left shotted, all of which were discharged during the salute, and most of them directly into the French ship of the line Suffren, by which two men were killed, and ten wounded. The Pre sident recommends to Congress that pensions be authorized for the families of the unfortunate victims of the accident.

From the Baltimore Chronicle.

The Cholera has again made its appearance in Mobile, and according to the last accounts, twelve or fourteen persons were dying daily in that city from it.

The State Rights party in South Carolina are holding meetings in various parts of the State, and are denouncing the Court of Appeals, for its decision on the Military Test Oath. Judge Cooper, is at the head of the movement.

TURKEY.

The present appearance of the East, is one which naturally attracts the attention of every politician. The attitude of the Sultan—his warlike preparations—his zeal—his energy—and his success—are remarkable receptions of deserters from the rebel Pachas—his Chronicling the persons which he has bestowed upon all foreigners from Mehemet's campaign the Moniteur Ottomans—and the disposition which he evinces to officer his army with the most approved Russians, must convince all that the war in the East is far from being closed. The present quietude is only that kind of peace which arises from a suspension of hostilities, when the belligerants are occupied more with their exertions to put an end to the war. On the part of Mehemet Ali, the same spirit is visible, as that which actuates the Sultan. He is decided by all parties, as unremitting in his energies to place his army, but particularly his navy, on a firm and respectable footing. He has established a Polytechnic school, not only in his capital, but at other places, and the whole of his professors are Europeans. The idea of establishing a rail road across the Isthmus of Suez has not been abandoned, and Mehemet, to aid some the overflowing of the Nile, is about establishing locks at Delta. Mr. Rhodes, an American, has been employed by the Sultan, to build him some frigates, after the most approved models of naval architecture. One that he is now building has given so much satisfaction, that the Seraskier, who are at the present moment made on have both the Sultan are going to sea and has with a frigate after the same model.

Country, extract of the Journal of Com.

NAVASSA, TUE. June 3, 1834.

DISPUTED AFFAIR.

I just commit a hasty scrawl to mail, to inform you of a pitching rencounter which took place very early this morning, in and about a fashionable house of refreshment, called Gowdey's, on the public square, and but a few rods from the State House, in which Gen. Mabry, the member of Convention from Knox county, East Tennessee, bore a conspicuous part. The affray took place before breakfast, and as yet there is considerable hostile and excitement. I will however briefly state the facts that have come to my knowledge.

Gen. Mabry was to have been a witness against a notorious gambler and black-leg, whom the good people of Nashville began to think of ejecting from their quietly quiet and orderlie society. John Nelson, another actor in the scene, had come up from Knoxville in Knox county, where he edits a somewhat scurrilous little paper called "Uncle Sam," for the purpose of disrobing the testimony of Gen. Mabry, or in other words, of stating that the said General was not worthy to be believed on oath,—that one Blackguard and Gambler was just as respectable as another, &c. To rebut this testimony, Gen. Mabry, being wealthy, had taken into his pay a Engineer from parts, in East Tennessee, by the name of Lanier, and both heavily armed with pistols, sallied out this morning into the market place, and passed through the crowd usually assembled there with a fierce and bristling air. Nelson was also in the market, armed, and fully aware of their designs.

After they had brushed by Nelson, he remarked to a gentleman that those fellows meant to shoot him, and that as they passed him he saw one of them put his hand in his bosom and grasp the butt of a pistol. He therefore declared his intention of getting out of their way. Nelson went into Gowdey's, thinking they would not follow him for an assault in the house, but while he was drinking a glass of soda, both came into the room, passed him, and went into the liquor bar, an upper apartment. Nelson had one pistol cocked in his pantaloons pocket, which, while he was taping for his soda, accidently exploded, burning his pocket, and ejecting the ball into the floor within an inch or two of his feet. Both the ruffians immediately rushed upon him with drawn pistols, accompanying of firing upon them. His protestations that it was an accidental discharge, together with those of the person who attended upon the soda fount, were of no avail. They both attempted to fire upon him. One pistol cap exploded, rendering the shot of no avail. I have not yet learned whether the other shot took effect or not. Nelson, nothing daunted, drew another pistol and made for Mabry, who ran and received the fire while upon the full gallop into the back apartment. The ball grazed the gentleman delicate's coat and pantaloons, but did no injury to the person nor his limbs and blood. Finding Nelson now without a charge, both of his assailants returned with their loaded pistols, and Mabry, as it is said, fired entirely shot him through the body, while the other tied his head, and shot away a piece of his nose. The wounded man was then dragged into an adjoining store, by a human citizen, and the battle ended.

I have just seen Doct. Waters, who extracted the ball from Nelson. He told me that it entered just above the pelvis, passed quite through his body and was cut out of his back badly bruised, as if it had a rough passage. The intestines are not ascertained to be cut—so that there is a bare possibility he may recover.

Mabry has been arrested and held to bail to await the consequences, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with three sureties. He occasionally takes his seat body Death. Judge Cooper, is at the head of the movement. Judge Cooper, is at the head of the movement.

From the Wheeling Gazette.

Conscription of the New Jewish Synagogue in New York.

The Hebrew congregation formerly worshipping in the Synagogue in Mill street, have erected a new building situated in Crosby street, between Broome and Spring sts., which was dedicated on Thursday afternoon, according to the established ceremony of their ancient religion. The ceremony of the consecration of a Hebrew place of worship, to a stranger, is so unlike the ceremonies of the forms observed cannot prove otherwise than interesting, and whatever may be the differences of religious opinions that exist, it must be universally conceded that the children of Israel are entitled to the respect, and admiration, for the fidelity with which through all their vicissitudes and persecutions, they have adhered to the ancient faith, and their established and ancient customs.

The new Synagogue is a remarkably neat and beautiful building, fifty feet by seventy from depth, situated on the west side of Crosby street near Spring. The main entrance is on the south side. The ark wherein the sacred rolls containing the Pentateuch, are deposited, occupying the eastern extremity of the synagogue, and opposite to it, is the elevated reading desk, in conformity with ancient usage. Hence these beautiful lines of Moore, commencing—

"To the left of the Ehleem Stone,

When man unveils her brow," &c.

The anxiety to witness the consecration being so great, it was found necessary to issue tickets of admission, and before the commencement of the service, the building was crowded in every part, not only with Israelites, but the clergy of all denominations, the mayor of the city, and members of our most distinguished and respectable citizens. At the time fixed, the attention of the audience was awakened by three distinct knocks at the door of the building, and the impressive voice of the President of the congregation (the Rev. J. B. Savas,) was heard without commencing the service, the doors were opened and a procession of the Hebrew ladies, to the number of 50, in one of the most exquisite specimens of workmanship and architecture that we have ever seen, the procession entered, consisting of the Rev. Mr. Seixas, and the Rev. Messrs Metz and Cohen, and some gentlemen bearing the sacred rolls, and followed by the elders of the congregation, the choir at the same time commencing a hymn, which is well sung. The sacred book, which is kept perpetually burning by the contributions of the poous, was now lighted, and the procession moved in a very solemn manner, to the ark or altar, at which the service of the congregation is performed—these circuits were repeated seven times, each time the Jews being borne by different individuals, at no period entirely by young men; during each of these circuits, the choir sang appropriate Psalms, selected from the writings of Hess great Psalmist, and in a manner which fully realized our sweet and sweetest singer of Israel." Indeed, we have never heard more impressive church music, or a choir composed of finer voices.

After the completion of the seventh circuit, the laws were deposited in the ark, after which a very impressive and interesting sermon was delivered by M. M. Noah, Esq. which was listened to with profound attention. However we may politically differ from our ancient Hebrew, we must admit, that our meed of praise on this occasion. This discourse and we regret his extreme hoarseness prevented him from the effect of his delivery) exhibited much research and an intimate knowledge with his subject. He took a rapid view of the progress of the Jews—their origin—their persecutions, the prophecies, &c. We will not attempt a detail, presuming it will be given to the public in a printed form.

At the conclusion of the oration, a psalm adapted to the time old air of Dunnoch, was sung by the whole congregation, fifty in solo by the leader, a gentleman possessing one of the finest voices we have ever heard, was sung and in accompaniment of a full chorus. This terminated the service of consecration, after which the reader proceeded with the usual prayer, a prayer for the eve of Pentecost, in commemoration of which flowers were tastefully disposed in vases in front of the ark and galleries, which not only had an extremely pleasing effect, but impregnated the air with fragrance. The custom of decorating the synagogue on this festival with flowers, is in remembrance of the ancient offerings of the first fruits and flowers of the summer, which were usually made at this period. Before concluding our notice of this interesting and imposing ceremony, we must take occasion to express our admiration of their chandaliers, which were manufactured in this city, the design and execution of which are truly elegant. These chandaliers are the gift of the congregation, and do great credit on the skill of the manufacturer. The congregation has our sincere wishes for its success and prosperity. We cannot view the remnant of the people who were chosen of God with other than feelings of interest, and with the pride of American citizens, they have a right to worship their Maker according to their ancient forms, to build their temples and renew their sacrifices, almost realizing in our happy country and in the full enjoyment of civil and religious liberty, the anticipated delights of their own sacred land of promise.

A GOLD TERRAPIN.

A gentleman from Boston's Gold Mine reports that he saw a small gold terrapin, taken from the mine, for which the proprietor refused the respectable sum of five hundred dollars, intending to send it to Peale's Museum in Philadelphia. The little creature was not much larger than a partridge's egg, and an briskly about, from which circumstance it could not be sold gold, whatever its appearance may have been. Experienced miners report to have seen heavier things that had been suspended in mines, coated with metallic silver. Another case is reported of a similar coating of the wooden supports left in a mine, which had been under water two hundred years. From such observations, we may infer that silver is sometimes in a gaseous state, and so gold may be, and in that case there is little doubt that they have got its casting of precious metal.—The extraordinary press offered for this mine descript will no doubt lead to its careful preservation.—Lynchburg Virginian

EXTRAORDINARY OCCURRENCE.

The following is from a West India paper of the 14th of May, whose editor asserts that the papers alluded to in the narrative are in his possession, and that he has the authority of the officer himself (Lieutenant Bagot,) for their genuineness:—

"His Majesty's schooner Pickle, Lieutenant Bagot, during her last cruize off the Isle of Pines, for the purpose of exploring vessels engaged in the Slave Trade, and whilst lying in the sight of Cape Francis, observed a large schooner under all inside the Julian Reef. As soon as the Pickle came up with her a boat was sent to examine the suspicious stranger, when she proved to be the Spanish schooner Jesus Maria, of 180 tons burthen, with a complement of 50 men from Santa Martha to the Havana. The vessel having an unusual number of water casks and being also fitted with a slave deck, created much suspicion on the part of the Commander of the Pickle, who was not altogether satisfied with the account the Master of the slaver gave of himself, and sent back to bring him on board immediately, together with his papers, log book, charts, &c. &c. From these documents nothing could be elicited to warrant the detention of a vessel under Spanish colors, and so all appearances a vessel of war.

About two o'clock in the middle of the watch on the same night, a fishing line which had been unintentionally left rolling overboard was observed, by the Quarter-master of the watch, to be severing about in all directions, and he with assistance hauled it in, when it was found that to the hook was appended a Shark about four feet long! On opening it, in the morning, a bundle of papers were discovered in the belly of the shark and up, (now in our office,) which were sent to us by the commander of the Pickle through our reporter,) these on examination were found to be papers of the "Gran Salta," amongst which are the private signals; they also prove that the Carlotta was a slaver, and had on board a cargo of 425 slaves, which cargo had been landed about four hours, before she was discovered by the Pickle.

—•—

From the New York Times.

Consecration of the New Jewish Synagogue in New York.

The Hebrew congregation formerly worshipping in the Synagogue in Mill street, have erected a new building situated in Crosby street, between Broome and Spring sts., which was dedicated on Thursday afternoon, according to the established ceremony of their ancient religion. The ceremony of the consecration of a Hebrew place of worship, to a stranger, is so unlike the ceremonies of the forms observed cannot prove otherwise than interesting, and whatever may be the differences of religious opinions that exist, it must be universally conceded that the children of Israel are entitled to the respect and admiration, for the fidelity with which through all their vicissitudes and persecutions, they have adhered to their ancient faith, and their established and ancient customs.

The new Synagogue is a remarkably neat and beautiful building, fifty feet by seventy from depth, situated on the west side of Crosby street near Spring. The main entrance is on the south side. The ark wherein the sacred rolls containing the Pentateuch, are deposited, occupying the eastern extremity of the synagogue, and opposite to it, is the elevated reading desk, in conformity with ancient usage. Hence these beautiful lines of Moore, commencing—

"To the left of the Ehleem Stone,

When man unveils her brow," &c.

The anxiety to witness the consecration being so great, it was found necessary to issue tickets of admission, and before the commencement of the service, the building was crowded in every part, not only with Israelites, but the clergy of all denominations, the mayor of the city, and members of our most distinguished and respectable citizens. At the time fixed, the attention of the audience was awakened by three distinct knocks at the door of the building, and the impressive voice of the President of the congregation (the Rev. J. B. Savas,) was heard without commencing the service, the doors were opened and a procession of the Hebrew ladies, to the number of 50, in one of the most exquisite specimens of workmanship and architecture that we have ever seen, the procession entered, consisting of the Rev. Mr. Seixas, and the Rev. Messrs Metz and Cohen, and some gentlemen bearing the sacred rolls, and followed by the elders of the congregation, the choir at the same time commencing a hymn, which is well sung. The sacred book, which is kept perpetually burning by the contributions of the poous, was now lighted, and the procession moved in a very solemn manner, to the ark or altar, at which the service of the congregation is performed—these circuits were repeated seven times, each time the Jews being borne by different individuals, at no period entirely by young men; during each of these circuits, the choir sang appropriate Psalms, selected from the writings of Hess great Psalmist, and in a manner which fully realized our sweet and sweetest singer of Israel." Indeed, we have never heard more impressive church music, or a choir composed of finer voices.

After the completion of the seventh circuit, the laws were deposited in the ark, after which a very impressive and interesting sermon was delivered by M. M. Noah, Esq. which was listened to with profound attention. However we may politically differ from our ancient Hebrew, we must admit, that our meed of praise on this occasion. This discourse and we regret his extreme hoarseness prevented him from the effect of his delivery) exhibited much research and an intimate knowledge with his subject. He took a rapid view of the progress of the Jews—their origin—their persecutions, the prophecies, &c. We will not attempt a detail, presuming it will be given to the public in a printed form.

At the conclusion of the oration, a psalm adapted to the time old air of Dunnoch, was sung by the whole congregation, fifty in solo by the leader, a gentleman possessing one of the finest voices we have ever heard, was sung and in accompaniment of a full chorus. This terminated the service of consecration, after which the reader proceeded with the usual prayer, a prayer for the eve of Pentecost, in commemoration of which flowers were tastefully disposed in vases in front of the ark and galleries, which not only had an extremely pleasing effect, but impregnated the air with fragrance. The custom of decorating the synagogue on this festival with flowers, is in remembrance of the ancient offerings of the first fruits and flowers of the summer, which were usually made at this period. Before concluding our notice of this interesting and imposing ceremony, we must take occasion to express our admiration of their chandaliers, which were manufactured in this city, the design and execution of which are truly elegant. These chandaliers are the gift of the congregation, and do great credit on the skill of the manufacturer. The congregation has our sincere wishes for its success and prosperity. We cannot view the remnant of the people who were chosen of God with other than feelings of interest, and with the pride of American citizens, they have a right to worship their Maker according to their ancient forms, to build their temples and renew their sacrifices, almost realizing in our happy country and in the full enjoyment of civil and religious liberty, the anticipated delights of their own sacred land of promise.

From the Wheeling Gazette.

PHRENOLOGICAL EXAMINATION.

Whenever a novel theory is presented to the public the natural inscrutability of the human mind, and its hesitancy in receiving new opinions, assailed alternately by argument and ridicule? render it necessary that its champion should adduce something stronger than inductive reasoning from general principles to give it a place among established sciences. Men seldom surrender the belief in which they have been educated to any thing but potent than demonstrative facts—and even they are not always powerful enough to uproot the prejudices which birth, education and habit have generated and cherished until they make "part and parcel" of their very beings. Among the theories of the present day, which are now in use, is the study of Phrenology, or the science of ascertaining the character from the exterior organization of the cranium—a theory which has been combatted, at every step of its progress, by the light artillery of wit and the heavy cannon of sober argument but which, whether it be founded in truth or not, has continued to exist in its support warm and enthusiastic adherents, and is sustained alike by plausible reasoning and striking facts.

We may remark by the way, that we do not mean to be understood as expressing our entire conviction of its truth. Our limited acquaintance with it, confined only to a few at its general principles and minor details might well subject us to the imputation of presumption, were we to pretend to give an opinion, or rather opinions on the case. We make these remarks merely for the purpose of introducing to our readers the subjoined account of an examination of two skulls, sent to Dr. Powell, the phrenologist, for the purpose of testing his skill in ascertaining character from the body, and by that means of illustrating the claims of the science of which he is so zealous an advocate to the conditions of our readers.

A few evenings ago, in the presence of an audience of about two hundred and fifty persons, Dr. Powell examined the skull of two individuals, sent to him for that purpose, and of whose character he was of course entirely ignorant. One of them was a boy, aged about 15, who many years ago, was executed for the murder of an aged lady, without provocation, in a cruel manner, by the application of a tomahawk. A minutiae of that skull, as given at length, in a manuscript now before us, were summarily these, that it indicated considerable power of the moral and intellectual faculties, whilst the vicious organs were strongly predominant, particularly the so far from being secretly in his position, quickness of temper and violent impulse, combined by an anxiety to run after the consequences of their indulgence, are manifested. These general outlines of character correspond very closely with the circumstances for which the boy was hung, and the circumstances under which it was perpetrated—substantiated by Dr. J. T. Austin of New London, from whom the subject was procured. The second skull examined was that of a man, who was executed some years ago, in an adjoining county, for poisoning a child and for an attempt upon the life of the father. The account of this transaction was not before us. After describing the developed and undeveloped organs in the present intellectual, moral and animal faculties, the Doctor says "The character, was marked by watchfulness, jealousy, cunningness, dissatisfaction with the treatment received from others, wildness, and in the patients gratification every injury and insult offered to be given in secret feelings, self. If he ever disturbed the peace of society, it was done through revenge." A narrative of the circumstances which led to the perpetration of the crime for which the man was executed is rendered supercreatory by the remark of Dr. Austin, who, on being "asked what he thought of the Phrenological examination of this skull?" replied, that "if the Doctor had been present at the trial of that man and heard all the evidence, he could not have been more correct than he was."

We publish the results of the foregoing examinations, simply as a tribute to truth. They are facts from which every one may draw his own inferences. We believe that all truths valuable, and leads to good however perverted, if Powell's opinions be correct evil and mischief in its tendencies. Although we may not be convinced that Phrenology is an infallible science, or that if it be a belief of and acquaintance with it, will lead to useful results, still, it is for founded on facts it is entitled to the benefit of them. We respond to the beautiful apostrophe of Sir William Jones—one of the wisest and best men that ever adorned human annals.

"Before thy Mystic altar, Heavenly Truth,

I kneel in manhood, as I knelt in youth:

Thou let me know I, till this dull term of clay,

And life's last shade be brightened by the ray.

Then shall my soul now lost in clouds below,

Soar without bounds—without consuming glow."

Cholera in New Orleans—The Louisiana Advertiser of May 24th, has the following—We published yesterday, a communication on the subject of that terrible scourge, the Cholera, in the hope of awakening our city authorities to the necessity of taking steps to prevent its progress. That the disease does now exist to some extent, there can be no doubt. It is not epidemic, and we hope it will not become so; yet the weather is certainly such as to induce us to fear every thing. We should recommend to our citizens, the greatest prudence in their diet and habits, and cleanliness in and about their dwellings.

From the Washington Globe.

Tampa Bay—Florida.

The prospect of a removal of the Indians from East Florida, is a subject, which among other matters of interest and excitement, will naturally direct attention to the country about to be vacated. As but little remains to be said on the subject, it may be acceptable to those who are desirous of emigrating from colder to warmer climates, to know what inducements this part of our Territory offers for their consideration. A residence at Tampa for more than two years, and an acquaintance with all the oldest settlers in that vicinity, have enabled the writer of this, to collect tolerably correct information on the subject; and it is the more desirable that such information should be made public, from the circumstance that erroneous impressions are generally entertained of the soil and character of the country. The errors that have thus gained belief, have originated in investigations which travellers have very naturally resorted from passing through the country from Tampa northwardly, on the military road—the only public one leading from that place. The course of that road was wisely and judiciously adapted to the highest lands, for the obvious purpose of obviating the difficulties which the occurrence of low wet grounds and swamps presented to its construction. Consequently its whole course presents to the eye of the traveller, little else but a continuation of pine lands unfit for general purposes of cultivation. Those, too, who have passed over the road, by land, or by water, have seen but little in its immediate vicinity to convey a very favorable idea of its general fertility. From such premises, a general conclusion has been drawn, so far from being correct, that it is probable that any of them had any particular interest, or object, in obtaining any knowledge on the subject. They observed and passed with a slight—merely passing notice—and their remarks, probably not intended to convey any general impression.

Along the whole western sea-board of Florida, as far east as from Apalachicola to the Southern Keys, the coast presents a forbidding aspect. The lands are low, marshy, and generally unfit for cultivation; and by no means, in the usual and intellectual faculties, whilst the vicious organs were strongly predominant, particularly the so far from being secretly in his position, quickness of temper and violent impulse, combined by an anxiety to run after the consequences of their indulgence, are manifested. These general outlines of character correspond very closely with the circumstances for which the boy was hung, and the circumstances under which it was perpetrated—substantiated by Dr. J. T. Austin of New London, from whom the subject was procured. The second skull examined was that of a man, who was executed some years ago, in an adjoining county, for poisoning a child and for an attempt upon the life of the father. The account of this transaction was not before us. After describing the developed and undeveloped organs in the present intellectual, moral and animal faculties, the Doctor says "The character, was marked by watchfulness, jealousy, cunningness, dissatisfaction with the treatment received from others, wildness, and in the patients gratification every injury and insult offered to be given in secret feelings, self. If he ever disturbed the peace of society, it was done through revenge." A narrative of the circumstances which led to the perpetration of the crime for which the man was executed is rendered supercreatory by the remark of Dr. Austin, who, on being "asked what he thought of the Phrenological examination of this skull?" replied, that "if the Doctor had been present at the trial of that man and heard all the evidence, he could not have been more correct than he was."

We publish the results of the foregoing examinations, simply as a tribute to truth. They are facts from which every one may draw his own inferences. We believe that all truths valuable, and leads to good however perverted, if Powell's opinions be correct evil and mischief in its tendencies. Although we may not be convinced that Phrenology is an infallible science, or that if it be a belief of and acquaintance with it, will lead to useful results, still, it is for founded on facts it is entitled to the benefit of them. We respond to the beautiful apostrophe of Sir William Jones—one of the wisest and best men that ever adorned human annals.

"Before thy Mystic altar, Heavenly Truth,

I kneel in manhood, as I knelt in youth:

Thou let me know I, till this dull term of clay,

And life's last shade be brightened by the ray.

Then shall my soul now lost in clouds below,

Soar without bounds—without consuming glow."

A. S.

CHARLOTTE HARBOR, FLORIDA

Extract of a letter from J. R. (M. D.) Esq. to a friend in this city, dated 10th November, 1833.

"Your letter of the 3d inst., is now before me, and I listen to answer to the inquiries contained in it.

"Charlotte Point" is, I have always thought, the most eligible site for a town in Charlotte Harbor. It is high and dry, the drinking water very good and abundant, and the channel runs close in shore.

"Pine Island" I never was on, but I now

"This fact is confirmed by a respectable Spanish gentleman now at this place.

their cultivation. Among the most important of these is the Agave Sisalana or Sisal Hemp. The introduction of this plant alone, if the above respectable authority may be relied upon—would be a source of wealth of more rapid and easy acquisition than any which has been introduced into any part of our country; and it is greeable to Humbold's authority it has become wild since the 16th century, throughout the South of Europe," the Canary Islands and the coast of Africa," it sufficiently supports the Doctor's decided opinion, that all the valuable species of the same genus, may be successfully cultivated in our State." Another fact, the fact, that it is successfully cultivated in the sun of the sterile plains of Yucatan," shows clearly enough, that the poorest of our sandy wastes would be adapted to its growth. If the statement of Doctor Perrine may be relied upon, and from the great attention he has devoted to the subject, and the responsibility of his character, it cannot be doubted, this branch of agriculture would become valuable.—Agreeably to his statement 361 plants may be raised in the acre; which he estimates to produce seven and a half pounds each, giving an annual product of 2707½ pounds. This, at the minimum price of New York quotation, (say $ 30 per ton) gives a return of $40,612 50 per annum, which, with the little labor employed in its cultivation, it is evident, that a greater number of acres could be cultivated to the hand, than of cotton, sugar cane, or rice, and being the case, whoever will take the trouble to make fair proportional estimates, will find that after making the most liberal allowance for the increased expense of change of climate, soil, and all possible disadvantages to be anticipated in the introduction of an exotic, in no other branch of agricultural pursuits, labor and capital to half as profitably employed.

If then, it be conceded, that in addition to the culture of our own important staples, Sea Island and other cottons, sugar cane, tobacco, &c. (for which a large portion of our lands are well adapted) these and other valuable plants may be successfully cultivated, in part of our territory, it will be a matter of inquiry for the investment of agricultural capital.

To the laboring and industrious classes, the inducements are still greater. The climate is more and more favorable, and that in any other portion of the country; comfortable buildings are erected at very little expense, because the mildness of the climate scarcely requires more than a shelter from the sun and rain. The warm and expensive clothing which is required to guard against the rigid severities of a northern winter, and which to the poor laborer is a heavy tax on his industry, is here never required. The period of cultivation, which is there limited to a few months, is here extended to almost the whole year. The forests are never stripped of their verdure, and "scattle on a thousand hills," unaided by the tools of man, are furnished by the bounties of nature. Our lands require no provisions for their sustenance, and the pastures are green at all seasons be procured from the range, and because rared without the expense of either grounds or stalls until fit for the saddle or harness.

The Fort, or village of Tampa, (as it may hereafter be termed) is situated in the midst of an ancient and shady grove of overgreen oaks, and commands a water view of more than 15 miles. As a site for a town it stands unsipassably unrivalled in the South. A more inviting spot, or a more delightful climate, can no where be found. It has already acquired a reputation for its healthiness, and it is refreshing during the hottest days by the cooling and invigorating sea-breezes—the air is elastic and entirely free from marshy exhalations or noxious substances of any description. It is therefore entirely exempt from any, and all the diseases incident to a southern latitude.

During the eight years past, in some periods of which the population fluctuating the troops, amounted to between three and four hundred, most of which was from the northern States, not a death has occurred from disease, or any other cause connected with the climate or location. The orange, the lime, the plantain and bananas, are already in successful cultivation, and yield as delicious fruit as is produced in the Havana. The waters of the bay afford as fish in the greatest variety and abundance, green turtle, and oysters of the finest description; and wild fowl, venison and other game are in the range of the hunter, at all seasons easily procured.

Under these various considerations of the subject, it cannot be doubted, that emigration to this country will be followed by a large emigration, to a country, yielding on such cheap and easy terms all the comforts and luxuries of life—and ever adorned human minds. Industry and capital be half as profitably employed.

If then, it be conceded, that in addition to the culture of our own important staples, Sea Island and other cottons, sugar cane, tobacco, &c. (for which a large portion of our lands are well adapted) these and other valuable plants may be successfully cultivated, in part of our territory, it will be a matter of inquiry for the investment of agricultural capital.

To the laboring and industrious classes, the inducements are still greater. The climate is more and more favorable, and that in any other portion of the country; comfortable buildings are erected at very little expense, because the mildness of the climate scarcely requires more than a shelter from the sun and rain. The warm and expensive clothing which is required to guard against the rigid severities of a northern winter, and which to the poor laborer is a heavy tax on his industry, is here never required. The period of cultivation, which is there limited to a few months, is here extended to almost the whole year. The forests are never stripped of their verdure, and "scattle on a thousand hills," unaided by the tools of man, are furnished by the bounties of nature. Our lands require no provisions for their sustenance, and the pastures are green at all seasons be procured from the range, and because rared without the expense of either grounds or stalls until fit for the saddle or harness.

The Fort, or village of Tampa, (as it may hereafter be termed) is situated in the midst of an ancient and shady grove of overgreen oaks, and commands a water view of more than 15 miles. As a site for a town it stands unsipassably unrivalled in the South. A more inviting spot, or a more delightful climate, can no where be found. It has already acquired a reputation for its healthiness, and it is refreshing during the hottest days by the cooling and invigorating sea-breezes—the air is elastic and entirely free from marshy exhalations or noxious substances of any description. It is therefore entirely exempt from any, and all the diseases incident to a southern latitude.

During the eight years past, in some periods of which the population fluctuating the troops, amounted to between three and four hundred, most of which was from the northern States, not a death has occurred from disease, or any other cause connected with the climate or location. The orange, the lime, the plantain and bananas, are already in successful cultivation, and yield as delicious fruit as is produced in the Havana. The waters of the bay afford as fish in the greatest variety and abundance, green turtle, and oysters of the finest description; and wild fowl, venison and other game are in the range of the hunter, at all seasons easily procured.

Under these various considerations of the subject, it cannot be doubted, that emigration to this country will be followed by a large emigration, to a country, yielding on such cheap and easy terms all the comforts and luxuries of life—and ever adorned human minds. Industry and capital be half as profitably employed.

If then, it be conceded, that in addition to the culture of our own important staples, Sea Island and other cottons, sugar cane, tobacco, &c. (for which a large portion of our lands are well adapted) these and other valuable plants may be successfully cultivated, in part of our territory, it will be a matter of inquiry for the investment of agricultural capital.

To the laboring and industrious classes, the inducements are still greater. The climate is more and more favorable, and that in any other portion of the country; comfortable buildings are erected at very little expense, because the mildness of the climate scarcely requires more than a shelter from the sun and rain. The warm and expensive clothing which is required to guard against the rigid severities of a northern winter, and which to the poor laborer is a heavy tax on his industry, is here never required. The period of cultivation, which is there limited to a few months, is here extended to almost the whole year. The forests are never stripped of their verdure, and "scattle on a thousand hills," unaided by the tools of man, are furnished by the bounties of nature. Our lands require no provisions for their sustenance, and the pastures are green at all seasons be procured from the range, and because rared without the expense of either grounds or stalls until fit for the saddle or harness.

The Fort, or village of Tampa, (as it may hereafter be termed) is situated in the midst of an ancient and shady grove of overgreen oaks, and commands a water view of more than 15 miles. As a site for a town it stands unsipassably unrivalled in the South. A more inviting spot, or a more delightful climate, can no where be found. It has already acquired a reputation for its healthiness, and it is refreshing during the hottest days by the cooling and invigorating sea-breezes—the air is elastic and entirely free from marshy exhalations or noxious substances of any description. It is therefore entirely exempt from any, and all the diseases incident to a southern latitude.

During the eight years past, in some periods of which the population fluctuating the troops, amounted to between three and four hundred, most of which was from the northern States, not a death has occurred from disease, or any other cause connected with the climate or location. The orange, the lime, the plantain and bananas, are already in successful cultivation, and yield as delicious fruit as is produced in the Havana. The waters of the bay afford as fish in the greatest variety and abundance, green turtle, and oysters of the finest description; and wild fowl, venison and other game are in the range of the hunter, at all seasons easily procured.

We are authorized to announce

Lambert W. Byland, Esq.

As a candidate to represent Somerset county in the next General Assembly of Maryland.

June 24, 1834.

We are authorized to announce

John N. Rowland, Esq.

As a candidate for the next Sheriffalty of Somerset county.

June 17, 1834.

We are authorized to announce

Elijah C. Johnson, Esq.

As a candidate to represent Somerset county in the next General Assembly of Maryland.

June 17, 1834.

We are authorized to say that

MATTHIAS DASHIELL,

DANIEL MILLSON,

JOSEPH S. COTTMAN, and

ISAAC D. JONES, Esquires,

Will be supported for the next General Assembly of Maryland, by

MANY VOTERS

Princess-Anne, June 3, 1834

We are authorized to announce

L. D. Teackle, Esq.

As a candidate to represent Somerset county in the next General Assembly of Maryland.

June 3, 1834.

Insolvent Notice.

THE creditors of JOHN JONES of Geo. are hereby notified that he has applied for the benefit of the Insolvent Laws of Maryland, and the first Tuesday in the next November Term of Somerset County Court, is the day appointed for his appearance before the Judges of the said Court, to answer such interrogatories as may then and there be propounded to him relative to his said application.

June 24, 1834.

Insolvent Notice.

THE creditors of Littleton Hobbs are hereby notified that he has applied for the benefit of the Insolvent Laws of Maryland, and that the first Tuesday in the next November Term of Somerset County Court, is the day appointed for his appearance before the Judges of the said Court, to answer such interrogatories as may then and there be propounded to him relative to his said application.

June 24, 1834.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY,

James Thomas, Governor

OF MARYLAND,

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, by an act of the General Assembly of this State, passed at Nayem ber session 1805, entitled "An act to reduce into one the several acts of Assembly respecting Elections, and to regulate and prescribe the manner of holding Elections," it is directed that the Governor and Council, after having received the Returns of Elections of members to represent this State in the Congress of the U. States, shall enumerate and ascertain the number of votes given for each and every person voted for as members of Congress aforesaid, respectively, and thereupon declare by Proclamation, signed by the Governor, the name or names of the person or persons duly elected in each respective District," and an Election having been held on Thursday the

POETRY.

The following lines are from the pen of a lady of Baltimore in answer to the Stanzas we published some weeks ago, by the Hon. Mr. Wilde, of Georgia.—N. Y. Star.

ANSWER.

The dews of night may fall from heaven,
Upon the withered rose's bed,
And tears of fond regret be given,
To mourn the virtues of the dead;
Yet morning's sun the dews will dry,
And rose will fade from nature's eye,
Affection's pangs be lulled to sleep,
And even love forget to weep

The tree may mourn its fallen leaf,
And autumn winds be sad its blooms,
And friends may heave the sigh of grief
Over those who sleep within the tomb;
Yet soon will spring verdure the flowers,
And time will bring more smiling hours;
In friendship's ear all grief shall die,
And even love forget to cry.

The sea may on the desert shore
Lament each tiny wave it bears away,
The lonely heart its grief may pour
O'er cherished friendship's fond decay;
Yet when all ceases to be—and grief,
The waves dance bright and friendship,
Thus soon all cease to be—love, too,
And even love forgets to mourn.

PRELIDON'S LAND.

BY E. MONTES.

Away the tyrant spread empire!
But come, thou spirit of the free,
And write this motto on every
"O, freedom's land is the land for me."

Although a [illegible]
And old [illegible]
And I dream [illegible]
Still freedom's [illegible] the land for me

Were I [illegible] I would
As Cyd Edwin's life could be,
I would [illegible] there,
No—freedom's land is the land for me.

Why I am [illegible]
May there [illegible]
And let me [illegible]
If ever one be [illegible] me

And in the cool [illegible]
Where [illegible]
O may [illegible]
For I would rest in [illegible]

If aught can be [illegible]
Were the [illegible]
As with [illegible]
O, freedom's land is the land for me

THE PAST IS PRICELESS.

The past is priceless! the richest wealth
That ever broke on Eden's sleepless eye
Will take in for old humanity, in vain
Rifling the [illegible]
That wear as [illegible]
When he may assume the lot of heaven
And to a dome of [illegible]
Looking and could never know decay
The past is precious! [illegible]
The [illegible]
Soon thickly [illegible]
Ambrosial [illegible]
Yea more! for some there be of nature [illegible]
Where [illegible]
Nor vainly [illegible]
Hence the [illegible]
Dome in [illegible]
Sustains and [illegible]
And therefore [illegible]
Mnemosyne the mother of [illegible]

MISCELLANY.

Incidents of Sport.

It may not be amiss, kind reader, for me to attempt to give you an idea of the pleasures experienced by the sportsman of Indiana, to introduce the subject with a few [illegible] of that State

Kentucky was formerly attached to Virginia, but in 1816 the Indians traded off upon that portion of the western wilds as their own, and abandoned the district only when forced to do so, leaving behind them little beasts. Rather not the [illegible] of the unexplored forests. Doubtless the [illegible] of the soil, and the beauty of the [illegible] situated as they are along one of the most beautiful rivers in the world, contribute [illegible] much to attract the old Virginians, as the desire to gratify expatriated on Sunday, and spreading over the mountains of the [illegible] and bringing into cultivation, [illegible] for unknown ages [illegible] the wild game in [illegible] nature. The conquest of Kentucky was not performed without many difficulties. The warfare that long existed between the intruders and the Indians was sanguinary and protracted. That the former at length made good their footing, and the latter drew off their shattered bands, dismayed by the untiring energy and indomitable courage of the white men.

This region was probably discovered by a daring hunter, the renowned Daniel Boon. The richness of its soil, its magnificent forests, its innumerable navigable streams, its salt springs and licks, its prairies, its wild strata, and the rich [illegible] and cheer that loomed on its hills and amidst its charming valleys, afforded ample indicement to the [illegible] who pushed far wood with a spirit [illegible] that of the most adventurous trader. Much for ages had been made powerful of the [illegible]

The Virginians thronged towards the [illegible] Ohio, a couple of horses and a heavy rifle, with a store of ammunition, were all that were considered necessary for equipment of the man, who, with his family, moved to the new State, assured that in that land no [illegible] would [illegible] to provide supply for all his wants. Hey who have [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] pioneers of the emigrants, most of these have proved the vigor of their minds. Regardless of the fatigue attending such movement which they made, they pushed through an unexplored region of dark and tangled forests, guiding themselves by the sun alone, and repeating at night on the bare ground. Numberless streams they had to cross on rafts, with their wives and children, their cattle and their baggage, often dishing to considerable distances before they could effect a landing on the opposite shores. The cattle would often stray amid the rich pasturage of these shores, and occasion a delay of several days. To these troubles add the constantly impending danger of being murdered, while asleep in their encampments, by the prowling and ruthless Indians, while they had before them a distance of hundreds of miles to be traversed, before they could reach certain places of rendezvous called stations. To encounter difficulties like these must have required energies of no ordinary kind, and the reward which these veteran settlers enjoy, was doubtless well merited.

Some removed from the Atlantic shores to those of the Ohio in more comfort and security. They had their wagons, their messes, and their families. Their way was cut through the woods by their own axemen, the day before their advance; and when night overtook them, the hunters attached to the party came to the place pitched upon for their encampment, loaded with the slain game, which the forest yielded an abundant supply. The blazing light of a huge fire gained their steps as they approached, and the sounds of merriment that echoed in the air announced to them that all was well. The flesh of the buffalo, the bear, and the deer, soon hung in large and delicious slabs, in front of the embers; the beds already prepared were deposited in their proper places, and under the rich doppings of the pitch pines, every quietly betook. The wagons contained the bedding, and whilst the leaves which had drown them were raised higher to tread on the luxuriant moss growth on the woods, some perhaps hoped, but the greater number merely with a light heart hung to their beds, to guide the sound in the morning to the spot where the night have resembled, the party were enjoying themselves after the fatigues of the day.

In anticipation all is pleasure; and those emigrating bands located in joyous security, imagine because of any greater difficulties than those to be encountered in traversing their way through the pathless woods, to be but a slight abundance, and although at both months to accomplish the journey, and a skirmish soon and then took place between the red and the Indians, who sometimes crept stealthily round into their very camp, still did the Virginians cheerfully proceed towards the western horizon, until the various groups all reached the Ohio, when, struck with the beauty of that magnificent stream, they at once commenced the task of clearing land, for the purpose of establishing a permanent residence.

Others, perhaps encumbered with too much luggage, preferred descending the stream. They prepared rude rafts with poles and glided on the gentle current, more smooth, however, than those who marched by land, by the attacks of the Indians, who watched their motions. Many travellers have described these boats by merely called arks, but now named flat boats, but have they told you, gentle is she, that on these times a boat of thirty or forty feet long was considered a ship-shape tolerable, that in this boat men, women, also children, huddled together, with horses, cattle, hogs, and poultry, for their companions, while the remaining portion was crammed with [illegible] tables and packages of seeds? The roof or deck of the boat was at most but a farm yard, being covered with hay, plunghs, carts, wagons, and various agricultural implements, together with numerous others, among which the spinning wheels of the matrons were conspicuous. Even the axles of the plough mows were loaded with the wheels of the old vehicle, while themselves lay on the roof. Have they told you that these boats contained the little all of each family of venturous emigrants, who, defiled of being covered by the Indian, under night moved on commence, grouping their a [illegible] part to another of the sleeping habitations, dreaming themselves the conduct of the [illegible] of the lot that watched from home the shape should rush upon them and destroy them? Have they told you that this boat is a mixed, after the fashion very [illegible] [illegible] Ohio, [illegible] such things have not [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

I dwell not discussing the many incidents which took place among the different parties of white and red men, as the time I moved down the Ohio, because I have never been very fond of battles, and indeed have always wished that the world were more peaceably inclined than it is, and hold it merely to add, that in one way or other, Kentucky was cleared from the original and [illegible] [illegible] I [illegible] the sports still engaged in that now happy portion of the United States.

We have individuals in Kentucky, kind reader, that even the most considered man of their adopts as the management of the rifle, for fire-arms [illegible] a common [illegible] not [illegible] though of by the Kentucky than to engage a wild turkey's head, at a distance of a hundred yards. Others will hold, all equally [illegible] another mode entirely with the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

BY JOHN S. ZIEBER, PRINCESS-ANNE, SOMERSET COUNTY, MARYLAND.

VOL. VIII. TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19, 1834. NO. 21.

VILLAGE HERALD.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

Three Dollars a year, to be satisfied by $2 00 if paid in advance; or $2 50 if paid within six months.

☞ Subscriptions paid within 30 days after the delivering the first number, (or the year subscribed for,) will be considered in advance.

No subscription will be taken for less than one year.

No paper will be discontinued, unless at the editor's discretion, until all arrearages are paid off, and it is future to notify a discontinuance, previous to the expiration of the term subscribed for, will be uncharitably considered as a new engagement.

☞ Letters and the mail will be subject to postage, to be paid by the subscribers.

ADVERTISEMENTS, not exceeding a square, will be inserted three times for $1, and 25 cents for every subsequent insertion: those exceeding a square in the same proportion.

☞ Advertisements not limited to a certain number of insertions, otherwise their absence must will be continued and charged accordingly.

☞ All communications addressed to the editor must come post PAID.

COURSE OF EXCHANGE

BANKS	per ct. dis	BANKS	per ct. dis
U. States Bank	par	Philadelphia	par
Do. Branches	par	Brooklyn	par
MASSACHUSETTS		Bank of Maryland	1
Boston banks	1	MARYLAND
Other Mass. notes	1	Bk of Salisbury (sold)	1
RHODE ISLAND		Bk of Westminster	2
Exc. & Mechanic's	1	Farmers & Mech.	2
Other R. Island notes	1	Farmers bank at Frederick	2
CONNECTICUT		Do. Annapolis	2
Middletown banks	2	Bank of Chesapeake	2
Phenix bank at Hartford	1	Do. Easton	2
Bridgeport bank	2	Do. Cambridge	2
Eagle bank of New Haven	1	Do. Salisbury	2
Hartford bank	2	Do. Westminster	2
NEW YORK		DISTRICT OF COL.
N Y city banks	par	Bk of Washington	par
Albany	par	Bk of the Metropolis	par
Troy	par	Patriotic bank	par
Auburn	par	Central bank	par
Other N York notes	1	Bk of Columbia	3
NEW JERSEY		Union bk Georgetown	3
Jersey city bank (sold)	1	Bk of Alexandria	par
Banks in Newark	2	Bank of Alexandria (sold)	2
Bank of N Brunswick	1	VIRGINIA
Trenton Bank (sold)	par	Richmond & bank's	2
Farmers bank at Mount Holly	par	Bk of the Valley	3
Cumberland bk	1	Bk of Fredericksburg	3
State bk Camden	1	Bank of Virginia	3
At Elizabethtown	2	Farmers & Mechanics	3
At N Brunswick	2	Bank of Virginia at Wheeling	3
At Trenton (sold)	1	NORTH CAROLINA
At Morristown	2	State bk at Raleigh	4
Patterson bk (sold)	1	Cape Fear	4
Sussex bank	2	Newbern	4
PENNSYLVANIA		SOUTH CAROLINA
Philadelphia banks	par	State bank of South Carolina	3
Easton	par	Union bank of Columbia	5
Montgomery county	par	GEORGIA
Chester "	par	State bank	5
Delaware "	par	Planters	5
Lancaster bank	par	Augusta	5
Farmers bk of Lancaster	par	Mechanics	5
Harrisburg	par	Savannah	5
Northumberland	par	Bank of Augusta	5
Farmers bank of Reading	par	Branches	5
Do. Lancaster	par	ALABAMA
Do. Chambersburg	par	State bank	5
Do. York	par	Branches	5
Do. Gettysburg	par	LOUISIANA
Do. Pittsburg	par	Banks generally	par
Do. Greensburg	par	LOUISIANA
Do. Beaver	par	Bank of New Orleans	5
Do. Wilkesbarre	par
Do. Brownsville	5
DELAWARE
Bank of Delaware	par
Farmers bank	par
Branches	par

Coach, Gig & Harness Making.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public in general, that he has commenced in the above business in Mr. E. W. Boring's old stand, and hopes to give general satisfaction. The cases in will be the larger to commenced under the name of Townsend and Bellitt.

The public's obedient servant,

T. TOWNSEND

March 1st, 1834

N. B.—All persons indebted up to this date, will oblige the same by cash or note.

T. T.

WANTED.

THE subscriber wishes to purchase for his own use, and will give the highest price for a NEGRO WOMAN to wait on a lady and washer. Any age between 18 and 35 will suit, and there will be no objection to her having a child.

ROBERT C. POLLITT

August 6, 1834.

To the Public.

THE undersigned having been appointed GEOLOGIST to the State of Maryland, I deem it advisable to make known to his fellow citizens, the nature and extent of such appointment, so far as it is required to perform, and to inform them of his readiness to satisfy the inquiries, as well as of the most convenient mode in which their applications to him may be made.

I do hereby define the Geological survey to be a complete, minute, and original survey of the State, commencing with that portion which belongs to the Tertiary under all geological formations, and with the Secondary division, that of the Cretaceous, and with the Primary formations, as well as of the Primary and Gneissic, that may be found, and the minerals, that which underlies the Secondary, and which may be connected with, associated, and in which they may be found, and the geological structure, and the geographical extent

PRO PATRIÆ INTERITUS.

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 19, 1834.

NOTICE.

ALL persons indebted to this office either on account for advertising or for subscription for the Herald are urgently requested to make immediate payment. Our calls hereto fore have usually met with favorable attention, and having given a general notice to delinquents for a considerable time, we indulge the hope that this call will be cheerfully and promptly attended to.

August 5, 1834.

Mammoth Tomato.—Was presented us a few days ago by Mr. Samuel W. Jones of this place, a ripe Tomato, weighing 12 ozs. and measuring in circumference 13½ inches.—Beat this who can.

RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA

It appears from the late Philadelphia papers that several disgraceful riots have taken place in that city. On last Tuesday evening a detachment of boys and very young men amounting to several hundred, armed with clubs, brick bats, &c. attacked and demolished a building in South street, where the illegal amusement of Ring fences was carried on. A battle took place between the rioters and the Blackguards the latter, of which the latter came off second best. The latter having fought their way through the mob secured a number of the most conspicuous of the rioters, on a promise we have restored. But the Philadelphia Gazette says—

The foregoing proceedings, we understand, are those of a class of persons who have been but the commencement of the disturbance. Last night another in the evening many boys, and a considerable number of adult persons assembled about half past ten, in the vicinity of Sixth and Shippen streets, and immediately made an attack upon the African Presbyterian Church. Stones, brick bats and clubs were thrown in at the doors and windows, and in a short time the building was made a complete wreck. A frame house, near the Church, was attacked and entirely demolished, the inmates having barely time to escape with their lives.—The mob then proceeded to the corner of Sixth and Small street, and attacked a house called the "Dining Hall," occupied by John Cox, a white man, and used as a grog shop and lodging place for blacks, at the rate of a penny a head. The doors and windows in a short time. Other houses in the immediate vicinity, to the number of not less than twenty, all occupied by colored people, were then attacked, and stripped of their contents. Great excesses are represented as having been committed by the mob, and one or two scenes of a most revolting character are said to have taken place. We forbear particularizing, in the hope that we have been misinformed in regard to them.

Some amusement, it appears, existed between the mob and those who did not, also dwelling houses of the latter, contrary, to the evidence of the blacks, were illuminated, and left undisturbed, while the houses of the negroes were singled out with marking certainty. The firemen found in these houses was generally broken up and destroyed, both engine and hose companies attempted to play upon the mob, but were soon scattered in the streets. Stones and bricks, flew in all directions. Several blacks were seriously injured, and report states that one is now dead.

CHOLERA

Quebec.—The intelligence for the six days ending the 4th, were, 15, 16, 22, 27, 31, & 32.

Albany.—The cholera appeared at Albany about the 1st inst. though it has not been very violent, and at the last accounts the health of the city was improving.

Pough keepsie, (N. Y.)—The Cholera made its appearance here on Saturday, and up to the last accounts there had been 16 cases, all proving fatal.

New York. As was to be apprehended, the Cholera has broken out in the city. The Board of Health announces seven fatal cases from the 23d ult. to the evening of the 7th instant, and seven more during the 36 hours ending at noon on Saturday the 9th. The Journal of Commerce says the cases occurred in various parts of the city, proving that the disease was not caught, as the expression is, but that it was endemic! During the 48 hours ending last Monday at noon, there were eight deaths by Cholera. From Monday noon to Wednesday noon 13 deaths and 25 cases.

Cincinnati.—The number of deaths [illegible] yesterday, and 21 on Saturday, stating, however, that in all these of such persons as were interred, in the Lower burying ground. A letter from this city, under date of the 5th, to the editor of the Baltimore Patriot states that the Cholera had left there

The Richmond Enquirer says, that every now and then occasional cases of Cholera manifest themselves in the western part of Virginia.

MONTREAL

A letter to the editor of the New York Mercantile Advertiser, under date of Montreal, Aug. 1st, gives a lamentable account of the progress of the Cholera in that city. Several leading merchants and many distinguished citizens have fallen victims to this dreadful disease. The following is the list of interments for five days.

	Cath.	Prot.	Total.
Sunday, 27th July,	27	23	50
Monday, 28	47	25	72
Tuesday, 29	25	15	40
Wednesday, 30	25	16	41
Thursday, 31	30	17	47
	154	96	250
At the Cholera shed, say			10
Total			240

giving a daily average of 48 deaths per day, in a city of now less than 28,000.

The writer adds that among Europeans and Americans the disease is as fatal as it was in 1832, but among the French Canadians it is not so destructive as here to fore.

NEW GOLD COIN.

The Treasury department has published the annexed letter, in which it is stated that it may be enabled to distinguish the new from the old gold coins. It is added that after the date could not, by law, be altered, but the cap and motto might be legally added, and would serve plainly to distinguish the new impression, that course has been adopted of all the most till the commencement of the next year, when the mottos will probably be restored, and the date of the new issue noticed of the omission of the motto, not to found sufficient to indicate the change of the coin."

MINT OF THE UNITED STATES,
Philadelphia, 1d Aug. 1834.

Sir: I have the honor to inform the department that the coinage of gold, according to the new rates of gold by others, commenced this morning, being the earliest day permitted in the proclamation of the President.

In making this communication, it may be satisfactory to recur to the precautions by which the new gold coins are to be distinguished from those of former issues. They are the following

On the face, the new coins will be easily distinguished by a bead of thirty in enumeration of the cap.

On the reverse, the eagle motto will "Pluribus Unum," which for many years has occupied a portion of the cap, disappears, the eagle's neck remained.

These changes, independently of the facility to be derived from them, in distinguishing the future from the past issues of our gold coins, are recommended by a nearer adherence to the prescription of authority. The views in these respects, presented in my communications of the 9th ult. having met your approbation, will, I doubt not, be sustained by the judgment of the public.

In regard to the non use of the motto alluded to, it is to the same improvement which caused the 1 in the quarter dollar in 1831, the omission of which was by commencement of the 25th January, of that year, been admitted to the President, through the department, and approved

The Eagle of the former issue was worth 270 cents, the Half Eagle 135 cents, and the Quarter 67 cents. The Eagle, under the present law and weight, is given, the Half Eagle is two cents, and the Quarter 4 cents.

The Eagle and Half Eagle of the new coinage will be in diameter then taken of the home commerce, and that in a greater proportion than the diminution of weight would indicate. This, however, through a special amendment of our commerce, I of a change in the mode mark, since the commencement would require the presence of coin of such class.

I have the honor to be, with respectful, your obedient servant,

SAML. MIN. MT.
Director of the Mint.

Hon. Levi Woodbury,
Secretary of the Treasury.

MYSTERIOUS.

We understand that a gentlemen of [illegible] in Charlestown, in consequence of the untoward conduct of a young lady to one Swan, with a [illegible] The fire must necessarily be as follows:

The young man was sent to the place to stop to complete his [illegible], and he became so pleased with the place and its occupants, that she was induced to [illegible] herself from the world and take the black veil. After some time spent in the Nunnery, she became dissatisfied, and begin to [illegible] from the institution, but was still awards prevented to return, some time and at the [illegible] Nunnery. Over a week ago she was [illegible] with home. At the end of that week [illegible] Nunnery, for the purpose of [illegible] Mer. Jour.

The Charlestown Mystery.—We are informed that [illegible] Nunnery in this City, by the friends of this Nun whose mysterious disappearance from Charlestown is investigated in the Boston papers. She is safe in the Nunnery, and says that it was a mere [illegible] that she was away, since a [illegible] twenty five years old. The school consists of about sixty girls, all but three or four of whom are from Protestant families. N. Y. Jour. Com.

The above circumstances caused an excitement in a quarter that it resulted in the burning of the Nunnery, by the mob, on Monday last.—Com. Chron.

ILLINOIS WOOL.

We have been shown several specimens of Saxony and Merino wool, grown by Mr. Flowers, of Edwards county in this State. The specimens, (we are being judges,) are of a superior quality, equal in fineness and strength to the best imported. The specimens may be seen by calling on Mr. M'Loughlin, of this place. We understand Mr. Flowers has a flock of three or four hundred sheep of the same species with those from which the specimens we examined were taken, which he will sell at a low price, his object being to encourage and cause the business of "wool growing," rather than to make money. The chance is worthy the attention of farmers disposed to engage in this profitable branch of agriculture.—Cincinnati Weig.

THE MARKETS.

BALTIMORE, August 14.

Flour—Best white wheat family, 6.7 a 7.25; do do. Superfine, 5.37 a 5.62; Super. Howard street, 5.31 a 5.44; City Mills, 5.37 a 5.62; Susquehanna, 5.25 Wheat, white, 1.10, a 1.11 Red, 1.00 a 1.05; Yellow, 66 a 68; White, 66 a 68 Rye, 62 Oats, 30 a 31 Beans, white field 2.00 Peas, Marlotte, 1.00 Plaster, 1.00 a 1.25 Red clover, 4.50, Feathers, 37 Wool, Pulled and Saxon Fleeces, washed, 50 a 60; unwashed, 24 a 26 Full Merino, washed, 40 a 50; unwashed 20 a 24 Three fourths Merino, washed, 34 a 40; unwashed, 22 a 24 One half do washed, 28 a 33, unwashed, 18 a 22 Common and one fourth Merino, washed, 25 a 28; unwashed 14, 18 a 20 Extra, washed, 24 a 30; unwashed, 18 a 20

PHILADELPHIA, August 8

Flour—1200 bbls. Brandywine, Genesee Wheat, have been disposed of at 5.00, two do. new Southern at the same price No sales of wheat on the Schuylkill. One small parcel of Rye Week are continued.

Corn—The sales of Corn since our last amount to about one hundred, Southern Yellow at 67 a 68 cts. and 2,000 do. White at 65 cents. We quote to day, for Yellow, 68, White 65 a 66, and Round 60

Oats—176 bushels Red Corn sold from stores on the Schuylkill at 63 cent

Rye—No sales of Rye on the Delaware. 2100 bushels have been disposed of at Fairmount on the Schuylkill at 50 cents a whole lot, price we quote it.

Oats—A small lot of oats sold at 33 cts No sales on the Schuylkill

(COMMUNICATED.)

Stepney Parish T. Society.

At a meeting of Stepney Parish Temperance Society, held at Jones' Meeting House, Nanticoke Point, August 2nd, the following proceedings took place

The Chairman being absent, in a recent of the President of the Society, the meeting was opened by an appropriate prayer by Mr. John Langston, after which the Rev. Mr. Ward, of the M. E. Church, was called to the chair, and explained very concisely the object of the meeting. The object of the meeting being for the purpose of adopting some effect in opposition to Ardent Spirits, in reference to temperance reform, the committee of the Somerset County Temperance Convention, on the 1st Tuesday in May last, recommended the practice of pledging by Candidates for office, which was, after a long and spirited discussion, adopted by the Somerset County Temperance Convention, held in Princess Anne, on the first Tuesday in May last, concerning the practice of pledging by Candidates for office, which was, representations are as follows: First, that the resolutions under a obligation on every temperance man not to vote for any Candidate who drinks ardent spirits—but, that the resolution simply recommended to all the friends of temperance to withhold their suffrages hereafter from those Candidates who will continue to treat with the same.

Resolved, 2d. That this Society do not in those more than just and perfectly consistent for the temperance reformers to propose at this or any other time, that any Candidate who shall continue to treat with ardent spirits, inasmuch as these Candidates profess to be our servants and [illegible] on our faith and suffrage, and inasmuch as that custom brings wo upon the nation, and does great injury to the temperance cause, which cause we deem greatly to enhance the general good and welfare of the public.

Resolved, 4th. That this Society believe the temperance reformers to be freemen and entitled to all the privileges of freemen—that they have a right to maintain their principles—that those principles are consistent with the laws of God and Man, and that they have a right in common with all the rest of mankind to exercise their free judgment and will concerning the interest of the nation.

Resolved, 5th. That this Society believe the resolution referred to is perfectly consistent with the principles of temperance reform, and altogether reasonable and just, and if judiciously adhered to, and practised, will soon and easily effect its designed purpose.

After some very interesting remarks made by Mr. Dashiell, in support of the Resolutions, &c. &c. Mr. J. D. Avery moved that they be taken up, seconded by, and receive the votes of the Society—which motion was seconded. The preamble and resolutions were then taken up one by one and passed unanimously with loud and [illegible]

On motion of Mr. J. Langston, Sec.

Resolved, That the Editor of the V. Herald and T. Star be requested to publish the proceedings of this meeting in both of papers.

The meeting then adjourned

D. CORDRAY, Secretary.

DIED, at the residence of her husband Nathaniel Bell, Esq. on last Tuesday night, Mrs. Caroline Bell, in the 23d year of her age.

Notice.

THE Trustees of Washington Academy will meet in MERRYMAN, at the Academy, when the Semi Annual Examination will take place. The parents and guardians of the Students as well as the friends of literature generally, are invited to attend

WM. W. HANDY, Secretary.

July 19, 1834.

$50 Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber near Princess Anne, on the 7th day of August, a man named JOHN, about 20 years of age, about mode, nearly 6 feet high, dark complexion, [illegible] and has some of the [illegible] with him. The above reward will be given if secured in Princess Anne Jail, or Somerset county, Md. or delivered to the subscriber.

STEPHEN WARD

August 19, 1834.

Trustee's Sale.

By virtue of a decree of the Court of Chancery, I will sell, at the Court House in Princess Anne, on Monday the 20th day of August next, between the hours of 10 and 4 o'clock, that valuable FARM of which Richard Walling died seized, situate near the head of Little Annemessex River, one mile from Princess Anne. The land is highly productive. The improvements are the best contiguous. The Dwelling House, a large two story brick house, newly painted, and the situation is a large one, and is delightful, being unsurpassed by any in the County. Conditions to Wit: as sale is to be made on the day of sale, one fourth in hand, and the balance in two, three, and four years, with interest from day of sale. The purchaser or purchasers giving bond and security to be approved by the Trustee, for the payment of the purchase money.

BURTON H. GOLDSBOROUGH,
Aug. 19, 1834. Trustee.

State of Maryland, sc.

SOMERSET COUNTY ORPHANS COURT,
August 12, 1834.

ON application of William H. Hooks, Administrator of William Phillips, late of Somerset County, deceased, it is ordered by the Court that the said Administrator give the notice required by law for creditors to exhibit claims against the estate of the said deceased, and that the same be published once a week for three weeks, in a paper printed in Princess Anne.

True copy Test,
JAMES POLK, Reg. W. S. C.

In compliance with the above Order,

Notice is hereby given,

That the subscriber of Somerset County, hath obtained from the Orphans Court of said County in Maryland, letters of administration on the personal estate of William Phillips, late of said county deceased. All persons having claims against the said deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the subscriber on or before the 20th day of February 1835, they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of the said estate. Given under my hand this 12th day of August, 1834.

WM H HOOKS, Adm'r
of William Phillips, dec'd.

August 19 1834.

Notice.

I hereby forewarn all persons from harboring or crediting my wife, Betty Donnell, on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting after the present date

ARTHUR DASHIELL.

August 12, 1834.

We are authorized to announce

L. D. Tackle, Esq.

As a candidate to represent Somerset county in the next General Assembly of Maryland.

June 3, 1834.

We are authorized to say that

MATTHIAS DASHIELL,
DANIEL BALLARD,
JOSEPH S. COTTMAN, and
ISAAC D. JONES, Esquires,

Will be supported for the next General Assembly of Maryland, by

MANY VOTERS.

Princess-Anne, June 3, 1834

We are authorized to announce

Lambert W. Byland, Esq.

As a candidate to represent Somerset county in the next General Assembly of Maryland.

June 24, 1834.

We are authorized to announce

John A. Boyland, Esq.

As a candidate for the next sheriffality of Somerset county.

June 17, 1834.

We are authorized to announce

William C. Johnson, Esq.

As a candidate to represent Somerset county in the next General Assembly of Maryland.

June 17, 1834.

We are authorized to announce

Dr. Thomas Robertson,

As a candidate to represent Somerset County in the next General assembly of Maryland.

July 29, 1834.

Constable's Sale.

BY virtue of two writs of Fieri Facias issued by John D. Brewer, a Justice of the Peace for Somerset county, and to me, directed, one at the suit of Elisha Riggin, Jr. use of Henry Waple, and one at the suit of Henry Wood, Administrator of the estate of J. Laird, use against James Miles, Thomas Thomas, and Thomas J. Ward, and one against James Miles, Wm. Ward of Elijah, and Thos. J. Ward, I have seized and taken in execution the following property, to wit: two Beds and Furniture, one Gun, one Pair Tables, one Spinning Wheel, one Hog, one Sealer, three Steel Chairs, one Lawn lot of Crockery Ware, and one pair of Fire Tongs, as the property of the said Thos. Miles—Also, one Cow and Yearling, one Bed and Furniture, one Gun, and one lot of ground called Cook, as the property of the said Thos. Miles—Also, one Cow and Yearling, one lot of Geese, one head of Hogs, one Gun, one Sow & pigs, one Yearling, and one lot of ground called Cook, and part of Chesnut Ridge, as the property of the said William Ward, of Elijah—2 Cows, and 3 Beds, as the property of Thomas Thomas, which I shall proceed to sell, at public sale, on the premises, on WEDNESDAY the 27th day of AUGUST next between the hours of 10 and 2 o'clock, P. M. to the highest and best bidder, for cash, to satisfy the above mentioned writs.

HENRY S. HANDY, Const.

August 5, 1834

Notice.

THE FARM long on the west side of the Wicomico River, belonging to the heirs of Levin D. Jones, dec'd., will be rented at Mr. Wm. H. Collier's Hotel, Quantico, on the 22nd day of AUGUST, next to the highest and best bidder for cash, for the current year.

ROBT. JONES of Geo.
MARCELLUS JONES.

August 12, 1834.

Look at This!

I have been at considerable expense in giving notice to persons indebted to me to make payment and at the same time informed them of my situation as to money matters; but few persons have paid any attention to my notice. I now give notice, positively, for the last time, that my Bonds, Notes and Judgements, must be settled by the 10th of SEPTEMBER next. Persons indebted on said accounts who fail to make payment by the said 10th of September I shall execute forthwith.

ALEX. S. D. EVANS.

August 12, 1834.

COACH, GIG & HARNESS MAKING.

FURNELL B. CAREY, takes this method of informing his friends and the public generally, that he still continues the Coach, Gig and Harness Making, and has taken a partnership Mr Geo. H. Schleigh, from Baltimore, an experienced workman. The firm will be conducted hereafter under the title of

Carey & Schleigh,

At the old stand in Quantico, where they flatter themselves they can be enabled to execute work in the different branches, with as little cost and despatch, and of as good materials, and in as workmanlike manner, as any shop on the peninsula. They solicit a share of public patronage.

The public's obt. servts.

FURNELL B. CAREY,
GEORGE H. SCHLEIGH.

July 15, 1834.

To the Voters of Somerset County.

Although not a member of the popular branch of the General Assembly of Maryland at its last session the undersigned was indeed to attend at the seat of the Government in the hope that his experience in your legislation might be made available for some useful purpose, either in achieving good or eschewing evil—and that inducement was the more impressive from an apprehension that a particular class of the community would take advantage of a hurried session, and factitious panic, and attempt to impose upon you some wily project, which, while flattering from you a high prerogative, and a rich resource of revenue, would establish an OLIGARCHY or PRIVILEGED ORDER, in direct repugnance to your own as rights, and tend to impoverish the general interests of land and labour throughout the State. In that apprehension the undersigned was not mistaken as various and imposing projects were presented in succession, and along with combinations of wealth and talents were arrayed in their support and advocacy—but the good intelligence and patriotic firmness of a majority of your delegation were proof against their machinations—and in their discomfiture the gratification of the undersigned was in proportion to the gross injustice, and enduring evils which would have followed from their pernicious operation.

Having been mainly charged in your legislation with the management of your revenue, and its several concomitants, —including the INVESTED CAPITAL, LICENSES, and AUCTION DUTIES—and the HOSPITAL, PENSIONS, and various ELEEMOSYNARY ESTABLISHMENTS—the INSTRUCTION of YOUTH—and the COLONIZATION of FREE coloured people—the storing of tobacco, and the gauging, measuring, and inspection of sundry staple commodities—the different relations of public property—and the doctrine of claims and pecuniary [illegible] as associated with the Penitentiary—and his name appearing upon divers committees in connection with those affairs, the undersigned will submit more specifically an authentic view of your pecuniary receipt and expenditures within the period referred to.

AMOUNT OF INVESTED CAPITAL.

Exclusive of payments for Free Schools, which every

[illegible]	$1,261,250 65
[illegible]	5,545,136
[illegible]	99,925 62
[illegible]	$857,249 34
[illegible]	12,149 22
[illegible]	35,295 52
[illegible]	11,125 11
[illegible]	62,09[illegible]
[illegible]	6,125 [illegible]
[illegible]	3,130 [illegible]
[illegible]	1,[illegible]
[illegible]	1,[illegible]
[illegible]	1,[

11. The board being entirely a public department, its proceedings would be open to Congress, and subject to any alteration or modification which experience might suggest.

12. Over and above the duties of the board; in the character of a Financial Congress, it would be peculiarly adapted to investigate the great interests of Agriculture, Manufactures and Commerce in their various relations as connected with the main object of their Construction, and to report thereon from time to time as might be required by either branch of the National Legislature.

Facts responsive to his Circular, and consultations with the first statesmen of your General Government, the practicability of the proposed system, and its intrinsic justice were admitted, but its immediate adoption was precluded by considerations of policy or unconquerable circumstances—hence the undersigned has been induced to mature his plan as here presented with a view to the action of the next or succeeding Congress.

A bill to create a National Currency, and to provide for the custody, transmission, and disbursement of the revenue of the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That wherever any fund or the revenue of the United States, by existing enactment, shall have accrued or be payable, or any obligation shall have accrued, or be rendered due and payable to the United States, it shall be lawful for the President to order the same to be paid, at his option, either into the Treasury of the United States, or into any Bank or Banks, Branch or Branches, Agency or Agencies, established by the authority of the United States, or into the Treasury or principal Treasury of any State of the United States, by such mode, manner, and at such time or times, as may be prescribed by Congress, and then to pay the proper expenses incurred, and bargains made and entered into in the transaction of the business of the Treasury, or any other public business, out of the same, in the manner prescribed by the Constitution and laws of the United States.

§ 2. That there shall be established in the City of Washington, a Board of Currency, to be composed of the President of the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency, and the Treasurer of the United States, who shall be ex officio members of said Board, and who shall be the first members thereof; and the President of the United States shall, on the first Monday in December, in the year 1834, and every year thereafter, lay before the Board of Currency, a report of the condition of the Treasury, and of the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the United States, and of the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the several States, in which the public money may be deposited, and of the amount of the public money in each, and of the amount of the public money in all, and of the amount of the public money in the Treasury of the United States, and in the Treasury of each State, and of the amount of the public money in the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the United States, and of the amount of the public money in the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the several States, and of the amount of the public money in all the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the United States and of the several States, and of the amount of the public money in the Treasury of the United States, and in the Treasury of each State, and of the amount of the public money in all the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the United States, and of the amount of the public money in all the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the several States, and of the amount of the public money in the Treasury of the United States, and in the Treasury of each State, and of the amount of the public money in all the Banks, Branches, Agencies, and Depositories, established by the authority of the United States and

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

BY JOHN S. ZIEBER, PRINCESS-ANNE, SOMERSET COUNTY, MARYLAND.

VOL. VIII. TUESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 16, 1834. NO. 25.

VILLAGE HERALD.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

Three Dollars a year, to be satisfied by $2 00 if paid in advance; or $2 50 if paid within six months.

☞ Subscriptions paid within 30 days after delivering the first number, (of the year subscribed for,) will be considered in advance.

No subscription will be taken for less than one year.

No paper will be discontinued (unless at the editor's discretion,) until all arrearages are paid off, and a failure to notify a discontinuance, previous to the expiration of the term subscribed for, will be invariably considered as a new engagement.

☞ Papers sent by mail will be subject to postage, to be paid by the subscribers.

ADVERTISEMENTS, not exceeding 3 square, will be inserted three times for $1, and 25 cents for every subsequent insertion: those exceeding a square in the same proportion.

☞ Persons advertising must bear the time of insertion, otherwise their advertisements will be continued and charged accordingly.

☞ All communications addressed to the editor must come free PATT

COURSE OF EXCHANGE.

BANKS	pr. ct. dis.	BANKS	pr ct. dis
U. States Bank	par	Wilmington and Brandywine	par
Do. Branches	par	Bank of Smyrna	do
MASSACHUSETTS		MARYLAND
Boston banks	1	Bk of Salisbury	failed
Other N'Eng. notes	1	Bk of Maryland	failed
For & Mechanics	10	Frederick City bank	2
Other R. Island notes	2	Hagerstown Grace bank	closed
CONNECTICUT		Farmers bank of Annapolis	2
Middletown banks	2	Branches of Fredk. & Easton	2
Phenix bank at Hartford	2	Susquehanna Bridge & Banking Co.	failed
Bridgeport bank	2	Hagerstown	2
Eagle bank of New Haven	failed	Westminster	2
Hartford bank	2	DISTRICT OF COL.
NEW YORK		Bk of Washington	par
N Y city banks	par	Bk of the Metrop.	par
Albany	1	Patriotic bank	failed
Troy	1	Central bank	par
Western	1	Bk of Georgetown	2
Other N York notes	1	Farmers & Mechanics bank	failed
NEW-JERSEY		Bank of Alexandria	do
Jersey City bank	failed	Bank of Virginia	2
Banks to Newark	2	Branch bank at Richmond	2
Bank of N Brunswick	failed	Bk of Washington	par
Trenton Bank Co	par	Bk of Potomac	2
Farmers bank at Mount Holly	par	Franklin bk of Alexandria	failed
Cumberland bk	do	Mechanics bk of Alexandria	failed
State bk Camden	do	VIRGINIA
At Elizabethtown	2	Richmond & Jam's	3
At Newbrunswick	2	Bk of the Valley
At Trenton	failed	Bk at Lynchburg	3¼
At Morristown	2	Bk at Charlestown	3
Paterson bk	closed	Bk at Romney	5
Sussex bank	2	N W bank of Va at Wheeling	2
PENNSYLVANIA		N. CAROLINA
Philadelphia banks	par	State bk at Raleigh and branches	4
Easton	par	Cape Fear	4
Montgomery county	do	Newbern	4
Chester "	do	S. CAROLINA
Delaware "	do	State bank of South Carolina	4
Lancaster bank	do	Union bank of do	5
Farmers bk of Lan'ster	do	GEORGIA
Harrisburg	do	State bank	8
Northumberland	do	Planters	8
Farmers bank of Bucks co	do	Augusta	8
York bank	par	Darien	8
Chambersburg	2	Macon Bk Co	no sale
Gettysburg	2	Columbus bank	10
Bank of Pittsburg	3	KENTUCKY
Greensburg	--	Bk of U. S. branch at Lex. & Louisville	par
Brownsville	3	OHIO
DELAWARE		Banks generally	one
Bank of Delaware	par	LOUISIANA
Farmers bank and branches	1	Banks of N Orleans

Cash in Market.

William Roach, Jr.

Wishes to purchase one or two hundred NEGROES,

Male and female, between the ages of 12 and 25 years, for which he will give higher prices than any purchaser who is now, or may hereafter come in market. He may be found at his store in Little Annemessex, Somerset County.

May 28, 1834.

NOTICE.

30th, April 1834.

AT a meeting of the board of Trustees of Washington Academy, on this day, the board selected Mr. William R. Warwick, steward, and fixed the board at $1.50 per week. They also passed an order allowing parents and guardians to board their sons and wards, at any place other than taverns. Per order,

WM. W HANDY, Sec'y

May 13, 1834.

BLANK DEEDS,

AND

Blank Bills of Sale for Vessels,

FOR SALE

At the Village Herald Office.

NOTICE.

THE subscribers will sell, either for cash or good paper, the one half or the whole of the fast sailing SCHOONER, called the GLEANER.

She is only one year old, newly painted, and in good order. Persons wishing to purchase will please call on ALGERNON DA SHIELL, or

ARRS, BELL & MATTHEWS

Salisbury, July 29, 1834

Look at This!

I have been at considerable expense in giving notice to persons indebted to me to make payment and at the same time informed them of my situation as to money matters, but few persons have paid any attention to my notice. I now give notice, positively for the last time, that my Books, Notes and Judgments must be settled by the 10th of SEPTEMBER next. Persons indebted on said accounts who fail to make payment by the said 10th of September I shall execute Judgments.

ALEX. S. D EVANS.

August 12, 1834

$50 Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber on Thursday the 7th day of August a negro man named JOHN about 30 years of age, about middle, neat size of height, dark complexion, large thick lower lips, and has no mark the only other marks or description I will be given in a court of Princess Anne Fair, in Somerset county, Md. or delivered to the subscriber

STEPHEN WARD

August 19 1834

Wool Carding.

THE subscriber informs the public that he has two new CARDING MACHINES, made on the improved plan, and is prepared to receive wool at his mills.

Wool at his Mills.

Four and a half miles from Salisbury, and one mile from the Upper Ferry on Wicomico River, at the same place where he had a set of Machines in wool about 10 years ago. He will not deny Mr. Ellingsworth the farmers Choice. Those who prefer it can leave their Wool at the Store of Messrs. T. Humphreys and Co., Salisbury and the Rolls will be returned to such on every Saturday. To insure good work, Wool should be well prepared before it is brought to the Machines.

CALEB ROSS.

August 12, 1834

George M. Willing

BEGS leave to inform his friends and the public generally, that he has opened his house

For the Accommodation of Travellers and others

That may call on him. His house is situated about the centre of the town, opposite the public offices and Court-House, convenient for business, where he will at all times be ready to accommodate persons that may favor him with a call. Every attention shall be paid to render comfortable his customers. His table will be furnished with the best the market can afford, and his stables supplied with attentive ostlers and good provender. No ardent spirit will be sold or kept about the house.

Boarders can be accommodated by the day, week, month, or year.

Princess-Anne, May 6, 1834.

BOOKS,

For Sale at the Office of the V. Herald.

A VARIETY OF

Theological, Historical and Miscellaneous Books.—Also, an assortment of School and Blank Books.—Primers and Toy Books. A Variety of Paper, Quills, Ink Powder, Ink-stands, Lead Pencils, Slates, and Slate Pencils, Bonnet Boards, &c.

May 20, 1834.

Notice.

Hereby forewarn all persons from hoarding or crediting my wife, Mary Daniell, on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting after the present date.

ARTHUR DANIELL.

August 12, 1834.

NOTICE.

CASH and fair prices will at all times be given for NEGROES of both sexes, by applying to

ALEXANDER S. JONES

N. B.—All communications attended to immediately

Jan. 21, 1834.

Insolvents' Papers,

For sale at this Office.

State of Maryland, sc.

SOMERSET COUNTY ORPHANS COURT,

August 12, 1834.

ON application of William H. Walles, Administrator of William Phillips, late of Somerset County, deceased, it is ordered by the Court that the said Administrator give the notice required by law for creditors to exhibit their claims against the estate of the said deceased, and that the same be published once a week for three weeks, in a paper printed in Princess Anne.

True copy Test

JAMES POLK, Reg. W. S. C.

In compliance with the above Order,

Notice is hereby given,

That the subscriber of Somerset County, hath obtained from the Orphans Court of said County, in Maryland, letters of administration on the personal estate of William Phillips, late of said county deceased. All persons having claims against the said deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the subscriber on or before the 28th day of February, 1835. they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of the said estate. Given under my hand this 12th day of August, A. D. 1834.

WM H WALLES, Adm'r of William Phillips, dec'd.

August 19 1834.

State of Maryland, sc.

SOMERSET COUNTY ORPHANS COURT.

August 5, 1834.

ON application of George W. Hitch, Administrator of Robert Hitch, late of Somerset County, deceased it is ordered by the Court that the said Administrator give the notice required by law for creditors to exhibit their claims against the estate of the said deceased, and that the same be published once a week for three weeks, in a paper printed in Princess Anne Test copy. Test,

JAMES POLK, Reg. W S. C.

In compliance with the above Order,

Notice is hereby given,

That the subscriber of Somerset County, hath obtained from the Orphans Court of said County, in Maryland, letters of administration on the personal estate of Robert Hitch, late of said County, deceased. All persons having claims against the said deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof to the subscriber on or before the 28th day of February, 1835, they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of the said estate. Given under my hand this 5th day of August, A D. 1834

GEORGE W HITCH, Adm'r. of Robert Hitch, dec'd

August 12, 1834

Land for Sale.

THE subscriber will offer at public sale, on the premises, in Hungary Neck, on WEDNESDAY the 15th of OCTOBER next, a part of a tract of land known by the name of Hazard, formerly the property of Benjamin Horner, Sen. and situated on Wicomico River. This is a desirable place for a boatman, and likewise an excellent place for planting oysters. The sale will take place at 1 o'clock P. M. when the terms will be made known.

PHILLIP COVINGTON, Sen.

Sept 2, 1834

New Cabinet Shop.

Leolin Nicholson,

CABINET MAKER,

RESPECTFULLY informs the citizens of Princess Anne and the public generally, that he has commenced the

Cabinet Making Business,

In all all its various branches, at the place under the hope, that by perseverance and industry, in connection with an experience in the above business for the last several years, to merit a share of public patronage. His Furniture will be made after the latest fashions and in the most durable manner; which he will sell as low as can be bought in Baltimore. His WORKSHOP is at the OLD WARE HOUSE, near the New Bridge.

☞ Funerals punctually attended to at the shortest notice.

August 12, 1834.

BLANKS

OF THE FOLLOWING KINDS

For Sale at the Office of the Village Herald.

Ca. Sa. against Sup'rs.	Appeal Bonds,
Do. do. after do.	Constables' Advertisements.
Ca. Sa.'s before do.
Do. do. after do.	Bills of Sale.
Warrants,	Vendition's
State Warrants,	Mortations, &c.

ECONOMY IS WEALTH!

OLD MADE NEW!

Hamilton E. Waters,

(Successor of B. Solomon,)

Clothes Dresser and Renovator,

RESPECTFULLY begs leave to inform the citizens of Princess-Anne and its vicinity, that he has opened an Establishment in this place, at Messrs Hayland & Adams', where he will attend to the Cleaning of Gentlemen's COATS, PANTALOONS, and VESTS, of every description, on an entirely new plan from that pursued by dyers. By comparing the articles cleaned by him, they are pronounced by competent judges equal to new, and which has been noticed by the public. Spots, grease, &c., taken from the cloth, and sponged out in complete form. When requested, he applies a stiffening, and restores the color to faded seams. He can colour a garment to its original beauty, without any injury to the fabric. The steaming process not made use of.

To the Ladies.

Ladies' Habits and Boat Cloaks, spotted or faded of their pristine beauty, restored to their original colors, with the greatest ease.

N. B.—To persons disposed to patronize him in his business, he pledges himself, from his work is not done to their satisfaction, he will make no charge for his labor.

Gentlemen who may please to patronize him, can have their clothes returned in a short time.

August 26, 1834.

Real Estate for Sale.

BY virtue of a commission issued out of Somerset County Court, the subscribers, commissioners, will expose to public sale on WEDNESDAY the 17th of next SEPTEMBER, at the hour of 11 o'clock A. M. on the premises, the

Real Estate

Of Stephen Adams, deceased, situate, lying and being in Somerset county.

The terms of sale will be as follows

Fifty dollars of the purchase money arising from said sale to be paid in cash by the purchaser or purchasers, and the remainder thereof to be paid in two equal instalments, on a credit of twelve months and eighteen months, bearing interest from the day of sale—the purchaser or purchasers giving bond or bonds to the several representatives for their respective proportions of the net amount of sale of said lands, to be approved by the undersigned commissioners.

JOHN H COBORN,
ROBERT I HENRY,
THOMAS ROBERTSON, Son
JOHN A. LANKFORD,
Commissioners

August 26, 1834.

Fishing Tackle.

Brush, Basket, and Wooden Ware Store.

REED Poles of all sizes, Rubed 2, 3, 4, and 5 joints, Hog Silk, Sea Grass, Thread and Cotton Fishing Lines, with and without Hooks; Kirby Hooks, all sizes; Swivels, Cork and Quill Floats and sinkers, Market and Clothes Baskets, Brooms of all kinds; Neat Boxes; Barrel and Half Barrel Covers; Painted Buckets, Hoops and Water Sifters; Candle Wicks, Bellows, Tubs, Churns; Bowls; Covered Buckets, Cord and Tassels; Wash Boards, Butter Prints assorted; Spoons and Paddles, Lemon Squeezers; Muddlers, and Spatlers.

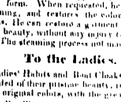
Wholesale and retail, on accommodating terms, by

JOSEPH DUKEHART & CO.
No 169 Baltimore st.

Basket Carriages and Baskets made and repaired.

Sept. 2, 1834.

COACH, GIG & HARNESS MAKING.



FURNELL B. CAREY, takes the method of informing his friends and the public generally, that he still continues the Coach, Gig and Harness Making, and has taken in partnership Mr Geo. H Schleigh from Baltimore, an experienced workman. The firm will be conducted here thereafter under the title of

Carey & Schleigh,

At the old stand in Quantico, where they flatter themselves they can be enabled to execute work in the different branches with neatness and despatch, and of as good materials, and as workmanlike manner, as in any shop on the peninsula. They solicit a share of public patronage.

The public's obt. serv'ts

FURNELL B. CAREY
GEORGE H. SCHLEIGH.

July 15, 1834.

Constable's Sale.

BY virtue of four writs of Vendition Exponas, issued by Isaac M. Adams, a Justice of the Peace in and for Somerset county, and to me directed, one at the suit of John S. Zieber, and two at the suit of Walls & Cannon, against Lazarus Maddux; also, one at the suit of Levin Wilson, administrator of William Cluff, against Lazarus Maddux and Edward Murray. Also, by virtue of five writs of Fieri Facias issued by Isaac M. Adams a Justice of the Peace, one at the suit of Burroughs & Davis, assignee of Hall & Dakes; one at the suit of Walls & Cannon for the use of Pengie Townsend, for the use of Peggy Biggin, one at the suit of Hall & Dakes, use of Pengie Townsend, use of Peggy Biggin, against Lazarus Maddux; one at the suit of Pengie Townsend, assignee of Walls & Hall, against Lazarus Maddux, Levin M. Dall and Benjamin Maddux, and one at the suit of Burroughs & Davis, assignee of Hall & Dakes, against Lazarus Maddux, Samuel Maddux and George P. Jones—I have seized and taken in execution as the property of said Lazarus Maddux, to wit: one black mare, one bay mare, one yoke of oxen and ox yoke and bows, one ox wain, 6 hogs, more or less, two head of cattle, the balance of time of servitude of a negro man named Dick, the balance of time of servitude of a negro woman named Nacy, the crop of Corn now growing on the land cultivated by the said Maddux, a part of a tract or parcel of land known by the name of Vineyard, and a part or parcel of land known by the name of Baltimore, both parcels together containing 120 acres, more or less, which I shall proceed to sell at public sale on SATURDAY the 20th of SEPTEMBER, at Burroughs & Davis' store, at Dublin, to the highest and best bidder, for cash, to satisfy the above mentioned writs and cost. Sale to commence at the hour of ten o'clock A. M.

WILLIAM CUSTON, Const

August 26, 1834.

Insolvent Notice.

THE petition of THOMAS F. DISHARON, is hereby notified that he has applied for the benefit of the Insolvent Laws of Maryland, and the first Tuesday in the next November Term of Somerset County Court, is the day appointed for his appearance before the Judges of the said Court, to answer such interrogatories as may then and there be propounded to him relative to his said application.

July 29, 1834

Constable's Sale.

BY virtue of four writs of First Facias, issued by John P. Bonner, a Justice of the Peace for Somerset county, and to me directed, one at the suit of Wm. Roach & Son, use of Harriet Miles, use of Jacob Collins, one at the suit of Wm. Roach, Jr. use of Jacob Collins; one at the suit of Harriet Miles, use of Jacob Collins and one at the suit of Jacob Collins, against Travers Collins I have seized and taken in execution the following property, to wit: two Beds and Furniture, ten Chairs, four Chests, two Pine Tables, one Oven, one Spider, one Pot, one Looking Glass, one Loom, one Gauge, one Ox yoke, one Ox cart, 8 Hoes, one Ox Chain, three Hogs, one Gun, one dozen Cups and Saucers, one dozen Plates, eight Tea Spoons, one Tea Pot, one Bird, one House and Lot on Annamessex, and the crop of Corn now growing on the ground, which I shall proceed to sell at public sale, on the premises, on WEDNESDAY the 24th day of SEPTEMBER next between the hours of 10 and 2 o'clock, P. M. to the highest and best bidder, for cash, to satisfy the above mentioned writs.

HENRY S. HANDY, Const

Sept 2, 1834

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a writ of Venditioni Exponas, issued out of Somerset County Court, and to me directed, at the suit of Powell & Fedeman, against William Hallington and Charles E. Stanton I have levied seized and taken in execution the following lands and tenements, to wit: one half of a House and Lot in Sharptown, a tract of land called Robertson's Delight, containing 16 acres, more or less, one negro man named Aaron, one negro girl named Cherry, 2 Beds and Furniture, the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of William Hallington, all of which I shall expose to public sale, on THURSDAY the 25th day of SEPTEMBER next, at the residence of William Hallington, in Sharptown, to the highest and best bidder for cash, to satisfy the above mentioned writ and costs, and county levy and officers' fees for 1834. Sale to commence at 2 o'clock, P. M.

S. G. HOLBROOK, Shff.

Sept. 2, 1834.

PRINTING.

OF THE KINDS OF

BOOKS, PAMPHLETS,

Blanks, Cards, Labels,

BILLHEADS, &c.

Is thankfully received and neatly done, At the Herald Office.

PRO PATRIA LIBERTATIS.

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess Anne, Md.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1834.

Nominations of Talbot county for members of the Legislature—By the Jackson party, Philip Hopper, Martin O. Colston, Philip F. Thomas, and Perry Robinson, they were nominated on last Tuesday—Everyone of the Tuesday preceding the Anti-Jackson party nominated, Samuel Humbleton, Esq. Solomon Nicklish, George Dudley Jr., and Joseph Beck, as their candidates for the Legislature.

The Jackson party in Queen Ann's county have nominated Samuel Roberts, John B. Thomas, Robert Lurmmore, and Wm. S. Hamil—

The President was to start for the seat of Government on Wednesday, and he is now probably on his mountain home, in sequoia at the "Hermitage" being over

The Hon. Duncan S. Walker has resigned his seat as a Representative in Congress from the City of New York

We learn from the Baltimore papers, that the Baltimore Rail Road, or Company, the Commercial Bank, on that city, have been selected as a depository of the public money.

Bolivar's Wife Dead.—A gentleman has received from Paris, as late as the 14th August: More than 2 months in advance, refused to work on the mines, in the Island of Antigua and Mondrisa are under arrest. The Sardinian expedition against Tunis has been tried and found wanting. The Spaniards have refused to make peace, the Carlists they will fight.

After our last was in press, we were informed by a gentleman, just from the Springs, that Henry Clay was in good health, and in good spirits, and was expected to be with his family in a few days. We have not had the pleasure of seeing him, but we have no reason to doubt the correctness of the information, and we hope it may be verified to the people of Somerset.

ARRIVAL EXTRAORDINARY.

On Saturday morning the 20th inst. at the mouth of Wicomico River, Cap. Tilghman, to the beach, not a point Lewis, or Point of Debbard, John Bull on a Tour to Europe, Cap. Tilghman, Cap. Tilghman, Cap. Tilghman

POETRY.

THE BRIDAL RING.

This little golden circle wear,
'Twill bring thee life's best treasure;
Unchanging trust, and fondest care
Affection without measure!

Thine eye is bright in guileless truth,
And all its sweet revealings;
Tell of the buoyancy of youth,
Its warm, unwasted feelings.

Before thee—fresh as morning dews,
An untried world is spreading;
Veil'd in the soft and hallowing hues,
That fancy's light is shedding—

And when, amid its glowing bowers,
Thy youthful eye reposes—
See'st thou the many falling flowers,
The thorns, and sentless roses?

Gaily, you sparkling stream lies on,
When zenith beams are slanting:
But half its living lustre's gone,
Long ere the Sun's declining—

Thus—ofttimes fraught with earth's alloy,
Th' cooling tide of feeling,
Pass, with each radiant tint of joy,
As time is ever stealing—

Then, dearest, wear this hollow'd ring,
Now, in thy young heart's gladness—
Tho' coming years their shadows fling,
"Twill soften deepest sadness! M.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Tiger's Cave.

About three years ago, when I was at residence in Mexico, I embarked for Guayaquil, in order to visit some of the celebrated mountains of Quito. On arriving at Guayaquil, I found there two travellers, who were preparing to take the same route. These were Captain Wharton, an English naval officer, and a young midshipman, named Lincoln. The frigate, which Wharton commanded had suffered considerably in her voyage through the South Seas, and as it was now undergoing the necessary repairs, Wharton resolved to devote some of his leisure time to visiting the forests and mountains of Quito. It was quickly agreed that we should [illegible] together, I found Wharton a frank and open hearted man; and his young favorite, Lincoln, a youth of eighteen, had a handsome and honest countenance with an expression of determined bravery.

We set out on a fine morning, attended by my huntsman, Frank, and two Indian guides. On beginning to ascend the mountains, the scenery became more enchanting at every step. The mighty Andes, like a vast amphitheatre, covered to their summits with gigantic trees, towered aloft; the snow crested Chimborazo raised its proud front; the terrific Cotopaxi sent forth volumes of smoke and flame; and innumerable other mountains, for miles, from the far spreading Cordilleras, faded away in the distance. With an involuntary shudder, I entered the narrow path that leads into the magnificent forest. The monkeys leaped from branch to branch, the parrots chattered incessantly, and the eagles from amidst the tall cypresses whose they had built their nests, sent down a wild cry. The further we advanced, new objects presented themselves at every side; the stately palms, with their broad sword-like leaves, the singular aspidras, the splendid magnolia, the tall aloe tree, and the evergreen oak, reared themselves among the sweet fragrant orange groves, with whose fragrance was blended the aromatic perfumes of the vanilla.

Towards evening our guides began to quicken their pace, and we hastened after them. In a short time they entered a clearing of [illegible], which we quickly discovered the cause. By the light of a large fire, which was kindled in an open space of the forest, we descried a little Indian village, consisting of several huts erected on trunks of trees, and to which were appended ladders of reeds. The Indian who was employed in replenishing the fire answered the cry of our guides, in a similar tone, and after a short conference, we were conducted into one of the huts where we passed the night.

Early in the morning, we again resumed our way through the deep shade of the forest, and in due time stopped to enjoy a repast under the broad leaved palm. Suddenly, one of the Indians motioned us to be silent, and putting his ear to the ground, appeared to be listening to some sound, which, however, was not heard by us. We paused and attentively watched his motions. In a few minutes, he raised his head, beckoned us to follow him, and he leaped lightly forward, and laid his ear to the ground, and shortly after we heard a faint voice shriek a faint help. We hurried on, with difficulty restraining our young mahogany from advancing before the rest of the party, and had proceeded but a short way, when the shriek was repeated close beside us. We stopped, on a motion from our guides, who, parting gently the intervening boughs, gave to view a scene which caused us hastily to grasp our arms.

In an open space blazed a large fire, round which were seated several men in tattered uniforms, they were armed, and appeared to be holding a consultation regarding a beautiful Indian girl, who was bound by cords to a tree. The Indians prepared their bows and arrows, but, he bound them to desist until we gave the signal for attack. On the approach of the conference, one of the men approached the girl and said, "Say, you will not comfort us in your village?—No—Nay" answered the young Indian, firmly but sobbing—"never child" he repeated, with a scornful laugh, "Say you will not be persuaded to lead us to your hut?—No," she again replied—"we will see how long the lily will bring the thorn"—and with these words the ruffian snatched a brand from the fire, and again approached her. "Go bestowed to get ready our guns; but so impetuously of Lincoln could not be restrained, and casting his form him he sprang sword just as the brand had touched the shoulder of the girl, and struck the villian helpless to the earth. At the same instant, the Indian arrows whistled through the air, and wounded two of the others, but not, it appeared, dangerously, as they fled with their terrified comrades.

Our midshipman, meanwhile, had unbound the girl, who, the instant she was free, knelt down before him, and poured out her gratitude in the most impassioned language. We learned that her name was Yanna, and that her parents dwelt in a village in one of the deepest recesses of the forest; that she had left home early in the morning to gather cocoa—and that, having strayed too far, she had suddenly found herself surrounded by the ruffians from whom we had just rescued her, and who had endeavored, by threats and violence, to force her to guide them to the village we could not withstand her prayers to accompany her home. There we were quickly surrounded by the Indians, whom we found to possess an almost European fairness of complexion. Yanna immediately ran up to her parents, who were chief of the tribe, and spoke to them with animation, using all the while the most expressive gestures. As soon as she had finished her narrative, her parents hastened forward, and kneeling before us, kissed our hands with expressions of the deepest gratitude, and the whole of the tribe knelt along with them, pouring forth mingled thanks and blessings. Then on a sudden they started up, and seized us, they bore us in triumph to the hut of the chief, where we were treated with the utmost hospitality. Wharton smiled to me as he remarked, that our young midshipman and Yanna had disappeared together. Shortly after, Yanna returned, bahing Lincoln with one hand, and carrying in the other a chaplet of flowers, which she immediately placed on his head. On the following morning we again set out, and as we parted, the beautiful eyes of Yanna were filled with tears.

On leaving the village, we continued to wind round Chimborazo's wide base; but its snowy head no longer shone above us in clear brilliancy, for a dense fog was gradually gathering round it, and announced their approach of a violent storm. We soon found that their fears were well founded. The fog rapidly covered and obscured the whole of the mountain; the atmosphere was suffocating, and yet so humid that the steel work of our watches was covered with rust, and the watches stopt. The river beside which we were travelling rushed down with still greater impetuosity, and from the clefts of the rocks which lay on the left of our path, were suddenly precipitated small rivulets, that bore the roots of trees, and loosened serpents along with them. These rivulets often came down so suddenly and so violently that we had great difficulty in preserving our footing. The thunder at length began to roll, and resounded through out the mountainous passes. Then came the lightning, flash following flash—above, around, beneath—every where a sheet of fire. We sought a temporary shelter in a cleft of the rocks, whilst one of our guides hastened on to seek a more secure asylum. In a short time he returned—he had discovered a spacious cavern. We proceeded thither immediately, and with great difficulty and not a little danger, at last got into it.

The noise and raging of the storm continued with so much violence that we could not hear the sound of our own voices. I had stationed myself near the entrance of the cave, and could observe, through the opening, which was straight and narrow, the singular scene without. The highest cedar trees were struck down, or bent like reeds, monkeys and parrots lay strewed upon the ground, killed by the falling branches; the water had collected in the path we had just passed, and hurried along like a mountain stream. When the storm had somewhat abated, our guides ventured out in order to ascertain if it were possible to continue our journey. The cave in which we had taken refuge was so extremely dark, that, if we moved a few paces from the entrance, we could not see an inch before us, and we were debating as to the propriety of leaving it before the Indians came back. When we suddenly heard a singular groaning or growling in the farther end of the cavern, which instantly fixed all our attention. Wharton and myself listened anxiously; but our daring and incomsiderate young friend together with our huntsman, crept upon their hands and knees, and endeavor d to discover, by groping, from whence the sound proceeded. They had not advanced far into the cavern, before we heard them utter an exclamation of surprise; and they returned to us, each carrying in their arms an animal singularly marked, and about the size of a cat, seemingly of great strength and power. Wharton had scarcely glanced at them when he exclaimed in consternation, "Good God! we have come in the den of——" He was interrupted by a fearful cry of dis may from our guides who came rushing precipitately towards us, crying out "A tiger! a tiger!"—and, at the same time, with extraordinary rapidity, they climbed up a cedar tree, which stood at the entrance of the cave, and hid themselves among the branches.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise, which rendered me motionless for a moment had subsided, I grasped my fire arms. Wharton had already regained his composure and self possessing; and he called on to assist him instantly in blocking up the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which fortunately lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and we were lost beyond redemption if it reached the entrance before we could get it closed; ere this was done, we could distinctly see the tiger bounding towards the spot, and stooping in order to creep into his den by the narrow opening. At this fearful moment, our exertions were successful, and the great stone kept the wild beast at bay. There was a small open space, however, left between the top of the entrance and the stone, through which we could see the head of the animal, illuminated by its glowing eyes, which it rolled, glaring with fury upon us. Its frightful roaring too resounded to the depths of the cavern, and was answered by the hoarse growling of the cubs, which Lincoln and Frank had seized from them. Our ferocious enemy attempted first to remove the stone with his powerful claws, and then to push it with his head from its place, and these efforts proving abortive, served only to increase his wrath. He uttered a frightful howl, and his flaming eyes darted into the darkness of our retreat.

"Now is the time to fire at him!" said Wharton, with his usual calmness; "aim at his eyes, the ball will go through his brain, and we shall then have a chance to get rid of him."

Frank seized his double barrelled gun and Lincoln his pistols. The former placed the muzzle within a few inches of the tiger, and Lincoln did the same. At Wharton's command they both drew the triggers at the same moment; but no shot followed. The tiger, who seemed aware that the flash indicated an attack upon him, sprang, growling, from the entrance, but feeling himself unhurt, immediately turned back again, and stationed himself at his former place. The powder in both pieces was wet—they therefore proceeded to draw the useless loading, whilst Wharton and myself hastened to seek our powder flask. It was so extremely dark, that we were obliged to grope about the cave, and at last coming in contact with the cubs, we heard a rustling noise, as if they were playing with some metal substance, which we soon discovered was the canister we were looking for. Most unfortunately, however, the animals had pushed off the lid with their claws, and the powder was strewed over the damp earth and rendered entirely useless. This discovery excited the greatest consternation.

"All is over now," said Wharton; "We have only to choose whether we shall die of hunger, or upon the entrance to the bloodthirsty monster without, and so make a quicker end of the matter."

So saying he placed himself close behind the stone which for the moment defended us, and looked undauntedly upon the lightning eyes of the tiger. Lincoln stood and swore, and Frank took a piece of strong cord from his pocket and hastened to the farther end of the cave, I knew not with what design. We soon, however, heard a low stifled groaning, and the tiger, who heard it also, became more restless and disturbed than ever. He went backwards and forwards before the entrance of the cave in the most wild and impetuous manner, then stood still, and then stretching out his neck in the direction of the forest, broke forth in a deafening howl. One two Indian guides took advantage of this opportunity to discharge several arrows from the tree. He was struck more than once, but the light weapons bounded back harmless from his thick skin. Although however, one of them struck him near the eye, and the arrow remained sticking in the wound. He now broke down in the wildest fury, sprang at the tree and tore it with his claws. But having at length succeeded in getting rid of the arrow, he became more calm, and laid himself down as before in front of the cave.

Frank now returned from the farther end of the den, and a glance showed us what he had been doing. He had strangled the two cubs, and before we were aware of his intention, he threw them through the opening to the tiger. No sooner did the animal perceive them, than he gazed earnestly upon them, and began to examine them closely, turning them cautiously from side to side. As soon as he became aware that they were dead, he uttered so piercing a howl of sorrow that we were obliged to put our hands to our ears. When I censured my huntsman for the rashness and cruelty of the action, I perceived by his blunt and abrupt endeavors that he also had lost all hopes of rescue, and with it all sense of the distinction between master and servant.

The thunder had now ceased, and the storm had sunk to a gentle gale, we could hear the songs of birds in the neighboring forest, and the sunbeams streaming among the branches. The contrast only made our situation more horrible. The tiger had laid himself down beside his whelps. He was a beautiful animal, of great size and strength, and his limbs being stretched out at full length, displayed his immense power of muscle. All at once another roar was heard at a distance, and the tiger immediately rose and answered it with a mournful howl. At the same instant our Indians uttered a shriek, which announced that some new danger threatened us. A few moments confirmed our worst fears, for another tiger not quite so large as the former, came rapidly towards the spot where we were. "This enemy will prove more cruel than the other," said Wharton; "for this is the female, and she knows no pity for those who deprive her of her young."

The look which the tigress gave, when she had examined the bodies of her cubs, surpassed every conception of the horrible that can be for a fiend, and the tiger mingled his mournful cries with her's. Suddenly her roaring was lowered to a hoarse grumbling, and we saw her cautiously stretch out her head, extend her nostrils, and look round as if in search of the murderers of her young. Her eyes quickly fell upon us, and she made a swing forward with the intention of penetrating to our place of safety. Perhaps she might have been enabled by her immense strength to push away the stone, had not we with all our united power, held it against her. When she found that all her efforts were fruitless, she approached the tiger who lay stretched out beside his cubs, and he arose and joined in her hollow roaring. They stood together for a few moments as if in consultation, and they suddenly went off at a rapid pace, and disappeared from our sight. Their howling died away in the distance, and then entirely ceased. We now began to entertain better hopes of our condition; but Wharton shook his head—"Do not flatter yourselves," said he, "with the belief that these animals will let us escape out of their sight till they have had their revenge. The hours we have to live are numbered."

Nevertheless there still appeared a chance of our rescue, for to our surprise, we saw both of our Indians standing before the entrance, and heard them call to us to seize the only possibility of flight, for that the tigers had gone round the hight, possibly to seek another inlet to the cave, all the greatest haste the stone was put aside, and we stepped forth from our place. That we had encountered a living grave, Wharton was the last who left it, he was unwilling to loose his double-barrelled gun, and stopped to take it up the, he thought only of making our escape the tiger, though at a distance, and completely struck into a side path. By with which the storm had strewed our way, and the slipperiness of the road of flight was slow and difficult.

We had proceeded thusior a quater of an hour, when we found that our way led along the edge of a rocky cliff with innumerable fissures. We had just entered upon it, when suddenly the Indians who were before us, uttered one of their piercing shrieks, and we immediately became aware that the tigers where in pursuit of us. Urged by despair, we rushed towards one of the breaks or gulfs in our way, over which was thrown a bridge of reeds, that sprung up and down at every step, and could be trod with safety by the light foot of the Indians alone. Deep in the hollow below rushed an impetuous stream, and a thousand pointed and jagged rocks threatened destruction on every side. Lincoln, my huntsman, and myself passed over the chasm in safety; but Wharton was still in the middle of the waving bridge, and endeavoring to steady himself, when both the tigers were seen to issue from the adjoining forest; and the moment they descried us they bounded towards us with dreadful roarings. Meantime Wharton had nearly gained the safe side of the gulf, and we were all clambering up the rocky cliff except Lincoln who remained at the reedy bridge to assist his friend to step upon firm ground. Wharton, though the ferocious animals where close upon him, never lost his courage or presence of mind. As soon as he had gained the edge of the cliff he knelt down, and with his sword divided the fastenings by which the bridge was attached to the rock. He expected that an effectual barrier would thus be put to the further progress of our pursuers; but he was mistaken, for he had scarcely accomplished his task, when the tigress, without a moments pause, rushed towards the chasm and attempted to bound over it. It was a fearful sight to see the mighty animal for a moment in the air above the abyss; but her strength was not equal to the distance—she fell into the gulf, and before she reached the bottom she was torn into a thousand pieces by the jagged points of the rocks. Her fate did not in the least dismay her companion, he followed her with an immense spring, and reached the opposite side, but only with his fore claws, and thus he clung to the edge of the precipice, endeavoring to gain a footing The Indians again uttered a wild shriek, as of all hope had been lost But Wharton who was nearest the edge of the rock, advanced cowardly towards the tiger, and struck his sword in the animal's breast Maddened with pain, the furious beast collected all his strength, and flying one of his hind legs upon the edge of the cliff, he seized Wharton by the thigh. The heroic man still preserved his fortitude he spurred the siem of a spear with his left hand, to steady and support himself, while with his right he wrenched, and violently turned the sword that was still in the breast of the tiger All this was the work of an instant. The Indians, Frank, and myself, hastened to his assistance; but Lincoln who was advancing at his side, had seized Wharton's gun, which lay near upon the ground, and struck so power ful a blow with the butt end upon the head of the tiger, that the animal, stunned and over-powered, let go his hold, and fell back into the abyss. The unhappy Lincoln has ever, had not calculated upon the force of his blow; he staggered forward, rested upon the edge of the precipice, extended his hand to seize upon any thing to save himself—but in vain. For an instant he hovered over the gulf, and then fell into it, to rise no more.

We gave vent to a shriek of horror—then for a few minutes there was a dead and awful silence. When we were able to revert to our own condition, I found Wharton lying insensible on the brink of the precipice. We examined his wound, and found that he was torn dreadfully. The Indians collected some herbs, the application of which stopped the bleeding, and we then bound up the mangled limb It was now evening, and we were obliged to resolve upon passing the night under the shelter of some cleft in the rocks. The Indians made a fire to keep the wild beasts from our cassaly, but to a sleep visited my eyes. I sat at Wharton's bed and listened to his deep breathings. It became more and more hard and deep, and his hand grasped violently, as if in convulsive movements. His consciousness had not returned, and in this situation he passed the whole night In the morning the Indians proposed to bear our wounded friend back to the village we had left the previous day They plaited some strong branches together, and formed a hight to repose the gulf It was a mournful procession On the way Wharton suddenly opened his eyes, but instantly closed them again, and lay immoveable as before Towards evening we drew near our destination; and our Indian friends, when they saw our situation, expressed the deepest sympathy; but the whole tribe assembled round us, and utter ed piercing cries of grief, when they learnt poor Lincoln's fate Yanna burst into tears; and her brothers hastened away, accompanied by other Indians, in search of the body. I remained with our wounded friend, he still lay immoveable to every thing around him Sleep at length overpowered me. Towards morning, a song of lamentation and wailing aroused me—it was from the Indians, who were returning with Lincoln's body.—Yanna was weeping beside it. I hastened to meet them, but was glad to turn back again, when my eyes fell upon the torn and lifeless body of our young companion. The Indians had laid him upon the tiger's skins, which they had strewed with green boughs; and they now bore him to the burial place of their tribe Yanna sacrificed on his tomb the most beautiful ornament she possessed—her long black hair—an offering upon the grave of him who, it is possible, had first awakened the feelings of tenderness in her innocent bosom.

On the third day, as I sat at Wharton's bed, he suddenly merely he raised his head, and opening his eyes gazed fixedly upon a corner of the room. His countenance changed in a most extraordinary manner; it was deadly pale, and seemed to be turning to marble. I saw that the hand of death was upon him. "All is over," he gasped out, while his looks continued upon the same spot; "there it stands!"—and he fell back and expired.

The Memory of Joy untold sore.—These moments will then seem to you but as yonder islands that stud the Rhone—the stream lingers by them for a moment, and then hurries on its rapid course; they vary, but do not interrupt the tide. Rather let these barks be as our lives; and this river the one thought that flows eternally by both, blessing each with undying freshness.

THE FAITHLESS HUSBAND.

From a work lately published.

There is no suffering more acute than that felt by an affectionate and sensitive mind, mourning over the violation of nuptial vows. This suffering is not confined to the unhappy woman, in the dwelling of poverty, who, at the midnight hour, trembles, as she hears the approaching footsteps of her drunken husband. You may go into many an elegantly furnished abode and find the broken-hearted wife and mother, surrounded by external comfort, and yet in solitude, and silence, and tears.—There is nothing that will compensate for the neglect of those we love. "I have seen," says a quaint writer, "she accomplished wife, before twenty moons had waned since she changed her name, sitting alone and solitary as the sparrow on the housetop. Perhaps her health was now so delicate that the nourishing care of her partner was almost necessary to her existence; but he was gone away to some dissipated club. Perhaps he returns at midnight, breathing the fumes of wines, and storming with the smoke of segars."

You call him a brute who breaks his wife's head; so he also is a brute who breaks her heart; and now many an unhappy wife sits friendless and alone, during all the hours of the evening, and even of the night, when her faithless husband is seeking his pleasures in other society. How painful must be her reflections on thus finding her fondest anticipations disappointed, and the fireside, at which she hoped to be blessed with sympathy and society, deserted and desolate. That man deserves not the generous affections of a wife, who will not invite her love by the respects and honor of personal attention. It is not a few gaudy trinkets and occasional freaks of fondness that can give your wife a happy heart, and make her home a happy one. There must be real substantial kindness, the unequivocal evidence of love for the society and joys of home.

It is not unfrequently that a wife mourns over the alienated affections of her husband, when she has made no effort herself to strengthen and increase his attachment. She thinks, because he once loved her, he ought always to love her, and she neglects those attentions which first enchanted his heart. Many a wife is thus the cause of her own neglect and sorrow.—That woman deserves not a husband's generous love, who will not greet him with smiles as he returns from the labors of the day; who will not try to chain him to his home by the sweet enchantment of a cheerful room and a cheerful heart.—There is not one man in a thousand so unfeeling as to withstand such an influence, and break away from such a home.

A Toast helped out.—At a 4th of July celebration in Delaware, where General Ross presided, a militia colonel, who was sitting next to him, was called upon for a toast. Not having prepared himself before hand, he was a little puzzled what to give. He thought a minute, and finally concluded it should be something of a military nature; but precisely what he had not fully determined, when his arose and thundered forth:

"The Military of our country—may they never want"—here he hesitated—"may they never want"—here he boggled—"may they never want—Gentlemen" he came to a full stop, and looking imploingly at the president, whispered, "what the devil shall I say next?"

"And never be wanted," whispered back the General.

"And never be wanted," roared out the Colonel.

Thus they made between them a capital toast, which neither of them, and perhaps nobody else, would originally have thought of—reading, when put together, as follows;

"The Military of our country—may they never want, and never be wanted."

N. Y. Paper.

God Willing.—It is very common for persons, in announcing a religious meeting, to say, such or such an assemblage will take place, at such or such or such a time, and for such or such purposes, God Willing. But in advertising any matter of business, the same sort of persons do not express any submission or deference to the will of God. They say, for instance, on such a day and at such an hour, I will sell at auction such and such kind of goods, and in like manner and manner they advertise their intentions to do any other kind of worldly business.

A negro preacher says, Dere will be preaching in dis here place on Monday night all next week, God willin, and on Tuesday night, wedder, or no.

But the persons above mentioned confine their whether or no solely to their worldly matters, expressing all due piety and dependence on God in matters of religion. Now wherefore is this difference? They announce a meeting, the express object of which is to worship the Almighty and therefore they cannot suppose he will object to it. Perhaps, however, it is this very coincidence, that he will not object, which, in this case makes them so very willing to appeal to him; while, in their dealings between man and man, not being quite so certain of his entire approbation, they think it the most prudent way to say nothing about it.

Hope.—They conversed on the future; they made plans; in the wide sterility of the world they laid out the garden of household love, and filled it with flowers; forgetful of the wind that scatters, and the frost that kills.

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

BY JOHN S. ZIEBER, PRINCESS-ANNE, SOMERSET COUNTY, MARYLAND.

VOL. VIII. TUESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 11, 1834. NO. 33.

VILLAGE HERALD.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

Three Dollars a year, to be satisfied by $2 00 if paid in advance; or $2 50 if paid within six months.

☞ Subscriptions paid within 30 days after delivering the first number, (of the year subscribed for,) will be considered in advance.

No subscription will be taken for less than one year.

No paper will be discontinued, unless at the editor's discretion, until all arrearages are paid off; and a failure to notify a discontinuance, previous to the expiration of the term subscribed for, will be invariably considered as a new engagement.

☞ Papers sent by mail will be subject to postage, to be paid by the subscribers.

Advertisements exceeding a square, will be inserted three times for $1, and 25 cents for every subsequent month; those exceeding a square in the same proportion.

☞ Persons advertising must limit the time of insertion, otherwise their advertisements will be continued and charged according ly.

☞ All communications addressed to the editor must come post paid.

COURT OF EXCHANGE.

BANKS. [illegible]

U. States Bank [illegible]

Do. Branches [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Virginia [illegible]

[illegible]

Fay. & Mechanics [illegible]

Other Banks in Lynchburg [illegible]

[illegible]

Phenix Bank [illegible]

Hartford [illegible]

Bank of Utica [illegible]

Bank of Troy [illegible]

[illegible]

N York [illegible]

Albany [illegible]

Troy [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Rochester [illegible]

Bank of Genesee [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Pittsburg [illegible]

Farm. & Drov. Bank of Rich'd [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Norfolk [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Washington [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Alexandria [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Wheeling [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Lexington [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Louisville [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Augusta [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Mobile [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Tuscaloosa [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Nashville [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Knoxville [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Cincinnati [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Chillicothe [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Zanesville [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Steubenville [illegible]

[illegible]

Bank of Wooster

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess-Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1834.

☞ The Somerset County Temperance Convention will assemble at the M. E. Church in Princess Anne, on NEXT SATURDAY, at 11 o'clock A. M. Societies that may fail to appoint delegates to this Convention may be represented by the delegates who attended the last Spring Convention—they being entitled to seats in such cases.

Nov. 11, 1834.

The Fall Term of our County Court will commence its session on next Monday.

Cholera.—Several cases of Cholera have been reported by the Board of Health of Baltimore, but it is not apprehended that the disease will range extensively, the season at which it is usually most severe having too far advanced.

UNITED STATES SENATE.

This body is composed of 48 members—two from each State—one-third of whom are chosen every two years. The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators are prescribed in each State by the representatives thereof. And if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

The constitutional terms of 16 Senators will expire on the 4th of March next, to wit:

*Hoome, of N. C.	Frelinghuysen, do J
*White, of Tenn.	Clayton, of Del.
*King, of Ala.	Leigh, of Va.
*Robinson, of Ill.	Cobbum, of N. C.
Sprague, of Me.	Waggaman, of La.
Bell, of N. H.	Bibb, of Ky.
Silsbee, of Mass.	Pondexter, of Miss
Knight, of R. I.	King, of Ga.

There are also 3 vacancies by resignation, viz:

*Wilkins, of Pa.	Chambers, of Md.
*Forsyth, of Ga.

*Administration men—all the others are opposed to the present Administration.

NEW YORK ELECTION.

To our friends at Cambridge and Philadelphia we are indebted for the latest news of this election. We have returns from the cities of New York and Albany, and from six counties. Marcy and Tracy are the Administration candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor—and Seward and Stilwell are the candidates of the Opposition. The N. Y. Times of last Thursday says:—

The following returns of majorities were received up to 12 o'clock last night, at Tammany Hall.

	Marcy.	Seward.
1st Ward	—	814 official
2d "	—	454 "
3d "	—	534 "
4th "	58 official	—
5th "	—	81 "
7th "	390 estimated	—
7th "	297 official	—
8th "	203 "	—
9th "	303 "	—
10th "	600 "	—
11th "	1119 "	—
12th "	924 "	—
13th "	454 "	—
14th "	390 "	—
15th "	—	324
	4511	2005
	2005
	2506 maj. for Marcy & Tracy.

The Evening Post says the majority for the Administration candidates for Congress will vary little from that of the Governor.

Three Wards of the city of Albany have been heard from each of which gave a small majority for Marcy.

King's county.—Majority for Marcy and Democratic Congressional candidates each about 700.

Orange county.—Democratic majority reported 150.

Dutchess county.—A letter to the editor of the Times says, "this county will give the Democratic ticket at least 1000 majority."

Ulster county.—From the received returns it is supposed this county will give Marcy at least 1500 majority.

Ohio.—The returns of the late election have now all come in except from one county—Lucas has a majority of between 3000 and 4000. In our last Tuesday's Herald we gave all the names of members of Congress elect in this State, but by some accidental move Judge Crane was placed in the left hand sub-column, under the Administration head. It should have been on the other side—the Judge is of the Opposition.

The Legislature of New Jersey met at Trenton on last Tuesday a week, and chose Garrett D. Wall, Esq. a Senator of the U. States from the 4th of next March, in place of Mr. Frelinghuysen, whose term of service will expire at that time.

Peter D. Vroom, Esq. has been re-elected Governor, and all the other officers Jackson of course.

South Carolina.—The elections for members of Congress in South Carolina, have resulted in the choice of the following persons:

Nullifiers.	Union men.
Warner R. Davis,	R. J. Manning,
F. W. Pickens.	Gen. J. Rogers,
J. H. Hammond,
Wm. J. Grayson,
H. L. Pinckney,
R. B. Campbell,
John K. Griffin,

Mr. Pinckney's majority in the Charleston district is about 180, and that of Mr. Davis only 70.

The autocrat of Russia, it is said, is about to visit Vienna. He is labouring, it is affirmed, under a serious pulmonary affection, and a Paris paper alluding at the same time to the coincidence of the illness of Don Pedro, says, "it is remarkable that the two youngest Sovereigns of Europe are both in precarious health, and that absolutism and liberalism may at the same moment each lose its most declared supporte."

We copy the following from the Philadelphia Pennsylvanian of last Thursday:

Death of Don Pedro.—The ship Manchester, belonging to this port, from Lisbon, from whence she sailed Sept. 22, brings the Pedro died Sept. 24. The young Queen had in consequence been declared of age, and had commissioned the Duke of Palmela to form a new Ministry. The Emperor, it is said, regarded his approaching death with the greatest firmness.

The act authorising the marriage of Donna Maria with the Prince of Leuchtenberg had passed both Chambers.

The accounts from the Spanish northern frontier are still of the same undecided character.

The Watchet, a Swiss paper, gives an account of a great musical festival which has taken place at Sulgen. The number of performers, vocal and instrumental, exceeded 1000. The choral society of Thurgovia alone amounted to 700. Amongst the spectators attracted by this interesting meeting were the Queen Hortense and Prince Lucien Bonaparte.

From the U. S. Telegraph.

CONGRESS.

The second session of the Twenty-third Congress will commence on Monday, the 1st of December next. The following table will show the representation in Congress from each State of the Union, from the organization of the government up to the present time, with the several ratios of representation, as also the number of electors to be chosen in 1836:—

States.	1787	93	03	13	23	33	36
	Ratio 30,000	Ratio 33,000	Ratio 33,000	Ratio 35,000	Ratio 40,000	Ratio 47,000	No. of Electors
N Hampshire	3	4	5	6	6	5	7
Massachusetts	8	14	17	20	13	12	14
Rhode Island	1	1	2	2	2	2	4
Connecticut	5	7	7	7	6	6	8
New York	6	10	17	27	34	40	42
New Jersey	4	5	6	6	6	6	8
Pennsylvania	8	13	18	23	26	28	30
Delaware	1	1	1	2	1	1	3
Maryland	8	8	9	9	9	8	10
Virginia	10	19	22	25	22	21	23
N. Carolina	5	10	12	13	13	13	15
S. Carolina	5	6	8	9	9	9	11
Georgia	3	2	4	6	9	11	11
Vermont	0	2	4	6	5	5	7
Kentucky	0	2	6	10	15	13	15
Tennessee	0	0	5	9	13	15	15
Ohio	0	0	0	6	14	19	21
Louisiana	0	0	0	0	3	3	5
Indiana	0	0	0	0	5	7	9
Alabama	0	0	0	0	3	5	7
Mississippi	0	0	0	0	1	2	4
Illinois	0	0	0	0	1	3	5
Maine	0	0	0	0	7	8	10
Missouri	0	0	0	0	1	2	4
Totals	65	105	141	181	213	240	288

FOR THE HERALD.

Statistical Report of the Weather in October 1834.

1 A M		4 P M
1	75	5	76
2	67	6	77—8
3	67—8	7	77—8
4	66—7	8	64
5	64	9	63
6	51—2	10
7	63—4	11	70
8	57—8	12	74—5
9	58—9	13	61—2
10	48	14	59
11	49	15	55—6
12	59	16	67—8
13	49	17	54
14	41—5	18	49
15	37—8	19	56—7
16	54—5	20	68
17	64	21	73—4
18	69—70	22	58
19	42	23	50—1
20	40	24	55
21	44—5	25	59
22	48—9	26	61
23	49	27	65
24	41—2	28	56
25	52—3	29	55—6
26	47—8	30	60
27	46	31	56—7
28	46		52—3
29	44		48
30	48—9		50
31			K.

From the Baltimore Gazette.

PLAGUE IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

We learn from late London papers that the Plague has broken out in Constantinople.—Among the victims, Osman Nonreddin Pasha, the Egyptian Admiral, had perished. His loss is deeply lamented, especially by the Sultan, who is reported to have said, "another would have lost ten battles than such a man." The fatal disease was on the increase for the last dates. Seventy-seven new patients were received in one week in the Greek Hospital. A correspondent of the London Times writes:

Of the attacked a few recover. Judging from the virulence of the distemper, it is at all hights, in the midst of this public calamity, it is satisfactory to observe that hitherto the infectious character which at times renders this disorder the most awful of scourges, its origin and diffusion have decidedly appeared rather an effect of the endemical causes which so oft in this city and throughout the Levant, favor its re production, the disorder in most cases manifesting itself without exposure to contagious sources having taken place, whilst on the other hand, most of the families in which these accidents occurred, though in constant communication with the patient, remained to this day exempt from the complaint. Recurrences have been principally observed in Skutari, or more, in the small houses, when a number of workmen inhabit the same dirty, unventilated, crowded room, where the patient was allowed to lay during the greater part and often the whole of the disease.

This disorder is chiefly confined to the city of Constantinople, several quarters of the town and villages on the Bosphorus, though in constant intercourse with the infected, are to this day free from it. At Scutari, for example, not a single case has presented, and the houses are broader, better ventilated, and more cleanly than those of Starbuul. Since the breaking out of this epidemic, 10 cases have yet appeared in Pera, none at Buyukdere, or Therapia.

These facts have led several of the Franks present here to conclude the notions generally entertained as to the infectious nature of the plague, highly inapplicable to the present epidemic. While Europeans are thus saved from their dreams on contagion, it is strange enough to observe the Turks notwithstanding the ideas generally entertained by them on the subject, and their governmental decrees, attaching regulations no longer a criminal act, about suspicion to Frank shows a considerable decrease, has actually ordered distributing medals to be displayed in the houses where an accident of plague has occurred.

No cases received at Lloyd, or admitted into the presence of the Porte sufferers, without having previously undergone a purgatory a regular fumigation. Certainly the disinfecting processes, hitherto employed by the Turks are highly imperfect, and are, besides, so regretfully, and often so absurdly employed, that little indeed is the advantage to be obtained from them. It is evident however from its employment, that a reform is about to take place in the ideas of the nation of prejudice, attract with respect to fumigations, and the change once operated, will naturally lead to the adoption of measures which if not capable of exciting a disease which is quite epidemic, may at least operate as progress, when the disease assumes an intermittent character. The adoption of proper quarantine regulations in Turkey will, by reducing the superstitious entertained by other nations, greatly tend to introduce some modifications in their own sanitary laws, and thus materially relieve commerce with the east from the oppressive yoke under which they have placed it.

LONDON AND PARISIAN FASHIONS.

For the third week of September last.

A very becoming and elegant style of evening dress, consists of a low corsage, plain in front and drawn in slight folds on the back. With this is worn a sort of pelerine, or rather a lonkerchief, rounded behind and gathered on each shoulder by a bow of ribbond. A correspondent bow is placed in the center of the bosom. Pelerines for evening dresses are made low, round behind, descending to the waist, and crossed on the bosom, with the ends drawn under the waistband. For dombilette, these pelerines may be trimmed with quillings of ribbon.

The attempts to restore flounces are not yet abandoned. We have observed dresses of mousseline de laine, and other light and transparent textures, trimmed with flounces or rectangs of silk. The following plan has been adopted to prevent the weight of the trimming from tearing the lape, when the latter is composed of mousseline de laine, or any delicate material. The skirt of the robe itself, is made quite plain, in the usual way. Then there is placed under it a silk slip of the same width as the upper skirt, and at the place where the flounce is fastened on, both the slip and dress are tacked together. By this means the dress preserves its transparency and lightness, while at the same time it is secured against being dragged and torn by the weight of the trimming.

Several hights have lately made their appearance at the most fashionable models. One which we observed a few days ago, was exceedingly elegant. It consists of trimming than wreaths of small bluebells encircling the crown, and blue aurorat ribbon strings.

CHEMAN.

Our merchants are indebted to Captain Thomas Bennet, of the New York and Liverpool packet line, for the introduction of this article into our here. Cheman, (the East Indian name) is made by mixing slaked and fine pulverized lime with whale oil, to the consistency of mortar. It is so tenacious, that it adheres immediately wherever applied, and is entirely impervious to water, and becomes perfectly hard in it.

It is laid on to ships' bottom with towels, sometimes under the sheathing, and sometimes between the copper and the sheathing; and, in some instances, in both places. The copper is put on while the Cheman is soft, and adheres to it so completely that no water passes between them; and it is said that copper in vessels which have a coat of Cheman wears nearly double the usual time.

Whale oil is used here in making it, because it fully answers the purpose, and is two-thirds cheaper than vegetable oil—but vegetable oil makes much the best Cheman, becoming dry after a short time as hard as stone. It is suggested that the celebrated Mortar of the Ancients was made of lime and vegetable oil.

I understand that some experiment will be made here on roofs and outsides of houses, with Cheman, as it is believed it will effectually resist the fogs and frosts of our climate, which the common rough cast does not.—New Bedford Gazette & Courier.

HARNESSING DRAUGHT HORSES.

From "Bubbles from the Brunnens (Medical Springs) of Nassau."

* * * * Many years have elapsed, since I first observed that, somehow or other, the horses on the continent manage to pull a heavy carriage up a steep hill, or even along a dead level, with greater ease to themselves than our English horses do. Any unprejudiced person would only attentively remark with what little apparent fatigue three small, ill-conditioned horses will draw, not only his ponderous carriage, but perhaps a huge overgrown vehicle the French Diligence, or the German Eilwagen, I think he would agree with me, but the whole equipment is so unsightly, so unlike what we are made—the harness without winkers look so wild—there is so much blaster and noise in the position—that, far from paying any compliment to the unwieldy mass, you feel inclined to move to condemn the whole thing, and, not caring a straw whether such horses be fatigued or not, to make no other remark than that, if in England, one should have travelled at nearly twice the rate with one tenth of the noise. But neither the rate nor the noise is the point—our superiority in the form and our inferiority in the force cannot be doubted. The thing to account for, is, how such small weak horses, do actually manage to draw a heavy carriage up hill with so much ease and thoughtlessness. Now, in English, French and German harness, there exists, as it were, three degrees of comparison as to the manner in which the head of the horse is treated; for, in England, it is elevated or borne up, by what is called the hearing-rein—in France, it is left to nature placed it (there being no common French harness)

POETRY.

ALLITERATION.

Frederick Fawcer, famed for firmest friendship, finding female flattery fruitless, fled far from fair frequented morning fields, fitted in for fortuning friends formed the following fine flourishing farewell, for false infelicious Fanny Fastidious:

Fluttering friend farewell forever,
Hope hath long her hair-pin lost,
Every effort for endeavor
Starts some serious sobbing sigh.

When with warmest wishes warming,
Lingered long love's languid looks,
Silent, still sublimely showering,
Firmest faith for force forsook.

Pleasing prospects prove pretexting,
Imagery is inutile,
Deceits dear delights distracting,
Far from former frowning fate.

Pleasure's pleasing path pursuing,
That through treacherous treat I tread,
Variant vulgar vanity viewing,
Sue still pseudo shining shed.

False fallacious friend farewell,
Soulful sorrowing sighs still silent shall,
Tis present time the trouble's hell,
Why with wanton wind wage war?

Albany Mercury.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the Token for 1835

The Broken Merchant.

BY MRS. S. J. HALE.

Chapter 1. The Misfortune.

"Here's a sudden change."

"Are you ill, Charles?" and Mrs. Carlton, laying down her work, she had been sketching—Her husband sat opposite to her, leaning himself heavily on the sofa, he pressed his right hand on his forehead.

His young wife spoke gaily, there was a slight suffusion on her cheek, but it was not wounded pride that her question had occasioned. She leaned over the arm of the sofa, and tenderly laid her hand on his temple. "Is there much pain on your head, love?"

"Yes, deep, terrible. Emily, you cannot believe it."

"Let me try my skill at Mesmerism," said she, as she plaited a lock of her raven hair, and fixing the dark tress from her temple, pressed it on his upper lip, sighing and throbbing yours. He was as well and still, that had a pulse lower than watching beside her to sleep, or has heard a sound. Kind and gentle—she was always quiet and delicate in attendance, and no man of refinement can long love a wife, whose demeanor does not evidence her attentive and importunate.

Charles Carlton scarcely heard the tone of his wife, but he felt the pressure of her hand trembled, left and left—at last he started from his reclining position, and sank within her, as the fearful sense of her calamity rushed upon him. Emily's grasp was not unlike well, it relaxed, and she held a hand in both of hers, she clasped by his side.

"Charles, dear Charles, speak to me!" sighingly.

"Emily,"

"My dear husband, what can I do for you?"

"Nothing"—said he, coldly.

"Nothing! O, do tell me, is there any comfort you at least. Tell me, can I comfort you?"

"I will tell you, Emily—for you must know. I am ruined."

"Ruined! How? Why?"

"I am a bankrupt, Emily. I have fairly lost all my property, all" and he groaned his face.

"Well my dear husband, if it be lost, let it go. There are a thousand ways to live by industry, and I can do a good share of the work."

"But Emily you do not comprehend—I am not all, I am a broken merchant. I should be trusted with business. I saw those—I had I cannot pay. I have nothing, I cannot fall."

"Yes, my love, you have what you have often called your dearest treasure—all! And also twined her arm around the neck of her husband, and tenderly drew his head upon her shoulder.

"Bless you bless you, my own Emily my wife you have comforted me."

Chapter II. Friends.

"Ebling man, indeed,
Most often do we see the bottom rise,
By their own feats."

"Any news this morning? Mr. Halford said John Folsom, to the gentleman who entered his counting room. He was a tall, pale man, with a commercial looking face, that is, bilious and rather cute-ish, but the keen glance of his eye was temper-proof by a benevolent smile; and when he raised his hat, the high, full, smooth brow told more the unemployed stamp of a warm heart and a good conscience.

"The only news of the morning is that Carlton has failed," said Mr. Halford.

"Yes, I knew that last evening," replied Folsom.

"Is it a total failure? Or will he be doing business again in six months?

"Rashaw, a thorough failure. Cleaned up all."

"That is rather an unusual course" remarked Mr. Halford. "Most of our broken merchants contrive to secure a share for themselves. You are his friend why did you not advise him better?"

"Your pardon, Sir I never advise my friends, it only off sets them. They prefer to do things as one."

"I heard that the failure was caused by signing for Hart & Co.—Was that true?

"Partly so. Carlton lost about $20,000, by that firm; but then he might have gone on if business for some months, and perhaps have got over his embarrassments entirely, if he had not been so very spiritual."

"Spiritual. How do you mean?"

"Why, he rippled to old Colonel Davis, to whom he was owing a considerable debt and told him how matters stood, and the reasons he had for believing he might retrieve his affairs, if he could obtain a loan of ten thousand for a few months, and he offered Davis good security for the money—but the old Colonel knows how to manage. He would not loan the cash unless he could have his debt likewise provided for in the security. The Carlton thought would not be doing the honorable by his other creditors, and he refused; and Davis immediately levied an attachment."

"Carlton should have applied to his other friends, he ought to have money, for he has been a very obliging man, I think there must have been some who would have remembered his favors. Did he not since assist you Mr. Folsom, materially?"

"Yes, yes, his name was of some service of the time to creditors—on me so hard; but I have paid him."

"There are benefits which the mere value received never pays," remarked Mr. Halford. "By the way he left the store of the dashing Street—I will call on Carlton," and he to himself as he went out—Perhaps I can help my poor friend in put him again in business. He was a lonely young wife, and it must touch to the core of a man who has a family. In case of a man's failure, delicate. He owes no self to nominates. I feel his heart beat over some of the hard temptations of bank expires. He has acted honorably and shall assistance."

Chapter III. The Parting.

"Tattings such as pears
Pale lips from out young lovers' ears."

It was a fine, the day, cold and really lance, and such a glorious day! There are moments when it seems as though the angel at our side paid lead pageantry to fill the silent hours gides apart, but our cold earth and other hearts might be a very hard profited with the husband lady as Emily Carlton. We only talk of Nature as of a good friend, and say she treasures 2 7 youth and cares, and pain on the 27 of a gloriously Spring and the Heavens are a Cloud, for a very Autumn and such it seems, that for an hour Emily Carlton forgot the cares of her husband, in the pride, that of her heart, in the pride, that of her husband's, and her heart beat with a pulse lower than watching beside her to sleep. And she felt the mere fact of her husband's existence, and Mr. Morris.

"Good morrow, my husband, I'm looking for a walk, and I cannot resist the temptation to take you I cannot resist the temptation to take you John Folsom, affectionately exclaiming, as she threw her parcel of fingers, in a manner the dispiteful the most cordly and sprightly pages.

"I have you would have her some her a time, great support of Mr Morris.

"O, no, it would pain me excessively to meet your Emily under a sense of her affairs. I feel so deeply, I feel so a emotion would be uncontrollable, and thus affect her. I would not spare myself," and the young lady, you as signing to go.

"Bell is so devotedly attached to Mrs. Carlton, that the mere sight of her would pain her heart," said Mr. Folsom, the moth ... "Though she had not so much sensibility."

"Why, it is rather an unpleasant affair of fortune" looked Mr. Morris. "And I think it is not very uncommon, and I don't see it is likely to do Carlton any serious injury. I hear he is going to Paris, to get for Hart & Co a agent of to Paris, agent for Hart & Co. Paris, I should prefer to have further and pleasure of hearing you. Well, I shall call on Mrs. Carlton, and Mrs. Folsom.

"I would matron, well all my heart, only she lives with her friend aby old aunt, Mrs Eaton, whom I need to detest so much. What made Emily endure her I never could imagine; perhaps it was that she might have a friend in time of need."

"Mrs. Carlton was incapable of such calculating selfishness, I am sure," said Mr. Morris warmly, forgetting in his zeal for the injured absent lady that he was dissenting from the opinion of her particular friend.

"O, I dare say you are right, Mr. Morris," said Mrs. Folsom, with an air of pique. "Emily had a most sweet and winning manner, and really she was very amiable, and always appeared to love her aunt; but that was no good reason why others should also adore the old lady. Really, to me she was disagreeable. Why, she was always praising about the influence of woman, and her duties, and moral improvements, and all such obsolete stuff. She is a walking lecture, and I wonder how Emily can endure to live with her."

"You would not, Bell, I am very sure," said John Folsom, as he entered the parlor.

"No indeed, brother, I could not submit to such a humdrum life. Out of fashion, out of existence for me."

"Bell, how oddly you talk!" said the mother. "I am really astonished. I never heard you so unsentimental before. Reverses sometimes happen to the very rich, and you are not exclaim of always being among the fortunate. To be sure I do not know what I could do if John should fail!" and she deliberated her large face somewhat with a swell of importance.

"I know, I would die at once," cried the young lady, vehemently.

Her brother bit his lip, and Mr. Morris, politely bowing, bade the ladies good morning.

Chapter IV. Matrimonial Correspondence

"From the wreck of the past, which hath perished,
Thus much I at least may recall,
It hath taught me that what I most cherished,
Deserved to be dearest of all."

From Mrs. Carlton to her husband.

PARIS, Sept 18th.

You see then, dearest, that my business, or rather that of Hallford & Co. goes on wonderfully well, and that despite some of your fears, I am not a little, I am not a little, I am not a little

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess-Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1834.

N. YORK ELECTION.

We have received returns from all the counties of this State, which give Martin Van Jackson candidate for Governor, a majority of 13,615. The final official returns may slightly vary this majority, but it is not probable they will change, in any material degree, the aggregate result. Of the 40 Congressmen chosen for the 24th Congress, 31 are Administration men—The 32 members elected to fill vacancies in the present Congress are also Jackson men. Of the 32 State Senators, 28 will support the Administration party; and in the House of Assembly at least 93 of the 128 members elect are Administration men.

The following persons are ascertained to be elected to the 24th Congress.—Those in italics are Anti-Jackson.

District—	Abel Huntington,
2nd	Samuel Barton,
3d	C. C. Cambreling, Campbell P. White, John M'Keon, Eli Moore,
4th	Aaron Ward,
5th	Abraham Bokee,
6th	John W. Brown,
7th	Nicholas Sickles,
8th	Aaron Vanderpool, Valentine Efner,
9th	Hamon P. Hunt,
10th	Gerrit Y. Lansing,
11th	John Cramer,
12th	David Russell,
13th	Dudley Farlin,
14th	R. H. Gillet,
15th	Matthias J. Force,
16th	Abijah Mann, jr.
17th	Samuel Beardsley, Joseph Tuttle,
18th	Daniel Wardwell,
19th	Sherman Page,
20th	William Seymour,
21st	William Mason,
22d	Joseph Reynolds, Stephen B. Leonard, William Taylor,
23d	William K. Fuller, U. F. Doubleday,
24th	Graham H. Chapin,
25th	Francis Granger,
26th	Jordan Lee,
27th	Timothy Childs, George W. Loy, Philo C. Fuller, Abner Hazleton, Thomas C. Love, Gideon Hard,
28th
29th
30th
31st
32d
33d

(To fill vacancies in 23d Congress.

2d	J. J. Hoagland, N. Y. ctts.
3d	C. G. Ferris do.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The Anti Administration party have a usual succeeded in electing their Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and a large majority of the State Legislature. The result of the election for Congressmen as far as ascertained is as follows:—

1st District—	Abbott Lawrence.
2d "	Stephen C. Phillips.
3d "	Caleb Cushing.
4th "	Isaac Davis.
5th "	Levi Lincoln.
6th "	Nat heard Iron.
7th "	George N. Briggs.
8th "	Wm. B Calhoun.
9th "	William Jackson.
10th "	William Baylies.
11th "	John Reed
12th "	John Quincy Adams.

DELAWARE.

We have not yet received the complete returns of the late election in this State, but from those that have reached us it is probable Mr. Milligan (Anti-Jackson,) is re-elected to Congress by about 75 votes majority.

Neapolitan Claims—The Neapolitans have paid the first instalment towards the claims of American citizens, in accordance with the late treaty. The money is to be remitted in gold—$100,000 of it, in the next packet from Havre.

Bank Drafts.—A circular has been sent to different Collectors of the Customs, directing them to refuse receiving the checks or drafts of the Branches of the Bank of the United States, as many of which are in circulation, in payment of duties, after the first day of January next.

The meeting house in Brunswick, Me. built one hundred and fifteen years ago, was burnt down on Sunday, the 26th. It was a fine specimen of the rude and simple architecture of the early days of the country.

Which is more profitable to the Farmer,

PORK OR BACON?

We are disposed to think that practical knowledge on this subject should be highly acceptable to every intelligent farmer, especially when such knowledge is derived from a source entitled to implicit confidence. Dr. Wilson, of this county, from whom we obtained the subject matter of this article, assured us that he last season personally attended the weighing, salting, &c. of the hogs referred to below; and we have no doubt that similar experiments by other farmers will produce like results.

The following is the weight of four totally fat hogs shot at 18 months old, after they were killed and well cleaned:—

The 1st hog weighed	135 lbs.
2nd " "	140 "
3d " "	142 "
4th " "	154 "
Total weight	571 lbs.
Hams of the 4 hogs weighed	128 lbs.
Shoulders " "	147 "
Middlings " "	148 "
	423 lbs.
Heads, feet, back-bones & leaf-fat	148 "
Making, as above,	571 lbs.

The hams, shoulders and middlings were salted, and in 4 weeks and 3 or 4 days again weighed:—

Hams	125 lbs.
Shoulders	143 "
Middlings	143 "
	411 lbs.—Loss 12 lbs.

They were next well salted, hung up and smoked 2 months and two weeks, and again weighed after removing the adhering ashes:

Hams	110 lbs.
Shoulders	126 "
Middlings	126 "
	362 lbs. Additional loss 19 lbs.

So the 571 lbs. of pork gave 362 lbs. of bacon. Is it more profitable then to sell pork or make bacon of it? Suppose, for example, the Doctor had sold his pork at $5 per 100 lbs.

571 lbs. at $5 per 100 lbs.—$28.55

And suppose a speculator had bought, cured and sold it, say at only 10 cts. per lb. round:

362 lbs. at 10 cts. per lb.—$36.20.

This shows a difference in favor of making bacon amounting to $7.65 from 571 lbs. of pork. Perhaps you'll say, "There's the expense of salting, smoking, &c. &c. which you have not taken into the account." What! have you already forgot that we also omitted to say anything of the heads, feet, back-bones and leaf-fat, which weighed 148 lbs? And were not these amply sufficient to defray all the expenses attending the curing of the bacon? Another may hint that the publishing of such experiments will bring the consumers about our ears.—Don't let them be alarmed there's no occasion. Rather let them consult the matter and determine whether it would not always be their interest to purchase a supply of pork at Christmas to furnish a sufficiency of bacon throughout the ensuing year.—Our farmers are generally too much prejudiced against what is called "slack, lean" to profit by newspaper publications. We frequently quote weightier matter under our agricultural head, but they we usually passed over in such a manner, that we are under no apprehensions that this article will induce any farmer to believe and act as though selling his pork were not saving his bacon.

USEFUL NOTES.

As we have commenced this column with a commentary on bacon we may as well add an abridgment of some notes concerning the raw material. We have on our table a paper containing memorandums of twelve hogs, by a careful hand, of the weights of different hogs, undressed, and dressed. From these it appears that hogs usually weigh a-th less when dressed than when undressed. Thus—

An undressed hog weighing	205 lbs.
Will weigh when dressed	164 "
	41

The hams, shoulders, and middlings of a dressed hog of 126 lbs. weigh only 84 lbs.—that is, a 3d less. There are doubtless many things—such as the fattening, the age, and the breed of hogs—that may cause different results, but the foregoing may safely be considered the average proportions of the generality of hogs when in tolerably good order.

ANOMALOUS.—The Germantown Telegraph has lost a good subscriber by not sending in his bills so often as he desired. On reading this singular case, we feel strongly tempted to relate the conversation of two Africans, on the much disputed subject, whether a man ever die before his time comes—Cuffee said no, Pompey said yes.

"Now," argued the latter, "pose a man eat a hearty supper o' pork and pease, and he wake up in de morain' and find himself 'tone dead—what you say to dat Cuff? Don't you tink he die 'fore he time come? ha!"

"Ov, yes, Pomp," replied Cuff unable to resist the force of this argument—"I grant you in dis 'ticular case; but, by gosh! won't happen one time in ten thousand."

With this sage reply of Cuffee, we would console our brother of the Telegraph. He will not lose one subscriber in ten thousand, by being too remiss in asking for his pay.

From France.—Important (if true.)—The following, published in the Albany Daily Advertiser of Saturday last, as an extract from the Paris Correspondent of that Journal, contains information of great moment, in a form entitling it to more credit than is usually given to common report:—Nat. Int.

PARIS, Sept. 29, 1834.

"Dear Sir—I presume you get all the news of interest through the English and French papers, and, therefore, of the movements of the Spanish and Portuguese I need say nothing. But perhaps it may be new to you, that there is a report talked of in this country, which may yet reduce Louis Philippe to the ranks.

"It is well known that this personage has adopted very different course from what was anticipated at the outset of his career. Liberal principles are at a discount with him, and much inquietude has existed in the salons, on the subject of his future intentions.

"A new movement appears to be projected, and if it takes place, the consequences will be momentous.

"It is proposed to form a grand Convention of the National Guards of France, to consist of Deputies chosen by them, from each Regiment, and they will require from the King some further concessions to liberty under the penalty of the consequence!

"The plan is no secret, I will give you further information as soon as I can get it."

Made-moiselle Celeste, the celebrated French dancer, arrived at New York, in the ship North America, on the 6th inst.

MOUNT VESUVIUS

The most affecting details of a recent eruption of Mount Vesuvius, have been left us, in a former account we stated that in August an eruption had taken place, which on the evening of the 23 h. began to subside. On the 27th, 28th and 29th, new craters opened, and produced ravages and volcanic eruptions. Those called Indian ravages from their entire land—and all young were dragging through heavy masses of heated sand—Fifteen hundred houses, palaces and other buildings, and 2,300 acres of cultivated land, have been destroyed by fire. The village of S. Felice had been already abandoned.

The lava soon poured upon this place, and in the course of an hour, houses, churches and palaces, were all destroyed. Four villages, some detached houses, country villas, vines, beautiful groves and gardens which a few months ago presented a magnificent spectacle, now resembled a sea of fire.

On the third instant nothing but stones and embers were ejected, and every prospect existed of the eruption being soon at a close. The prefect of the Prince of Ardoli, received and forwarded his land warrant to destroyed. The embers fell during an entire night over Naples, and if the lava had not stopped the eruption, fire would have been on visit to the city.

PANATICISM.

A Boston Newspaper, by the name of Telegraph, has just arrived in our shores. Its contents were announced beforehand by the arrival of a few Indians, and it was, of course, in the second thousand and one. The Telegraph was the Tartan of the North, the Tartan of the Tartans, the Cows, and their Calves, to beware. The great emperor of an Fellow City, as of the Emperor of Russia, and every prince, and every people, by the spirit they have already displayed—and will still be far on our country, for the have taken the sword—for, if they were moderate to interfere with those deals—the consequences must be fatal beyond calculation. The medium of Union of these States might right upon this occasion.

The expected Missionary (Thompson) attempted to make his first appearance in Boston, but the effort was unavailing. The great place we notice, as the scene of his exhibition, is Augusta in Maine. The "Age" of that town gives us an account of the Anti-Slavery Convention, which assembled there on Wednesday the 15th, attended by some forty or fifty delegates, chiefly clergymen, from different sections of the State. Several zealous Abolitionists from Massachusetts were also present, to give character to the proceedings of the Convention. As we anticipated, the meeting of these Abolitionists, whose principles and designs find but little favor with our sober, intelligent and reflecting citizens, produced no inconsiderable excitement, which, however deeply it may have been felt, would have been entirely suppressed, and the Convention been received and treated with all that courtesy and attention for which our citizens have been uniformly distinguished, had it not been attempted to introduce to the favorable notice of the people of this State, that notorious individual, George Thompson, who comes among us, a foreign emissary from Great Britain, to sow the seeds of dissension and discord—to sever the ties which unite us in one common nation—to revile our invaluable civil and political institutions—institutions, the importance and advantages of which, he cannot appreciate, and about which he manifests the most palpable and perverse ignorance.

"During the first day, every thing passed off well, for aught we know, and we were gratified to believe that the Convention would be permitted to complete its business as it began in privacy and silence. But not so. The managers seemed anxious to attract attention, and for this purpose brought out the British lion of the day, who, surrounded by three patriots, par excellence, was suffered in a speech of an hour's length, to vilify American citizens, and assail with as much ignorance as malice, the political institutions of our country! Where was the vaunted patriotism of these men, that they did not drag him from the desk in pollution and silence his slanders against our free institutions. Alas, it was not there! The nurturing words of fanaticism had choked its growth. But there were those present, who heard the attacks with feelings of indignation almost ungovernable. A single word or motion by an American, would have produced an explosion, and this British emissary had been hurled from the desk, and visited with summary and sufficient punishment. Fortunately, the torch was not applied, and the few of our citizens who were present separated without venting the indignation which possessed them. On the following morning, the whole town was found to be in a state of dangerous excitement—having by this period, the former evening had got wind and produced their proper effect—a feeling of strong indignation against this British libeller of America.

"During the forenoon, a meeting of citizens was holden and a committee consisting of Gardiner Bridge, Allen Lombard, James W. Bigelow, Franklin Gage, and William H. Kittredge, were appointed to call on this Mr. Thompson, and request him to withdraw himself from the town, and tell him that he would not be suffered again to enter the Lyceum room. The Committee had signed him, and his reply to them was marked by the same arrogance and insult which characterized his speech of the evening before. Among other things, he stated that he had the same right to come here to lecture as upon our Independence, or we had to come to Africa slaveries among the brethren! The conference ended without any definite answer to the request of the Committee, and a large number of citizens assembled in the vicinity of the Court House, from whom he would probably have met a becoming reception, had he made his appearance. He however, took counsel of his fears (or prudence, it may be said, is one right a quality of the word) that he should not come out. He was suffered quietly to retreat to a neighboring town, the to excite the indignation of the citizens by like attacks upon our country, or to celebrate a hypocritical commendation, he (we feared to say free) Constitution and Laws."

We have read the proceedings of the Pennsylvania Convention, with the indignation which they are so strongly calculated to inspire. These men, who are strangers to the world, of things they profess to study, and are evidently unacquainted with the effects of the remedy which they recommend—except from the change the Africans fare well as the sufferers, who know little or nothing of the actual condition of the South—have had the temerity to meet and form the Constitution of "The Mason Anti Slave Society, as a subsidiary to the American Anti Slave Society." They go, as their fundamental principle, that "slaveholders are sinners without the condition of repentance as the early of the man, be and Highly dangerous." Deprived of the aid in the blessed Union of these States—attached to our Eastern brethren—and adhering only where which has for so wonderfully so most again raise our warning voice, in the very best spirit, in all our countrymen to look to the dangers of industry and expulsion these Fanatics, who, few as they are, are infuriated and have matters of the immediate." We conjure them to nip this Society in its bud—and prevent its propagation altogether. We warn them that we have now among ourselves, who are equally zealous to wind themselves of all these signs among them—and sow the seeds of dissension in the South itself. If these counter feelings are permitted to increase; if the fanatics in the North and in the South should go on and add to the fuel of discord, what will be the combustion he accessed? How can this Union be sweetened of the flames?

The Tariff Convention is not enough upon equal civility and fraternity towards our brethren and fellow labourers. Gardiner Thompson, Esq. who, after have exhausted every good acceptance and success in the efforts made by our English brethren to effect abolition of slavery in the British Colonies, he now comes among us to sell us—our Parts to abolish slavery in these United States; coming as he does the representative of the sense and feelings of a Party, the most devoted and eminent christians in England—and they "cordially commend him to our kind Missionary, to our hospitality, confidence and friendship of the christian community."

The Kennebec Journal, (the other paper in Augusta,) we are sorry to see, does not deprecate this mad attempt, with the indignation which it deserves—but it advises the Mr. Thompson to cease his fire engine to the house which is on fire—and not to waste his efforts on the North. The Journal Editor thinks that "he had better go where slavery exists, and try the effect of his eloquence there, and not where it there, where there never were any slaves."—Let Mr. T. take this advice as soon as he pleases. We of the South are prepared to give him a warm reception.—If he comes the Potomac, he may run it the longest day he lives.—R. Emp.

Forks of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.—In a short ride through the lower counties, in the forks of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, and particularly in the counties of St. Charles and Warren, we observed that a new population, consisting chiefly of German Emigrants, are fast displacing the older settlers; in some large neighborhoods there remain but few of those who resided there a year or two ago. These newly arrived Germans appear to be best pleased with the rich alluvial soil of the Mississippi bottom, and are willing to give prices for lands, so that it is in that place and in the neighborhood of some who have been settled in that country for a number of years. We are informed by some of them that that river is the place of destination of nearly all of their countrymen upon leaving their native land, and that it has become so by a publication made a few years since by a native German, who enjoyment a time on that river before Pittsburg.

Many of these bring with them considerable wealth, and are men of industry and enterprise; there are but few if any who appear familiar with our method of cultivation, or of the crops or culture best adapted to the country in which they have just settled. There are many also of them that are quite indigent. These generally have come in under the protection of the more wealthy to whom they are bound for the payment of their expenses; but in many instances, upon their arrival they take their time in their own hands, and set up for themselves.

Among those of the higher order both male and female, there are many possessing highly cultivated and well stored minds, and a degree of intelligence upon general subjects, that would do credit to the same number of individuals from any country. We regard such as an acquisition to our community.

Thus far we believe great harmony has prevailed between them and their neighbors, the American citizens. There is, however, a degree of jealousy existing in the minds of many, arising from the peculiarity of their foreign manners and customs, which will disappear upon a more intimate acquaintance. We see no one cause operating which will soon produce this result, that is their intermarriages with the Americans, of which we are told there are several. We know of no legitimate objection to this amalgamation, and therefore wish it God speed.

The brig Wm. Tell, arrived yesterday from the coast of Africa, had on board the great male lion (Bashaw Mamoun,) and the two beautiful jet black Arabian and horses (Abderraman and Lide Hamet,) considered of the purest blood and swiftest breed in Barbary. These animals were presented by his majesty, the Emperor of Morocco, to the U. S. Government, through our consul general, Mr. Leith, and by him shipped on board W. T. on the 20th July. She has also on board rams from Tuibah, north foot of the Atlas mountains, their wool very fine, said to be from the original stock with Spanish mutinous, and superior breed sheep.—N. Y. Cour.

The negro Cuvier's cure for poison—for disencering which the Assembly of South Carolina purchased his freedom, and gave him an annuity of one hundred pounds.

1783.—Cuvier's cure for the bite of a Rattlesnake—Take the roots of plantain or bouthound, (in summer, roots and branches together,) a sufficient quantity, bruise them in a mortar and squeeze out the juice; of which give as soon as possible, one large spoonful; if the patient is sullen you must force it down his throat; this generally will cure, but if he finds no relief in an hour afterwards, give another spoonful, which never has failed. If the roots are dried they must be moistened with a little water. To the wound may be applied a leaf of tobacco moistened with rum.

The increase of wool in the United States for the last ten or three years, has been estimated at the rate of 20 per cent, per annum. The amount of wool raised last year and brought into market, was about sixty millions of pounds; this year it is probable seventy five millions, and next year it will be nearly. England produces 100 millions of pounds annually, and as all her growing lands are taken up, she cannot be expected to produce much more. She imports on an average 20 millions from Germany, and 10 from Spain.

The United States then at the present rate of increase will soon take the lead in wool production, not only probably in quality, and with so vast a territory adapted for sheep grazing, will become the great wool market of the world.—Philada. Pa. Cur.

GAMING.

It is generally known that, during the session of the Kentucky Legislature of 1833 2 3s were law was enacted against the odious and demoralizing vice of Gaming. This law is generally known as "Wickliffe's Law," having been introduced into the Legislature by Robert Wickliffe, Esq. of Lexington, then a Senator from Fayette county.

At the present term of the Fayette Circuit Judge Hall's charge to the Grand Jury, the law against gaming were particularly adverted to in the charge to the Grand Jury, and the duty of inquiring into such cases of violation as well as public gaming, was strictly enjoined.

In pursuing the inquiries which they deemed necessary, in order to effect the object contemplated by the Legislature, the Grand Jury had various persons summoned before them, in order to give testimony touching the, Mr. Clifton Dunn, Key Mayor of Lexington, A. K. Woodley, Esq. and L. L. Pantier, are one of the proprietors of the Phoenix Hotel. These gentlemen, in refusing to answer the interrogatories propounded to them, were fined in the sum of $50 each, and ordered to jail, for contempt of court.

In the interval between the summons of Messrs Dunn and Pantier, and before the Grand Jury, and the imposition of the fine and imprisonment, the Grand Jury had been dismissed for a week. On reassembling, the charge of the Judge in relation to gambling was so pointed as to make it discretionary with our obligations on the Grand Jury to prosecute the witnesses subpoenaed in the original course. Under the impression, from the after course of the Judge, that witness would not be applied to give testimony in cases of private as well as professional gaming, the Grand Jury unanimously resolved that they could not effectually prosecute their inquiries regardless violations of the laws against unlawful gaming, and requested to be discharged.

The Judge explained—and the witnesses having been brought before the Grand Jury, and refusing to answer, were fined, &c. as above stated.

The Grand Jury subsequently presented another communication to the Court, imputing delinquency on the part of the Court in the discharge of its duties. The Judge alleged this to be a contempt, and seven of the Grand Jurors, refusing to purge themselves on such and anti-national censure of the Court, were fined in the sum of $50 each, and imprisoned 24 hours in the Jail.

Maysville (Ky.) Eagle.

There are in the city of Pittsburg, 16 "Counties and Engine Factories" of the largest denomination, besides numerous other establishments of less magnitude.

There are 9 "Rolling Mills," cutting 2 tons of nails and rolling 8 tons of iron per day, on the average, and employing from 70 to 80 hands each.

There are 6 "Cotton Factories," with an aggregate of 20,000 spindles, 118 power looms, and 770 hands.

6 extensive "White-lead Factories."

5 extensive "Breweries," besides small ones.

6 "Steam Saw Mills."

4 "Steam Grist Mills."

10 extensive "Glass Works."

Upwards of 100 "Steam Engines" in full operation.

There are, moreover, innumerable establishments for the manufacture of Hinges, Timber, Wheels, Screws of all kinds, Saddle Trees, Machine Cards, Bells, Brass Work of every description, Locks, &c. &c. all manufactured extensively for exportation.

Indian Affairs.

We copy the following remarks on this interesting subject from the Georgia Journal:—

This is a very important and interesting subject. Our readers are well apprised of the policy heretofore pursued by the government respecting the Indians; and we devoto as much as we can of the present paper to that which is proposed to be adopted hereafter; and especially to their location, now in progress, West of the Mississippi.

The Committee on Indian affairs reported to Congress, at its last session, two bills. One of them, "To provide for the organization of the department of Indian affairs;" and another, "To regulate the trade and intercourse with the Indian tribes, and to preserve peace on the frontiers." These were both passed. They also reported a third bill, "To provide for the establishment of the Western Territory, and for the security and protection of the emigrant and other Indian tribes therein." This last bill was deferred till the next session. Its provisions are very important, and certainly require a cautious and mature deliberation

The removal of the remaining Indians out of the States of the Union, West of, or to, as our readers know, is the basis of the whole scheme of our prospective Indian policy. The first inquiry naturally is, where are they to be carried to? We shall describe the country as well as we can, without the aid of a Map; a reference to which, however, by the reader, if convenient, would greatly assist my verbal description.

The Western Territory, proposed for the future residence of the Indian tribes, is a country about 300 miles wide, West of, and adjoining the Arkansas Territory, and the State of Missouri. Its Southern and is based on Red River, which throws divides us from Mexico, and the territory is to extend North as far as may be wanted; to the River Platte, as at present contemplated, or still further up, should it be necessary, till the Eastern side of it, extending beyond Missouri, may run to the Mississippi, as it trends Westwardly, in latitude 40. If this contemplated Western Territory should stop at the River Platte, it will be almost as large as Europe, and when her limits reached the Mississippi. Should it extend up to the 40th degree of latitude, it will be about 750 miles long, North and South, by 300 miles wide, as before mentioned.

The allotments already laid out, commence at the South end on Red River—First, and South of all, is that of the Choctaws. Next the Creeks and Seminoles. Next the Cherokees and North of these, the Osages. These occupy in nearly equal portions that territory, from a nearly a square, that lies between the Arkansas Territory and the Mexican line.—Each portion extending quite across the whole front East to West.

Northward of these allotments, and after an unappropriated interval of 70 or 80 miles, there is an irregular portion of a territory about as large as the Cherokee lands in Georgia, among the Kaws, Kanzes, Shawnees, Kickapoos, Delawares, and other tribes, in proportion to the lands ceded by them East of the Mississippi, and circumscribed as at least to consult their several wants. North of these, the Indian country is extinguished to part of the land up to the Platte, and as much North of that river as covers a country larger, we think, than the present area of the State of Georgia.

The following are all the tribes now located in this Western Territory, and the number of acres assigned to each.

Possessed by the aborigines Indians, viz:

Names of the tribes.	Quantity Tract. acres.
1 Osages,	7,504,000
2 Kanzas,	6,100,000
3 Otters and Mississouries,	1,536,000
4 Half breeds, Otoes, Omahas, & Ioways,	128,000
	15,628,000
Assigned to the emigrant Indians, viz:
1 Choctaws,	15,000,000
2 Creeks and Seminoles,	19,140,000
3 Cherokees,	13,000,000
4 Senecas from Sandusky, 5 Senecas, and Shawnees,	100,000
6 Quapaws,	96,000
7 Ottawas,	34,000
8 Kaskaskias and Peorias,	96,000
9 Weas and Piankeshaws,	160,000
10 Shawnees,	1,000,000
11 Delaware,	2,976,000
12 Kickapoos,	768,000
	46,202,000
Acres,	61,830,000

*7,000,000 acres provided by the treaty, and 6,000,000 acres included in the outlet.

The tribes East of the Mississippi, who have agreed to emigrate, and the number of persons of each tribe are as follow.

Names of Tribes.	Numbers.
1 Seminoles,	5,000
2 Creeks,	22,981
3 Cherokees,	20,000
4 Chippewas, Ottowas, and Potawatamies,	7,400
5 Chickasaws,	5,000
6 Ottawas of Ohio,	320
7 Apparichinsias,	340
8 Pottawatamies of Indiana and the Wabash,	8,000
9 Ojahaji,	400
31 Kill-mucks,	5,000
32 Cook-koo-oosk,	1,500
33 Shallahh,	1,000
34 Luckkasa,	1,000
35 Hannakalli,	800
36 Killathocles,	5,000
37 Clarkhuns,	1,800
38 Clishhunks,	650
39 Cheroowah,	400
40 Callapooah;	2,000
41 Skoddals,	820
42 Cutashunn,	1,600
43 Lakmas,	2,000
44 Caospellar,	1,600
45 Whenlam,	2,500
46 Hohemimma;	1,800
47 Lartielo,	600
48 Skeetamish,	2,000
49 Shoshoner:	15,500
Whole number	156,500

Notwithstanding these exchanges of East for Western lands are all to be made with the free consent of the Indians, still the very important question could not but present itself to the government, where is it best to place them? This question involves a reference to their own good; to our foreign, and to our domestic policy.

Their own good. This is sought in their ultimate civilization. If they were to continue the hunter state, their place should be as far from us as possible; at least beyond the Rocky mountains. But if they are to be civilized, they should be where the tide of white emigration will flow up to, and ultimately around them. As hunters, they should have as little intercourse as possible with the whites; but as pupils in the school of civilization, they should be within reach of its influence; so that after they shall have got beyond their first lessons, which consists of the whites, they may at times aid attain to their intelligence and virtues.

How foreign policy was alone consulted, it would plant them as a barrier all along between us and the Mexicans. Not to mention, which will hardly come from that quarter, and which we hope will never be, if it did, but to prevent those disputes and jealousies that are likely to be engendered between the people of adjoining governments.

But we consider its influence on our own internal policy to be much its most important aspect. The first effect of flanking our Western settlements with this range of Indian communities, will be, in our opinion, easy and perhaps a salutary check to the irrigulate spirit of Western emigration. Arkansas will be soon filled up. Thus most States, besides Michigan, and be formed north of Lattitude 43, and then our settlements will have assumed a regular even front on the Mississippi, and Rocky Mountains, stretching from the mouth of the St. Jame on the Gulf of Mexico, North to the Lake of the Woods. At that line emigration must pause. Struggling hunters, with more the habits of the Red than of the White man, cannot go, as they now do, so far ahead of those who settle the land to clear and plant it, and improve the country. These pioneers must halt there at least for a time, till the mass body comes up, there will be a population dense enough to admit of a civil or government sufficient for the execution of the laws and the general purposes of society.

There is an advantage, we know not a reason, being confined and shut upon Lake and there in advance of the more pacific and populous. These farmers do something for the arts and mechanics, and assist in various ways those who succeed after them. But not among adventurous Western boys can so far into the woods as to lose sight entirely of those in their rear. And when they have formed connections and united their interests with the Indians, to any considerable numbers, their agency and influence is any thing but favorable to the progress of the more regular and authorized settlements.

The disposal of our Western lands is a measure of most important and complicate operation, affecting in an considerable degree the relative interests of the old States, as well as the new. Western emigration should not be checked. Let the success of emigration be kept open; and let settlements be formed as fast as wanted. But it requires settled farmers, and not hunters and squatters, to constitute a State. Those who form the freeholds of the Eastern cities, many of them sign the treason stratagems, and spoils," when transferred to the Western woods become the progenitors of a hardy, virtuous yeomanry, the future stay of the country. These should be carried Westward, and we must try to fill up with them as we go, at least so far as to sustain the arm of the law, but this object or filling up the territory west in advance of our present frontier, it seems to us will not be best accomplished by scattering our people all through the immense region beyond Wisconsin, in a brief article, even glance at all the bearings of this great subject, even if we could discover them, which we do not pretend to do; but all things considered according to our present lights, the advantage will be in favor of passing for a time in those extreme erratic roving emigrations; and so concentrate, for some years to come, our onward settlements so as to build the Western States out to the line we have mentioned, before we go farther. The line of Indian locations as a temporary barrier, will have this effect, and we consider it a good one.—When the States this side are populous and full, we shall leap the barrier, and begin States West of it.

And here commences a state of affairs in which these Indian republics, thus situated, may injuriously or dangerously affect the future prosperity and permanence of the Union. This strip of 300 miles wide, running North and South, divides the whole territory of the Union into two parts nearly equal in extent. It is a broad line of separation between the East and the West; and as the Western part fills, shall we not have on Eastern and a Western American; a set of Eastern and Western interests, the one tied to the Atlantic, and the other to the Pacific Ocean? Such a line will certainly be a broad hint to such a division. Our hope is that long before that time comes, the line itself will be obliterated. That this intermediate people will have become as assimilated to the whites on either side, in their habits and intelligence, their social habits and their political institutions, as fair for every purpose of Law and government, as in equal part of the Union.

THE MARKETS.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.

Flour—Best white wheat family, $5 a 5.25, do. do. Superfine, $4.50 a 5.25, Super Howard street, 5.12 a 5.25; City mills extra, 5.12 a 5.25; Susquehanna, 5 a 5 a Wheat, white, 1.05 a 1.05, Red, Corn, yellow, 71 a 74, white, 74 a 75; Rye, 68 Oats, 32 a 33 Beans, nominal at 1.50, Red clover, 8.00, Timothy, 1.62 Wool, Prime and Spinning Fleeces washed, 50 a 52, unwashed, 31 a 36 Full Merino, washed, 41 a 42, unwashed, 25 a 28 Merino, washed, 37 a 38, unwashed, 22 a 24. Tobacco, Maryland, 3 a 5, inspection, 21 a 22 Virginia and Ohio, 3 a 5 Merino, washed, 35 a 38, unwashed, 20 a 24 Pulled, washed, 37 a 40, unwashed, 20 a 24.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.

Wheat The receipts of Wheat since our last have been very small, equal to nominal. The sales each day amount, South in effect at $1.01 a 1.02, 20,000 bushels sold, Virginia to day at $1.04 a 1.05, in bulk, and 1.06 in bag.

Rye Sales at 70 a 70 bushels, effect at 68 cts. We quote 68 a 70 cts.

Corn In good request with moderate receipts. Sales of 35,000 bushels Yellow, first at 74 cts. 20,000 bushels White, first at 72 cts. Yellow 68 a 70 cts and White 68 a 70 cts and 1,000 in round lots at 72 cts. We quote yellow flat, at 70 a 72 and 72 a 74 cts and white 68 a 70 cts.

Oats Sales of some bushels at 32 a 33 cts, and shall. We quote 30 a 32 cts.

Executor's Sale.

BY virtue of an order of the Orphans Court of Somerset County, the subscriber as Executor of Ezekiel Jones, deceased, will offer at Public Sale, at his late residence, on WEDNESDAY the 19th of next DECEMBER, all the Personal Estate of said deceased, except negroes consisting of Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Hogs, Farming Utensils, Gig and Harness, Household and Kitchen Furniture, &c.

Any person desirous of selling property on the premises, will do so, by giving the purchaser a good title, and will be ready to attend at any time, on the day of sale, for the purpose of receiving the money, or any part thereof, at the discretion of the purchaser.

Sale to commence at 10 o'clock, A. M. when attendance will be given by JAMES STEWART, Executor.

Nov. 14, 1834.

Executor's Sale.

BY virtue of an order of the Orphans Court of Somerset County, the subscriber as Executor of Jacob Horsey, deceased, will offer at public sale, at the late residence of said deceased, on THURSDAY the 11th of next DECEMBER, all her

Personal Estate,

(Excepting negroes) The terms of sale will be a credit of six months for all sums of and over five dollars, the purchaser or purchasers giving bond with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale; and for all sums under five dollars the cash will be required.

Sale to commence at 11 o'clock, A. M.

JOSHUA P. HORSEY, Executor.

Nov. 18, 1834

Lots For Sale.

THE subscriber will sell at Public Vendue, on SATURDAY the 6th of DECEMBER next, on the premises, of Pocomoke, P. M. two Lots of Ground, with the improvements thereon in Worcester county, and now Messrs Doughtery Mill. The same formerly owned by William Bonsall, but now owned by William Bonsall of Baltimore. The terms will be cash and well merchantable and approved security. Possession given at the end of the year.

GEORGE TODD, Agent.

Wm. Bonsall

Nov. 18, 1834

Take Notice.

I hereby forewarn all persons from hunting with dog or gun on the farm occupied by me, as I am determined hereafter to put the law in force against all offenders.

JOHN SMITH.

Near Princess-Anne, Nov. 18.

$200 REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscribers living in Somerset county, on SATURDAY the 1st day of NOVEMBER, two negro men, one named MINGO, about 30 years of age, very black, and smiles when spoken to; has a seat on his right eye occasioned by a wound in a fight when 12 years old, it is yet very perceptible on an examination, and one of his feet is about an inch larger than the other; he is about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high. He took with him all his clothing, and had on when he left a drab tow coat and a white fur hat, (The other named JOHN, aged about 23 years, about 5 feet 10 inches high, of a dark chestnut color, very high cheek bones, and grave countenance; had on when he runaway, a grey fear-k coat and black fur hat. Any further description cannot be given of them. It is supposed that they are trying to make our Annapolis with some business to get a conveyance to Philadelphia or New York. The above reward will be given for both or either of them, if taken and secured so that we, or either of us, get them again.

BENJ. DASHIELL, or JOSHUA HITCH.

Nov. 11, 1834.

New and Fashionable BOOTS & SHOES.

THE subscriber, thankful for past favors, begs leave to inform his friends and the public generally, that he has just returned from Baltimore with a Choice Lot of Materials for manufacturing articles in his line of business—Also,

A FINE ASSORTMENT OF BOOTS & SHOES,

To suit the season, for Ladies and Gentlemen, Children and Servants.

Gentlemen having large families to supply, will find their orders accommodated on moderate terms.

The subscriber would also inform the Ladies that he has a fine lot of GAITER BOOTS, suitable for the winter season.

L. T. H. P. BRODWATER.

Nov. 8, 1834.

New Fall Goods.

Surrey & Polshell

HAVE just returned from Philadelphia and Baltimore and are now opening at their Store a very extensive assortment of

Fall and Winter Goods,

Among which are a variety of

Cloths, Cassimeres and Satinetts,

Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Trunks, &c. &c.

Also, a good supply of

GROCERIES,

Excepting Ardent Spirit.

All of which they will sell at the lowest price for cash, country produce or approved paper.

Rock Creek, Nov. 11, 1834.

New Cabinet Shop.

Lewin Nicholson,

CABINET MAKER,

RESPECTFULLY informs the citizens of Princess-Anne and the public generally, that he has commenced the

Cabinet Making Business,

in all its various branches, at this place, and that he hopes, that by perseverance and industry, to merit, and receive, a share of the public patronage. His Furniture will be made after the latest fashions and in the most durable manner; which he will sell as low as can be bought in Baltimore. His WARESHOP is at the OLD WAGE HOUSE, near the New Bridge.

☞ Funerals punctually attended to at the shortest notice.

August 12, 1834.

PRINTING.

THE PRINTING OF

BOOKS, PAMPHLETS,

Blanks, Cards, Labels,

BANDBILLS, &c.

Is done neatly and neatly done At the Herald Office.

Leather and Hides.

THE subscriber has taken the cellar under the house occupied by Mr. Levin Pollitt, where he will keep a good supply of

Sole and Upper Le

POETRY.

The following Song was written by Mr. Griffiths, and sung by him at the dinner lately given to the Ettrick Shepherd:—

On Ettrick banks in summer night,
The Muse of Scotia lighted down;
She held a pipe o' ivory bright,
And on her head a laurel crown.
And aye she sighed, and aye she sang,
Sin' Robin Burns has fled awa',
Oh, who sting a' the minstrel among
This pipe o' mine will ever blaw?

Like angel sang to shepherds sung,
A youthfu' Shepherd heard the strain,
Wha sill sounds the hills had strung,
A harp, tho' rude, yet 'twas his aim!
Wi' trembling hand the pipe he took,
And deftly he began to play
Wale ditties glen and fairy nook
Wi' echoes murmur'd back the lay

He sang o' Mary, Scotia's Queen,
Ere wae had dimm'd her lace sae fair—
Wheel Mary's Palace would hive been
Had tyrants never hagg'ed there.
He sang o' Scotland hauld and free,
Her stalwart sons and lassies brave,
Of social joy and cantrip glee—
For oh, the pipe he well could blaw!

The mairtial and wild and sonny glen,
The gloaming hour when lovers meet;
The simpers kiss that none mauk ken,
Were pictured in his sang yse sweet.
The muse her laurel crown untied,
And bound the same his brows upon,
And hailed him as her son, and cried
This is the Bard of Caledon!

Lang may his mairland whistle blaw,
And lang may Scotia hear the sang,
Be it aye heard by greenwood shaw,
And echoed hill and dale amang!
An' when the silent mawes o' cold,
Thick owre his head come stealing on,
He his the sang and easy hold
To shield the Bard o' Caledon!

MISCELLANEOUS

From the U. S. Telegraph.

Wild Bill.

ON THE MISSISSIPPI OBOON.

It was the lot of that wonderful person, Casper Hauser, to be contemplated and turned among a people every way disposed to make all the peculiarities of a mind permitted almost to reach maturity, before it had received the impress of a single effort at training. That training a civilized order taken by intractory, excited by an curious sort of curiosity to trace the first manifestations of his mind under its new-created impulses. Of course, we have no less one most impressive chapter upon the influence of the magnificent universe—the green earth, the sun and the moon in the blue heavens, and the grandeur of the starry hosts, which first shown to him. We have a vivid and most striking history of mind under the first impression of external nature, and the first lights of instruction.

The amazed brief and unpretending narrative lays no claim to virtue of this sort. Wild Bill, it is true, was thrown among a people humane and civilized, but he was prepared by numberless and unpermissive necessities, incident to a new settlement in the wilderness.—Their condition was too full of labor, and danger, to admit of the exercise of curiosity. Thus they were less disposed to mark the first movement of his mind, after he had been caught, the process of the training of society commenced upon him In a forest full of Indians and wild animals, Wild Bill was an object of very little legitimate interest than a tamed bear or panther. Of course, we have no his one most impressive chapter upon the influence of the magnificent universe—the green earth, the sun and the moon in the blue heavens, and the grandeur of the starry hosts, which first shown to him. We have a vivid and most striking history of mind under the first impression of external nature, and the first lights of instruction.

The amazed brief and unpretending narrative lays no claim to virtue of this sort. Wild Bill, it is true, was thrown among a people humane and civilized, but he was prepared by numberless and unpermissive necessities, incident to a new settlement in the wilderness.—Their condition was too full of labor, and danger, to admit of the exercise of curiosity. Thus they were less disposed to mark the first movement of his mind, after he had been caught, the process of the training of society commenced upon him In a forest full of Indians and wild animals, Wild Bill was an object of very little legitimate interest than a tamed bear or panther. Of course, we have no less

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess-Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1834.

DELAWARE ELECTION.

Congressional Majorities—Official.

Counties.	Milligan.	Bayard.
New Castle	48	196.
Kent	319
Sussex	301
Milligan's maj in the State	153

ELECTION RETURNS.

Cincinnati, Nov. 12, 1834.

Mr. Lyle has been elected to supply the vacancy created by his late resignation.—The votes stand as follows:

Lytle,	2693
Mason,	2519—Lytle's maj. 48

THE LATE ELECTIONS.

The recent Congressional elections in the States below named, have resulted as follows:

	Jackson.	Anti-J.
Maine*	5	2
Connecticut†		6
New Jersey	6
Pennsylvania	17	11
Ohio	9	10
South Carolina	4	7
Georgia	9	0
New York	31	9
Massachusetts‡		11
Delaware	1
	72	56

*One vacancy.

†The last was an election to fill three vacancies. The Anti-Jackson candidate succeeded. The present members to Congress, three in number, are also Anti-Jackson.

‡In two districts there is no choice.

Illinois.—Wm. L. May, member elect to the 24th Congress, from Illinois, was on the 27th ult. elected a member of the present Congress, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Gen. DUNCAN. There was no opposing candidate.

North Carolina.—The legislature of this State were to meet yesterday. A part of its business will be to elect a Senator in Congress, in the place of the Hon. BEDFORD BROWN, whose term of service will expire on the third of March next. That gentleman will be the Administration candidate. Gov. SWAIN, is spoken of, as also be a candidate, and be supported by the Opposition. The friends of the Administration are of opinion, that Mr. Brown will be re-elected.

Louisiana!—They have commenced agitating the question in Louisiana, who succeed Mr. Waggaman in the U. S. States Senate.—The Tribune of the Intelligencer mentions the name of several Lawyers whom report says will be candidates viz. John Brownson, of Avoyelles, George Eustis of New Orleans, and Gen. Roman. We have heard the name of Judge R. B. Temple mentioned also, by Matter Rumor.—Belcher Journal.

Charles Derbigny, Esq. President of the Senate of Louisiana has consented to become a candidate for the United States Senate. Mr. Waggaman, the present Senator, will probably also be a candidate.

New Jersey.—The new State Penitentiary at Trenton, N. J. contains 150 cells, and will be entirely completed next summer. The cost will be $148,000. It is built after the designs of Mr. John Haviland of Philadelphia, and will be the best specimen of Egyptian architecture in this country.

We understand that a bill for the opening of a continuous Rail Road from Philadelphia to New York, by the route of Trenton and New Brunswick, has been reported in the Legislature of New Jersey, now sitting at Trenton.—N. Y. Mer. Adv.

In consequence of a communication from the South Carolina Association, requesting Council to take into consideration the propriety of refusing permission to colored persons to have religious meetings after sunset, or to set up with the corpses of slaves or persons of color, that body has adopted resolutions prohibiting such meetings, and are determined to enforce the acts of the legislature, passed in 1800 and 1805, on this subject, which acts authorize all persons duly commissioned by the State or City, to disperse such meetings and to impose such punishment as they are now authorized to impose under the Patrol law.—Charleston Pat.

Bank of Delaware County, at Chester, Pa.—Some uneasiness prevails respecting the solvency of this institution, having recently been put in circulation, a run is 'being made' upon the Bank, in consequence of which, the Brokers in this city last week refused to purchase the notes, except at an exorbitant rate of discount.—Bickwell.

The Bank of Washington gives notice that it has resumed specie payments, which were suspended in April last. A wholesome sign of the times.—Ib.

Georgia.—From a message from the Governor of Georgia, to the Legislature of that State, we perceive that the troubles respecting the Indian residents in that State, and the question of State rights as connected with the jurisdiction over the country held by them, have not terminated. There has it seems been another citation of the State to appear before the Supreme Court of the United States, which will, it is probable, have about as much effect as a former one had. We were in hopes that we were done with the question.

FROM ENGLAND.

Burning of both Houses of Parliament.

Between 8 and 7 o'clock on the evening of the 16th October, a fire burst out from one of the apartments connected with the House of Lords: the burning spread with fearful rapidity, and soon consumed the Houses of Lords and Commons, the Library of the latter, most of the Committee Rooms, the Painted Chamber, and a number of other offices. The house of Mr Ley, Clerk of the Commons, and all the habitations situated between the Lord's Journal Office, and the Speaker's house, with the greater part of the Speaker's house itself were burnt. The conflagration ultimately extended all round the new front buildings of the Lords, utterly consuming the rooms of the Lord Chancellor, Mr Courtney, and the other offices ranging round to Hayes' Coffee House. Bellamy's kitchen and rooms are destroyed, Westminster Hall is saved, and the Courts of Law have escaped, though their ranks were stopped off and water poured into the organ. Westmacott's Alfred was preserved in mud having blown from the S. W. and West Great exertions were made to preserve papers, records, and books in the Libraries; but as yet it is impossible to say what is the extent of the damage.

The attempt to empty, is in progress to the extent of the room is, but there is no the slightest reason to suppose that it is more than any other of certain cases.

The New York Commercial acknowledges the receipt of Trinidad papers of a late date.

On the 11th of Sept. and for two days previous, alarming riots occurred at the Port of Spain. On the last of those days it consisted of 1000 persons—freed blacks—who assembled to tear down the jail and rescue a black prisoner who they alleged, had been treated with indignity by the jailor. They were ultimately dispersed by the troops, and the subject ordered to be investigated by the civil tribunals.

By the S. Vincent's Gazette of 11th Oct. we learn that 50 chests of tea which had been landed from the American schooner Tuliamagh, in pinnacles, concealed in casks, were set on the 9th ult. The pan beams were entered at the Custom House as containing oats only.

DEATH BY POISON.

A correspondent of the National Intelligencer states that on the evening of the 8th ult. while Dr. Hanna and lady, of Prince George's county, Md., were absent from home, their two sons, aged 7 and 5 years, were suddenly seized with a violent vomiting and excessive thirst. Suspicion was immediately entertained by their returning parents that they were poisoned, which was strengthened by the successive deaths of both these innocent children. One of them was deserted, and the stomach, with its contents, sent to Dr. Thomas P. Jones, of Washington, who, after applying the usual tests, pronounced it to contain two and a half grains of arsenic. Circumstances had in the meantime transpired, which fixed the horrid guilt upon a female black servant only 14 years old. She was interrogated, and confessed the deed very readily; she said that she had taken the arsenic from her mistress's shop, and strewed it over the supper of the children, which consisted of rice and milk. She also confessed that she was the person who last year made the attempt to burn the dwelling house down, which was only frustrated by a timely discovery. But, oh! horrible to relate! she further confessed, that two years ago she also poisoned an infant of 7 months old, the daughter of this much to be pitied couple, which then died very suddenly, without any suspicion of poison. What renders those acts more atrocious is, that she is one of an excellent family of servants, and has kind and indulgent master and mistress to serve.

Outrage and Murder.—The Baltimore papers of Friday contain an account of an outrage committed on the line of the Washington Rail Road, eighteen miles from this former city, which resulted in the murder of three superintendents of the work, named Watson, Mercer and Callan, and the personal injury of several other persons. The disturbance took place between twelve o'clock on Wednesday night and one on Thursday morning last, and the attacking party or mob consisted of about forty men, laborers, who had been discharged by Watson from his division of the road. It appears that they also perpetrated a robbery to the amount of several thousand dollars, that sum of the company's money having been in the office-desk at Mr. W's. They had not yet, according to the accounts, been apprehended; but it is to be hoped and expected that the lawless wretches will be duly brought to justice.—C. Chron.

The steam-boat Connecticut is advertised to leave New York on the 18th inst. for Charleston, Key West, and New Orleans. The New York Courier and Enquirer says, that she can take 100 tons of light freight, and accommodate from one to two hundred and fifty passengers, having a spacious cabin below and a ladies cabin on deck.

We have reason to look upon the sailing of the Connecticut, (says the Courier) as a beginning in the contemplated establishment of a regular line of steam boats from New York to Tampico and Vera Cruz, by the way of Charleston, Havanna, N. Orleans, and Matamoras. By this means, not only the time at present required to carry on an intercourse, with the important island of Cuba, and New Orleans will be much shortened, but also the passage from and to Vera Cruz, which averages some twenty six days, can then be effected according to the best calculation, in thirteen days.

North Carolina Gold Coin.—The Cabinets have contrived to put their gold into a shape to pass by tale. Several skilful artists have established themselves in the gold regions, and have acquired so much reputation for accuracy, that their pieces of gold mustard, five dollars, are worth more than half eagles. It is a kind of impostor, yet we think it may fairly make front and present itself to the world as genuine without incurring the same penalty which is attached to counterfeiting the national coin or in fact any penalty at all.—Journal of Com.

Mr. Chapman.—A letter from a gentleman in Cincinnati, Ohio, states that Mr. Chapman, alias Moss, and his confederates, travelling through that country, attached a company of strolling players in one or two towns, the writer says, for whom he had been made known, and she was promptly hissed off the stage.—Phil. Gaz.

Statement of the amount of Gold received during the month, succeeding, on the 1st of November, 1834, with the sum deposited for coinage, and coined within the week ending November 15th—together with the amount of Gold coinage executed.

Remaining on hand at the M'nt, November 8,	$120 000
Deposited for coinage during the week ending Nov. 15, viz:
Deposited bullion,	$22 200
Coins of the United States of inferior size and fineness,	104 700
	$126 900
	$246 900
Amount coined within the week ending Nov. 15th, including $63 300 in quarter eagles,	127 000
Remaining on hand,	$119 900
Amount coined from 1st August to 8th November,	$2 708 000
Amount coined from 8th to 15th November,	127 000
Total amount of coin,	$2 835 000

Statement of Specie imported into the United States for the 1st December, 1834.

Amount of gold and silver imported during the week ending 15th Nov.	$28 747 010 58
Exports of gold and silver,	1 000
Specie imported at the Treasury Department,	$28 746 010 58
Gold bullion,	$291 299 00
Gold ore,	554 909 94
Not deposited,	2 967 00
	$841 566 94
Total imports since first July last,	$29 587 577 52

Ibid.

Religious Jubilation.—After all, the greatest of all difficulties in the way of union among Christians is a worldly, carnal ambition among the distinguished leaders. Take away the desire of preeminence, and the pride of opinion, and the difficulty vanishes. Study to profess meekness and love.—Evangelist.

INDIAN LANDS.

We learn from the Indiana Sentinel, that General Marshall has concluded a treaty with the Miamies, for the purchase of a portion of their lands. With the exception of a small reserve at Turtle-town, on the head waters of Red River, and a reserve about nine miles square, near the mouth of the Aboite, all the lands of the Miamies, north of the Wabash River, including a tract of five miles in width, extending from the Wabash to Red River, have been ceded to the U. States; and also a portion of the Great Reserve south of the Wabash, extending from Logansport six miles up the river, and 34 miles back—making in the whole upwards of 200,000 acres.

Perhaps in no part of the United States, remarks the Sentinel, can a body of land of the same extent be found, which will bear a comparison with this cession, either in regard to quality of soil, or advantages of situation. The greater part of it is among the richest and most fertile land in the West; it is generally covered with a fine growth of the most beautiful timber, of all the varieties found in this region, and is extremely well watered, abounding in streams and springs of the purest water, and affording numerous fine mill sites. Lime and building stone are also plentiful. In addition to these advantages, the Wabash and Erie Canal, which is destined to become, at no distant day, one of the principal channels of commerce in the United States, runs through a considerable portion of these lands. A tract of land offering so many advantages, will doubtless settle with rapidity; and we confidently anticipate that as soon as it can be brought into market, the rush of emigrants to this region will be such as has been rarely if ever witnessed.

AUDACIOUS FORGERY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.

One of the most extraordinary cases of impudence and effrontery that has occurred for a long time, accompanied by an intoxication equally great and inexplicable, was developed in this city on Saturday. On the 4th inst. a respectable looking young man entered into the Bank of the United States, and went into the Teller's office and presented a check drawn by the firm of Stone, Swan and Mason, of Pine Street, for $2 900, had been that day presented for payment. The Teller having ascertained that it had been the case, replied in the negative, at which the young man seemed highly delighted, and requested the Teller against paying such a check, as it happened to be presented, saying that he had lost one of the Tellers! a check drawn by the firm of Stone, Swan and Mason, of Pine Street, for $2 900, had been that day presented for payment. The Teller having ascertained that it had been the case, replied in the negative, at which the young man seemed highly delighted, and requested the Teller against paying such a check, as it happened to be presented, saying that he had lost one of the Tellers! a check drawn by the firm of Stone, Swan and Mason, of Pine Street, and was handed $2 900, which he went away. On 6th inst. he again called at the Bank and drew a check for $500, which was also paid. On the 10th he presented a check for $1 500, and was also paid it. Making, in all, $4,100, which he received on the four checks. On the day the last check was paid, Messrs. Stone, Swan and Mason received an intimation from the Bank that they had overdrawn their account, in consequence of which, on the next morning, when the checks came to be settled, on examining their own books there appeared 24 c. $19, 000 remaining in their credit at the Bank. Upon this the firm immediately proceeded to the Bank to obtain an explanation on the subject, and was then informed that the forgeries had been made known, and she was promptly hissed off the stage.—Phil. Gaz.

Statement of the amount of Gold remaining in the Mint, succeeded, on the 1st of November, 1834, with the sum deposited for coinage, and coined within the week ending November 15th—together with the amount of Gold coinage executed.

Remaining on hand at the Mint, November 8,	$120 000
Deposited for coinage during the week ending Nov. 15, viz:
Deposited bullion,	$22 200
Coins of the United States of inferior size and fineness,	104 700
	$126 900
	$246 900
Amount coined within the week ending Nov. 15th, including $63 300 in quarter eagles,	127 000
Remaining on hand,	$119 900
Amount coined from 1st August to 8th November,	$2 708 000
Amount coined from 8th to 15th November,	127 000
Total amount of coin,	$2 835 000

Statement of Specie imported into the United States for the 1st December, 1834.

Amount of gold and silver imported during the week ending 15th Nov.	$28 747 010 58
Exports of gold and silver,	1 000
Specie imported at the Treasury Department,	$28 746 010 58
Gold bullion,	$291 299 00
Gold ore,	554 909 94
Not deposited,	2 967 00
	$841 566 94
Total imports since first July last,	$29 587 577 52

Ibid.

$100 REWARD.

RANAWAY from the sub scriber about the 4th of October, a negro man named JACK. Think he might be about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches—color, dark chestnut—when excited discovers an impediment in his speech. Had on when he left a suit of dark fustian clothing. As he formerly belonged to a Mr Harris, he may call himself Jack Harris—He was last seen a few weeks ago, on Wicomico River below Westpoint. I will give the above reward to his apprehension and confinement so that I may get him

ASA PHILLIPS.

Westpoint, Nov. 25, 1834.

GOVERNOR LUMPKIN'S MESSAGE.

The first part of the message is taken up with a representation of the state of the Indian Question, so long a harrassing one in Georgia, and in the way of the settlement of which there seem to be yet obstinate difficulties. The Governor states, that the act of the General Assembly, passed at the last session, more effectually to provide for the government and protection of the Cherokee Indians, has met with such opposition and obstruction as cannot be overlooked by the present legislature, without prostrating the rights of the citizens of Georgia and the sovereignty of the State, at the feet of a combination of intercested individuals, more effectually men, supported and sustained by the Judge of the superior courts of the circuit in which the Indians chiefly reside, and countenanced at least by a majority of the Judges of the superior courts of the State. The Judge of the circuit above alluded to has sanctioned and sustained bills of injunction which go to deny the existence of the authority of one law, but the entire legislation of the State in that circuit. These sanctioned bills of injunction, says the Governor, allege that the entire code of Georgia, referred to a statute granting certain Indian lands to citizens of Georgia,—is null and void, because contrary to the constitution of the United States and of Georgia itself. Of the laws of Georgia, enacted by the immediate representatives of her people, violative of no constitution human or divine, and ratified by her sovereign rights and powers." Such is the tone in which the Governor speaks of the acts of a high judicial tribunal in his State. "The effect," he complains, "has been to revive the delusive and exploding hopes of the Cherokees that they would be sustained in their unreasonable pretensions to the rights of independent self-government within the chartered limits of Georgia."

He states that the Treaty of 1791 of the United States recently entered a treaty to be entered into with a delegation of the Cherokees at Washington of "unparalleled liberality" in regard to their Friend Gen. Jackson, but this treaty was not sanctioned by the Senate. The Governor concludes that portion of the Message relating to the Indian Question with the following remark at the abundance of the Indian Legislature has an unpleasonable right to make it a highly penal crime to say citizen or inhabitant of the State to assist, and to counsel in any measure, or to be concerned in any process, which shall bring an question before any tribunal of the State or the United States, our rights of sovereignty and jurisdiction over our entire population and territory."

Although several Rail Road companies were incorporated at the last session of the General Assembly, with liberal charters, it do has been as yet done, and the Governor appears to think that not much is to be expected from that quarter. He recommended that the Legislature consider how great a portion of the population of the State is now in the western country, "a portion which has passed at the last session, more effectually to provide for the government and protection of the Cherokee Indians, has met with such opposition and obstruction as cannot be overlooked by the present legislature, without prostrating the rights of the citizens of Georgia and the sovereignty of the State, at the feet of a combination of inter

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess-Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1834.

DELAWARE ELECTION.

Conversional Majorities.—Official.

Counties.	Milligan.	Bayard.
New Castle	49	196.
Kent	801
Sussex		319
		126
Milligan's maj in the State	153

ELECTION RETURNS.

Cincinnati, Nov. 12, 1834.

Mr. Lytle is reelected to supply the vacancy created by his late resignation.—The votes stand as follows:

Lytle	2603
Mason,	2555	—Lytle's maj 48

THE LATE ELECTIONS.

The recent Congressional elections in the States below named, have resulted as follows:

	Jackson	Antijack
Maine*	5	2
Connecticut		6
New Jersey	6	1
Pennsylvania	17	11
Ohio	9	10
South Carolina	4	7
Georgia	9	0
New York	31	10
Massachusett.†		8
Delaware		1
	77	56

*One vacancy. †The last was at the time of the elections, The Antijackson candidates succeeded. The present members to Congress, three in number, are also Anti-Jackson.

In two districts there is no choice.

Illinois.—Wm L. Ewing, member elect to the 24th Congress from Illinois, was on the 27th ult. elected a member of the present Congress, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Gen Duncan. There was no opposing candidate.

North Carolina.—The legislature of this State were to meet yesterday. A portion of its business will be to elect a Senator in Congress, in the place of the Hon Bryan Brown, whose term of service will expire on the third of March next. That gentleman will be the Administration candidate, Gov. Swain, it is probable, will also be a candidate, and he supported by the Opposition. The friends of the Administration are of opinion, that Mr. Brown will be reelected.

Louisiana!—They have commenced agitating the question in Louisiana, who shall succeed Mr Waggaman in the Unites States Senate. The Picayune of the 15th instant mentions the name of several gentlemen who report says will be candidates: viz. John Bouvier, of Avoyelles, George Eustis of New Orleans, and Henry Bonnan. We have heard the name of Hon. R. C. Tuomey mentioned also, by Mr. Romar.—Natchez Journal.

Charles Derbigny, Esq. President of the Senate of Louisiana has consented to become a candidate for the United States Senate. Mr. Waggaman, the present Senator, will probably also be a candidate.

New Jersey.—The new State Penitentiary at Trenton, N. J. contains 150 cells and will be entirely completed next summer. The cost will be $148,000. It is built after the design of Mr. John Haviland of Philadelphia, and will be the best specimen of Egyptian architecture in this country.

We understand that a bill for the opening of a continuous Rail Road from Philadelphia to New York, by the route of Trenton and New Brunswick, has been reported to the Legislature of New Jersey, now sitting at Trenton.—N Y. Mer Adv.

In consequence of a communication from the South Carolina Association, requesting Council to take into consideration the propriety of refusing permission to colored persons to have religious meetings after sunset, or to act up with the corpses of slaves or persons of color, that body has adopted resolutions prohibiting such meeting, and are determined to enforce the acts of the legislature, passed in 1800 and 1803, on this subject, which acts authorize all persons duly commissioned by the State or City, to disperse such meetings and to impose such punishment as they are now authorized to impose under the Patrol law.—Charleston Pat.

Bank of Delaware County, at Chester, Pa.—Some unfavorable rumors, respecting the solvency of this institution, having recently been put in circulation, a run is 'being made' upon the Bank, in consequence of which, the Brokers in this city last week refused to purchase the notes, except at an exorbitant rate of discount.—Bicknell.

The Bank of Washington gives notice that it has resumed specie payments, which were suspended in April last. A wholesome sign of the times.—Ib.

Georgia.—From a message from the Governor of Georgia to the Legislature of that State, we perceive that the trouble respecting the Indian residents in that State, and the question of State rights as connected with the jurisdiction over the country held by them, have not terminated. There has it seems been another citation of the State to appear before the Supreme Court of the United States, which will, it is probable, have about as much effect as a form er one had. We were in hopes that we were done with the question.

FROM ENGLAND.

Burning of both Houses of Parliament.

Between 5 and 7 o'clock on the evening of the 16th October, a fire burst out from one of the apartments connected with the House of Lords and Commons, the Library of the latter, much of the Committee Rooms, the Painted Chamber, and a number of other offices. The house of Mr Lay, Clerk of the Commons, and all the habitations situated between the Lords Journal Office, and the Speaker's house, with the greater part of the Speaker's house itself were burnt. The conflagration ultimately extended all round the new front buildings of the Lords, utterly consuming the rooms of the Lord Chancellor, Mr. Courtney, and the other offices ranging round it. Hyde Park Gate House, Hi House, Such as yet remains are detached, Westminster Hall is saved, and the Courts of Law have escaped, though the roofs were stopped off, and water poured into the wigwam. Westminster Abbey was untouched, the wind having blown from the S. W. and West first, extensive works made to prevent sparks, brands, and burning pieces of wood, which in the Libraries, have spread to a prodigious extent of the damage.

The structural repairs are in progress at the moment of this account, but there is no the slightest reason to suppose that it has experienced any further extent of ruin.

The New York Commercial at hand, yesterday in receipt of Tuesday papers of a date.

On the 14th of Sept and for two days after, alarming riots occurred at the Port of Spain. On the last of those days it consisted of 1000 persons—freed blacks—who assembled to tear down the jail and rescue a black prisoner who they alleged, had been treated with undue severity by the police. They were ultimately dispersed by the troops, and the subject ordered to be investigated by the civil tribunals.

By the S. Vincent's Gazette of 11th Oct we learn that 50 chests of tea which had been landed from the American schooner Tuliamondy, in punchroons, concealed in casks, were set off the 18th ult. The pun heons were entered at the Custom House as containing oats only.

DEATH BY POISON.

A correspondent of the National Intelligencer states that on the evening of the 8th ult. while Dr Brown and lady of Prince George's county, Md., were absent from home, their two sons, aged 7 and 5 years, were and lady seized with a violent vomiting and excessive thirst. Suspicion was immediately entertained by their anxious parents that they were poisoned, which was soon strengthened by the sudden death of both the two innocent children. One of them was deserted, and the stomach, with its contents, sent to Dr Thomas P. Jones, of Washington, who, after applying the usual tests, pronounced it to contain two or a half grains of arsenic. Circumstances led to the mean now transpired, which fixed the horrid guilt upon a female black, a servant only 11 years old. She was interrogated, and confessed the deed very readily, she said that she had taken the arsenic from her mistress' shop, and strewed it over the supper of the children, which consisted of rice and milk. She also confessed that she was the person who last year made the attempt to burn the dwelling house down, which was only frustrated by a timely discovery. But, oh! horrible to relate! she further confessed, that two years ago she also poisoned an infant of 7 months old, the daughter of this same mistress, and she was then dried very suddenly, without any suspicion of poison. What renders these acts more atrocious is, that she is one of an excellent family of servants, and has a kind and indulgent master and mistress to serve.

Outrage and Murder.—The Baltimore papers of Friday contain an account of an outrage committed on the line of the Washington Rail Road, eighteen miles from the former city, which resulted in the murder of three superintendents of the work, named Watson, Mercer and Calhoun, and the personal injury of several other persons. The disturbance took place between twelve o'clock on Wednesday night and one on Thursday morning, and the attacking party or mob consisted of about forty men, laborers, who had been discharged by Watson from his division of the road. It appears that they also perpetrated a robbery to the amount of several thousand dollars, that sum of the company's money having been in the office-desk at Mr. W's. They had not yet, according to the accounts, been apprehended; but it is to be hoped and expected that the lawless wretches will be duly brought to justice.—C. Chron.

The steam boat Connecticut is advertised to leave New York on the 18th inst. for Charleston, Key West, and New Orleans. The New York Courier and Enquirer says that she will take 100 tons of light freight, and accommodate from one to two hundred and fifty passengers, having a spacious cabin below and a ladies cabin on deck.

We have reason to look upon the sailing of the Connecticut, (says the Courier,) as a beginning in the contemplated establishment of a regular line of steam boats from New York to Tampico and Vera Cruz by way of Charleston, Havana, N Orleans, and Matanzas. By this means, not only the time at present required to carry on an intercourse, with the ports of Havana of Cuba, and New Orleans will be much shortened, but also the passage from and to Vera Cruz, which averages some twenty six days, will then be effected according to the best calculation, in thirteen days.

North Carolina Gold Coin.—The Cornhill Banks are contemplating to put their gold into a shape to pass for rule. Several skilful assayists have established themselves in the gold region, and have acquired so much reputation for accuracy, that their pieces of gold marked "five dollars," pass every where as half eagles. It is a kind of impertinence, to be sure, that we finally make, tenable, as these pieces may be counterfeited without incurring the same penalty which is attached to counterfeiting the national coin, or in fact any penalty at all.

Journal of Com.

Mrs. Chapman.—A letter from a gentleman in Cincinnati, Ohio, states that Mrs Chapman, alias Moss, such a children, or rescuing the negro that was put into the company of stealing slaves in one of our cases, the writer mentions, her character is good in that place. Known, and she was promptly turned off the stage.—Phil. Gaz.

Statement of the amount of Gold Coinage in the Mint, commenced on the 5th of November, 1834, with the sum deposited for coinage, and coined within the week ending November 15th—together with the amount of Gold coinage exported.

Remaining on hand at the Mint, Nov. 5	$220 000
Deposit of Foreign gold during the week ending Nov. 15, viz:
Coin of the United States of inferior fineness	$22 200
Bullion	10,000
	12,200
	$232,200
Amount coined within the week ending Nov 15th, including $63 200 in quarter eagles	127 000
Remaining on hand,	$105 200
Amount coined from 1st August to 5th November,	$2 721 900
Amount coined from 1st August to 15th November,	$2 848,900
Total amount of bullion at the Mint,	$2 848,900
Amount of Foreign gold received at the Mint,	$22 200
Amount of Foreign gold coined,	$127 000
Total amount of Foreign gold received at the Mint,	$149,200

Statement of Specie exported from the United States from 1st July to 1st October, 1834.

Amount as per report of 1st July	$28 737,010 56
Exported since 1st July, as per Treasury Department,	6 111 566
Gold,	2,000 00
Silver,	554 166 94
Not designated,	7 102 10
	$41 566 24
Total exports since 1st July,	$19,611 576 82

Ibid.

Religious Jubilation.—More all, the greatest of all difficulties in the way of mankind being Christian is a wonderful fond jealousy among the distinguished leaders. Take away the desire of preeminence, and the pride of opinions, and the difficulty vanishes. "Only by pride cometh contention".—Evangelist.

INDIAN LANDS.

We learn from the Indiana Sentinel, that General Marshall has concluded a treaty with the Miami Indians, for the purchase of a portion of their lands. With the exception of a small reserve at Turtle-town, on the head waters of Eel River, and a reserve about nine miles square, near the mouth of the Aboite, all the lands of the Miamies, north of the Wabash River, including a tract of five miles in width, extending from the Wabash to Eel River, have been ceded to the U. States; and also a portion of the Great Reserve south of the Wabash, extending from Logansport six miles up the river, and 54 miles back—making in the whole upwards of 200,000 acres.

Perhaps in no part of the United States, remarks the Sentinel, can a body of land of the same extent be found, which will bear a comparison with this cession, either in regard to quality of soil, or advantages of situation. The greater part of it is bounded by the richest and most fertile land in the West; it is generally covered with a fine growth of the most beautiful timber, of all the varieties found in this region; it is extremely well watered, abounding in streams and springs of the purest water, and affording numerous fine mill sites; lime and building stone are also plentiful. In addition to these advantages, the Wabash and Erie Canal, which is destined to become, at no distant day, one of the principal channels of commerce in the United States, runs through a considerable portion of these lands. A tract of land offering so many advantages, will doubtless settle with rapidity; and we confidently anticipate that as soon as it can be brought into market, the rush of emigrants to this region will be such as has been rarely if ever witnessed.

AUDACIOUS FORGERY.

New York, Oct. 11.

One of the most extraordinary pieces of impudence and effrontery that has occurred for a long time, accompanied by an imitation equally great and impudent, has was developed in this city on Saturday. On the 4th inst. a respectable looking young man went into the Bank of the United States, and asked one of the Tellers of a check drawn by the Office of State, Swan and Mason, at Pine Street, for $2 900, had been that day presented for payment. The Teller having examined it which had been the case, replied in the negative; at which the young man seemed highly delighted, and exclaimed, Mr Teller again opening such a check as it happened to be presented, saying that he had drawn one for that amount the same morning, and handed it to the teller. The young man of such a person might have pocketed it, and presented it for payment, of said he, I am very anxious to draw a check for the same amount, which he accordingly did, and was handed $2 900, with which he went away. On the 6th inst. he again called at the Bank and drew a check for $500, which was also paid. On the 9th he again called at the Bank and drew a check for $500, which was also paid. On the 9th he again presented a check for $7500 and was also paid it. Making, in all, $11,400 which he received in the four checks. On the day the last check was paid, Messrs. Swan and Mason received an account from the Bank of the United States, of their account, a circumstance which astonished them not a little, as they had published them not; for they supposed the forgery to have been committed in their name in the Bank of the United States, and upon the Bank's account in that of one child seven years old, who died in the bath.

The mode of treatment he recommends is, that the person hill should take a certain number of vapour baths (commonly call: 1 Russian) and should induce, every night, a violent perspiration, by wrapping himself in flannels and covering himself with a heavy bed; the transpiration is facilitated by drinking fresh fluids and infusions of sarsaparilla. He declares, so convinced is he of the efficacy of this mode of treatment, that he will suffer himself to be bitten and with the disease. As a proof of the utility of copious and continued perspiration, he relates the following anecdote: A relative of the musician Gretry was bitten by a mad dog, at the same time with many other persons, who all died of hydrophobia. For his part, feeling the first symptom of the disease, he took to drinking and dry, saying that he would be cured, or dry. He recovered.

M. Bosson also cites the old stories of dreamers seeking a remedy for the bite of a mad dog, and draws the attention to the fact, that the animals in whom this malady is most frequently found to develop itself spontaneously, are dogs, wolves and foxes, which never perspire.

THE MARKETS.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21

Flour—Howard st. sales, 5,000 bbls Mdlts at 5 75 Superfine 5 00 5 25, Inspection 5 25 5 50 Wagon 5 50 5 62 Mdlts 5 75 5 87 Wheat, 71 a 74, Corn 50 a 51 Rye, 70 a 74, Oats, 32 a 33, Rye 55 a 58, Pork, 1,50 Bacon 5 a 5 1/2 Lard 6 a 6 1/2 Tobacco 3,50, F a ters 37 a 40, Ohio 50 a 55 Flaxseed, 1,50, Cloverseed 5 a 5 1/2 Flour washed, Wall opportunity gets 1 a 2 Fall Mfg. standard, then they do at present. The progress already made by some competent and men mites continue to the different states of the Union, Mr. Tudor is the belief, that all the principal Atlantic cities, from New York to New Orleans will, before the present generation shall have passed away, be brought in near together, by one continuous line of the best construction. He says, and most learned where Swan and Mason kept their account, and was also enabled to imitate the signature. He said yesterday, twenty years of age, of from his appearance and bearing at the Place office, she could scarcely engage from capital of a much village. He was fully committed for trial.

An automaton writing figure is being exhibited at Philadelphia; it is the production of a German artist, Mr. Mockler, the result of two years close application and study. It represents the figure of a lady sitting at a table, and writes with facility and accuracy, the exclamation of the audience. The figure itself, being of full size, has quite an interesting appearance. The moving of the eyes and eyelids, just previous to its commencing to write, and the peculiar vibration of the head and body, as she puts herself into its influence on the position of the figure, gives the appearance of a real living being. The Philadelphia Gazette, after a long description of the exhibition, concludes by saying that the ingenuity of the contrivance, and the skill displayed in the execution, are both very creditable to the artist.

H. Bosson has written to the Paris Academy of Sciences, to claim as his a small treatise on hydrophobia, addressed to the academy as far back as 1823, and signed with a single initial. The case referred to in that treatise was his own; the particulars, and the mode of cure adopted, are as follows:—

He had been called to visit a woman who, for three days was said to be suffering under this disease. She had the usual symptoms—constriction of the throat, inability to swallow, abundant secretion of saliva, and foaming at the mouth. Her neighbors said that she had been bitten by a mad dog about forty days before. At her own urgent entreaties she was bled, and died a few hours after, as was expected.

M. Bosson, who had his hand covered with blood, immediately cleansed them with a towel which had been used to wipe the mouth of the patient. He then had an alteration upon one of his fingers, yet thought it sufficient to wash off the saliva that adhered, with a little water. The 9th day after, being in his cabriolet he was suddenly seized with a pain in his throat, and one, still greater, in his eyes. The saliva continually pouring into his mouth, the impression of a current of air, the sight of brilliant bodies, gave him a painful sensation; his body appeared to him so light, that he felt as though he could leap to a prodigious light; he experienced, he said, a wish to run and bite, not men, but animals, and inanimate bodies. Finally he drank with difficulty, and the sight of water still more distressing to him than the pain in his throat. These symptoms recovered every five minutes, and it appeared to him as though the pain commenced in the affected finger, and extended thence to the shoulder.

From the whole of the symptoms he judged himself affected with hydrophobia, and resolved to terminate his life by stifling himself in a vapor bath. Having entered, one for this purpose, he caused heat to be raised to 42 deg. (107 deg. 24 cent.). Again he was seizing with pain, and delight, and to find himself free from all complaint. He left the bathing room well, dined heartily, and drank more than usual. Since that time, he says he has treated in the same manner more than eighty persons bitten, in four of whom the symptoms had declared themselves, and in no case has failed excepting in that of one child seven years old, who died in the bath.

The mode of treatment he recommends is, that the person hill should take a certain number of vapour baths (commonly call: 1 Russian) and should induce, every night, a violent perspiration, by wrapping himself in flannels and covering himself with a heavy bed; the transpiration is facilitated by drinking fresh fluids and infusions of sarsaparilla. He declares, so convinced is he of the efficacy of this mode of treatment, that he will suffer himself to be bitten and with the disease. As a proof of the utility of copious and continued perspiration, he relates the following anecdote: A relative of the musician Gretry was bitten by a mad dog, at the same time with many other persons, who all died of hydrophobia. For his part, feeling the first symptom of the disease, he took to drinking and dry, saying that he would be cured, or dry. He recovered.

M. Bosson also cites the old stories of dreamers seeking a remedy for the bite of a mad dog, and draws the attention to the fact, that the animals in whom this malady is most frequently found to develop itself spontaneously, are dogs, wolves and foxes, which never perspire.

$100 REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscriber about the 4th of October, a negro man named JACK. He is about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches—black, dark complexed and has a small scar on one of his cheeks, and a small lump on the back of his neck, he is a very good waiter, and has been used to waiting on a gentleman, he may have changed his name, and may be in the city of Baltimore, he has a wife belonging to Mr. Thomas Bowie, living near Upper Marlboro, Prince George's county, Md. I will give the above reward to any person who will secure him in any jail so that I may get him.

ASA PHILLIPS

Westpoint, Nov. 26, 1834.

GOVERNOR LUMPKIN'S MESSAGE.

The first part of the message is taken up with a representation of the state of the Indian Question, so long a harrassing one in Georgia, and in the way of the settlement of which there seem to be yet obstinate difficulties. The Governor states, that the act of the General Assembly, passed at the last session, more effectually to provide for the government and protection of the Cherokee Indians, has met with such opposition and obstruction as cannot be overlooked by the present legislature, without impeaching the morals of the citizens of Georgia and the sovereignty of the State, at the feet of a combination of interested individuals and civilized men, supported and sustained by the Judge of the superior courts of the circuit in which the Indians chiefly reside, and countenanced at least by a majority of the Judges of the supreme courts of the State. The Judge of the circuit above alluded to has sanctioned and sustained bills of injunction which go to deny not only the authority of our law, but the entire legislation of the State in that matter. These sanctioned bills of injunction, says the Governor, alleges, that the statute of Georgia, referred to a statute granting certain Indian lands to certain chiefs, which statute was duly passed, and has been fully carried into effect by the immediate representatives of her people, violative of no constitution human or divine, can be nullified by a few interested lawyers and one solitary Judge—then indeed it is time for the people of Georgia to talk of their sovereign rights and powers." Such is the tone in which the Governor speaks of the acts of a high judicial tribunal in the South. "The effect," he complains, "has been to revive the delusive and exploding hopes of the Cherokees that they would be sustained in their unreasonable pretensions to the rights of independent self-government within the chartered limits of Georgia."

He states that the President of the United States recently conferred a tract of land in Georgia, but into treaty was not sanctioned by the Senate. The Governor concludes that portion of the Message in regard to the Indian Question with the declaration, aimed at the obstinate judgment of the Legislature to an unpleasant tone of feeling, "I have no wish to speak of the subject in a high penal crime in any citizen or inhabitant of the State to assert and maintain in any manner, or in any circumstances, which shall have the effect of bringing before any tribunal of this State or the United States, our rights of sovereignty and jurisdiction over our entire population and territory."

Although several Rail Road companies were incorporated at the last session of the General Assembly, with liberal charters, little has been as yet done, and the Governor appears to think that not much is to be expected from [illegible]

He recommends that [illegible] derable use great [illegible]

[illegible] the view of [illegible] one time through the mountains of North western Georgia," to a point within the route through Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee to Memphis on the Mississippi river. In regard to the trade of the Atlantic cities with the west, Governor Lumpkin makes the following pertinent remarks:

"I think that the opinion is doubtful as to the advantages and disadvantages of all the principal Atlantic cities of the United States, will approximate pretty nearly to the standard, then they do at present. The progress already made by some competent and men mites continue to the different states of the Union, Mr. Tudor is the belief, that all the principal Atlantic cities, from New York to New Orleans will, before the present generation shall have passed away, be brought in near together, by one continuous line of the best construction. He says, and most learned where Swan and Mason kept their account, and was also enabled to imitate the signature. He said yesterday, twenty years of age, of from his appearance and bearing at the Place office, she could scarcely engage from capital of a much village. He was fully committed for trial.

[illegible] Tudor, "Shall we lay down our arms? Shall we give up the contest? Shall we let the Cherokees [illegible] Yankee? [illegible] Yankee? [illegible] Yankee?

POETRY.

From the Southern Rose

An English traveller has remarked when Americans speak of the relative character of England and their own country, right or wrong, they will have the last word, "instinct as a great matter," and it is illustrated in the following thoughts suggested by Mrs. Hemans' beautiful and elevating verses to "The English Boy."

THE AMERICAN BOY.

Look up, my young American!
Stand firmly on the earth
Where noble deeds, and mental power,
Give titles more than birth.

A hollow sound from clam'ring, my boy,
By early struggles bought,
Heaped up with public memories—
And wide—ay, wide as thought!

On the high Alleghany's range,
Awake thy joyous song;
Then o'er our green savannahs stray,
And gentle notes prolong.

Awake it and the rushing pearl
Of dark Niagara's voice,
Or by those ocean rivers stand,
And in their joy rejoice.

What though we have no ancient towers
Where "ivied" sycamores twine!
The Laurel bows upon our soil,
The Laurel, boy, is thine.

What tho' no "minister hits the crown,"
Tinged by the sunset fire;
Freely religion's vows are heard
Round every village spire.

And who shall go down you "blue sea"
If thou must turn away,
When free Columbia's stripes and stars
Are floating in the day?

Who thunders louder, tell me the strife
Of gathering war is stirred?
Who ranges farther, when the call
Of commerce comes to me?

And tho' on "Cressy's dint and field"
The gaze may not be cool,
While through long centuries of blood,
Rose spectres of the pool.

The future wakes thy dreaming boy,
And thou a not' ever sit for,
Aspiring, which in after times
Shall swell the tomp of fame.

Yet scenes are here for thy fair thoughts—
Here sleep the good and brave!
Here kneel, my boy, and vows thy vow
Above the patriot's grave.

On Moultrie's isle, on Bunker's height,
On Monmouth's bloody line,
On Eutaw's field, on Yorktown's bank,
Erect thy loyal shrine.

And when thou'rt told at Lughborough's shields
And English battles won,
Look up my boy, and breathe our word—
The name of Washington! C. G.

*The Laurel grows in its beautiful varieties throughout the United States. The Kalmia at the North; at the South, the splendid Magnolia Grandiflora.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCENE IN NEW ORLEANS, IN 1931.

The writer of the following article seems disposed to ridicule the fashionable rage for rapid travelling. We are quite willing he should be heard.

Yankee. Good morning.

Louisianan. Good morning to you. How are you?

Y. Very well, I thank you only a little inconvenienced by your New Orleans air.

L. Just arrived, then?

Y. Just this minute—right from Bangor.

L. And what news?

Y. Nothing stirring, when we left.

L. Of course, there would be nobody stirring at this hour, but what cool the evening papers?

Y. Not a word of any importance, nor the morning papers either.

L. You don't say you got the morning papers before you started!

Y. Certainly, why not? What time do you think we set out?

L. Oh, a little after sunrise, I suppose.

Y. But the sun is rising here, and do you think we moved so fast—than the sun?

L. To be sure I do, but we, in New Orleans, don't get our morning papers off the sun is an hour or two high.

Y. Nor we. But the sun was almost an hour and a half high, when we started. Have you never been to Bangor?

L. Yes, often; but I forget, just now, the difference of time between the two places.

Y. Why it is almost an hour and a half. Or it is 21 degrees of longitude, and 221 would make an hour and a half of difference, you know. We started when the sun was an hour and twenty minutes high, and should have arrived before the sun rose here, had not the friction of the machinery delayed us a little in our progress over the mountains. We seem to be several minutes on the road.

L. Several minutes! Horrible! What a slow passage!

Y. True; but our business was not very pressing. And even this is a very good rate of travelling, compared with 100 years ago.

L. I know it is. I was just now looking over Silliman's History of the progress of the Arts and Sciences in the United States; and was not a little surprised to find that in 1834, they were just beginning to travel on Railroads in this country, by steam.

Y. Yes, yes; ignorant fellows that we were. And what a noise the papers then made about travelling twenty or thirty miles an hour! Balloons, too, only went at about the same rate. Who would now have the patience to drag along in that way? Nobody, surely, but a sick person, or an idiot.

L. It is certainly curious to look back and see how very ignorant our forefathers were. It is scarcely 100 years since electricity was first used in the arts. What an excitement it produced when it was first used to split rocks well!

Y. Is it possible that this was only 100 years ago?—Well, I believe you are right.

L. Incredibly so. And I have no doubt that our grandfathers would have laughed outright at a person who should then have predicted that in 1931 cars would come from Bangor to New Orleans, by means of electricity.

Y. It is very likely and as there seems to be no standing still in these matters. The progress of improvement is rapid. May there not be as great progress made in 100 years to come, as 100 past.

L. Oh, I doubt that.

Y. I cannot say that I do. Just think, for a moment, how much remains to be done. The first electrical cars are several seconds in going such miles. Now when we can get rid of the jerking motion which the electric fluid sometimes gives, and the friction, what a noiseless, smooth ride will be made! Above all, who knows but the art of propelling balloons by electricity—a thing not to be despaired of—then the world will be at the command, or nearly so, of all the rich. Then, who can say that we shall not perform a journey through the United States, in a single forenoon?

L. Such improvement be likely to end here. Perhaps we may travel, by electricity or something else, to other worlds. Mars for instance. How do we know but it is not yet made to propel travelling cars? Then we might take a ride to the sun and come back again to-morrow! The whole journey would, perhaps, require but a few minutes. Who has not read of the angel Peter's descending on a sunbeam, with an errand, to Paradise?

From the People's Magazine.

POLITICAL ECONOMY

Slave substitute for House Power.

We have little patience with those who talk as that war, and famine, and pestilence and disease, and every kind are actually necessary, that they operate as a check upon the increase of human population, and thus prevent the world from being filled, having it would be filled with inhabitants. We believe that in the present state of the natural world might easily contain in comfort more than fifty times the present population. And this too, without spending one acre less than we now do for agriculture and without destroying animals, but we believe that unless disease and pestilence, and many other miseries of human life, were to stand in the way of the increase of millions of human beings, it would.

It is in this view, and in such these strange and fanciful, that we lately picked up an article in Dionysius's well known work, the Quarterly Journal of Agriculture, we think, deserves at the hand of our readers a place in this place.

"From the parliamentary returns, the horses employed in agriculture, in Great Britain, which in 1811 amounted to 1,336,000, and in 1821 to 1,400,000, and in 1831 to 1,500,000, and we are perhaps much within the mark when we suppose that they, with all the horses employed in drays, or draught exclusively, amount at present to 2,000,000. But, said by some, that each horse consumes what would support eight or nine adults. The supposition, therefore, of the horses above, with their [illegible] by the Agricultural industry or for pleasure, and saves what would feed 8,000,000 people. The annual consumption, in round numbers, of grain, by horses or cattle, in Great Britain, which can not be at this place, during one year, from imported. But for want of what would feed, in Great Britain, of the horses used for travelling alone, 1,000,000 people, and [illegible] in what remains of the [illegible] population of the island of Great Britain.

"If the consumption of grain, then, by the horses employed in agriculture, amounts to 12,000,000 bushels, but let it be deemed [illegible] of the 1,000 magazines for the accumulation of interest, what would be the [illegible] which would be [illegible] in equal 20 years hence, viz. 26 millions? At that time this will appear to be a very [illegible] to [illegible] and complete [illegible] that we have seen in a well [illegible] the [illegible] more well prepared view of the matter.

The matter goes on to show why the changes in agriculture, and in manufacture, will effect a change in the kingdom, will greatly elevate and improve them. It shows that the substitution of steam for horse power will [illegible] food enough to meet the consumption of her own population, but also to be a great export. It will be the means of changing the land in no small degree, into a clothing country, and allow her to keep the mass of her waste for it. But time throws into the hands of her engineers, for it appears that she annually pays out some [illegible] for foreign cotton, hemp, flax, cow, and tobacco. He shows, moreover, that the new system would do away with the [illegible] of [illegible].

But we have no time to follow the writer through the whole train of his argument and illustration, though it appears to us equally lucid and conclusive. He concludes by an intimation that Parliament can give twenty millions (pounds) to break the chain of slavery abroad, it might not easily be withheld (emphatic) to introduce a change that will break that worse than needle is made, which is methinks [illegible] to break the chain of pauperism.

The general ideas which we mean to inculcate, are, that we need not be so much afraid to return rather brute or human force in the arts, to the neglect of another population which is now held on to, under the erroneous impression that it will throw labourers out of employ, at least we need not entertain any such fears at present, and that there is no objection to the substitution of steam for brute force, under any circumstances. Therefore, we can dismiss the humane, but only of modest dogs, for of beasts of draught and burden, the provision which they would otherwise consume, is so much wealth gained to the country.

But there is one idea in connection with this subject we regret, which we find almost always overlooked. We talk much of the evils of slavery; and are sometimes prone to abuse our fellow men, on account of it. And the evil is truly incalculable. But how much less than a slave holder, is he who under the specious plea of right, human or divine, dares to domineer over his beast? Are tyranny and cruelty the less tyrannical and cruel, because the subject on which they are exercised has not a human soul? We insist that his is a spirit of slavery of the most abominable kind, who, believing that his horse and ox are destined to no future state of reward for suffering in this life, does not hesitate to ill treat them daily, and not only to diminish their happiness, but shorten their lives by his cruelty. Who shall guarantee that the tyrants over quadrupeds will not, if you give them the power abuse his fellow bipeds, whom he half believes he shall meet at a judgment to come?

STRUGGLES OF GENIUS.

An example of persevering effort in the pursuit of a favorite object by a man of genius, under the greatest discouragements, will be found in the following history.

The celebrated Bernard Palissy, to whom France was indebted in the 16th century, for the introduction of the manufacture of enamelled pottery, had his attention first attracted to the art (his improvement in which, forms, to this time, the glory of his name among his countrymen) by having one day seen by chance, a beautiful enamelled cup, which had been brought from Italy. He was then struggling to support his family by his attempts in the art of painting, in which he was self taught, and it immediately occurred to him that if he could find the secret of making these cups, his toils and difficulties would be at an end. From that moment his whole thoughts were directed to this object; and in one of his works he has himself given such an account of the unconquerable zeal with which he prosecuted his experiments, as it is impossible to read without the sleep cut short. For some time he had little or nothing to spend upon the ground which he had sowed at heart, but at last he hoped to be in a considerable sum of money. Let a work which he built, be burnt, so that all his [illegible] was lost. He was not [illegible] but [illegible] for the purpose of his money, [illegible] with any success, and [illegible] year [illegible] was over. After [illegible] his wife and friends were at last reduced upon what the [illegible] of his [illegible] and [illegible] property. He then undertook [illegible] which he repeated his experimenting [illegible] and more [illegible] he cut down his clothes and table for that purpose. [illegible] was unmeasurable. He was more [illegible] than ever to give a person who had [illegible] of him, part of his clothes in [illegible] rates, leaves nothing [illegible] and [illegible] staring in the face [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

BY JOHN S. ZIEBER, PRINCESS ANNE, SOMERSET COUNTY, MARYLAND.

VOL. VIII. TUESDAY MORNING, [illegible] No. 30.

COURSE OF EXCHANGE.

GREAT LITERARY ENTERPRISE

Waldie's Library,

[illegible]

Clothing, [illegible]

[illegible]

20 Cents [illegible]

For [illegible]

State of [illegible]

[illegible]

In compliance with the [illegible]

Notice is hereby given,

That the subscriber of [illegible] County in Maryland, [illegible] administration on the [illegible] persons having claims against the said [illegible] are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof, to the [illegible] on or before the 30th day of June, [illegible] otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of the said estate. Given under my hand this [illegible] day of December, A. D. 1834.

[illegible]

Dec. 9, 1834.

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

Princess Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1834.

The Legislature of Maryland convened yesterday. One of the first acts of the Legislature, after its organization, will be to elect a Senator in Congress to fill the place of the Honorable R. F. Chambers, resigned.

Massachusetts.—In the 8th Congressional District Mr. Hoar has been elected, and in the 10th no choice has been made.

A resolution has passed the Senate of Virginia, postponing the election of Senator in the place of Mr. Leigh until the 12th of February.

The House of Representatives of South Carolina, by a unanimous vote, passed a bill to incorporate a new Bank in Charleston, to be called the "Charleston Bank," with a capital of $2,000,000, with the privilege to increase it to $4,000,000.—The bill will probably pass the Senate by a large majority.

Petitions are in circulation in some of the counties of Pennsylvania praying the Legislature to pass an act prohibiting the circulation of Bank notes of a less denomination than twenty Dollars.

Gold.—$100,000 in Gold, arrived at New York on Friday last in the Packet from Havre.

Specie.—The schooner Magnet, from Tampico, has on board $71,078 for different merchants in New York.

We have the pleasure of announcing the arrival at New York, on Wednesday last of the packet ship Emerald, from Havre, with 10,000 gold Napoleons, being the 1st more of the first instalment of the Napoleon Indemnity, which has now been fully paid, and receipts in the country.—Globe.

In the Legislature of Ohio, resolutions have been offered, prohibiting the introduction into that State of slaves for sale or hire, by other than residents, or persons about to become so, and imposing penalties to the amount of $500 on any such humanity.

The Georgia Judge, Hooper, who decided against the constitutionality of the laws of that State in reference to the Cherokee Indians, appears to have incurred himself highly obnoxious to the State authorities. In the Legislature on the 8th inst. the following resolution was passed, and a committee appointed to carry it into effect:

Resolved, That a committee be forthwith appointed, for the purpose of investigating the entire judicial character of the said Judge Hooper, and that said committee have power to send for persons and papers, and should they deem it expedient, to report by articles of impeachment, by address, or otherwise.

A letter from New Castle, Del., says: "Four days after a fool of eight days returned their verdict on the 6th inst. in the Caveat case of T. Chandler's will, which twenty thousand dollars were devised to educate colored children.—Three sons no will. The ground on which the jury rendered this will impious, was that of undue influence, and a departure by the scrivener who wrote it, from the letter of the written instructions given him by the testator. The trial was of considerable interest, and rendered memorable the argument on behalf of the Caveators was in part by a eloquent rhetorician and eugenious lawyer, John M. Clayton, of the U. S. Senate."

A WINDFALL.

McLoughlin's Lottery was drawn on Saturday morning last, and we learn, that the first prize, consisting of the Tatnall Hotel at Elliott's Mills, with the addition upon the Hall-road, the large stone stables, Carriage and fine Horses, and the splendid Garden, which was the Capital Prize, valued at $16,000, was drawn to Sam Stout and Joseph Harling, of this city, who fortunate owner. Mr Harling had recently been engaged in executing some writing for the late owner of the above property, and for his fidelity and attention to the business, with which he had been entrusted, he was presented with the ticket, which had turned out so fortunate for him. We are informed that Mr. Stout, immediately after the drawing, offered $12,000 for the property, which he refused.

Another.—Robert Campbell of this town, lights at the City Hotel, was the fortunate owner of ticket No. 60, which drew the dwelling house, valued at $1,000.

Lieut. C. Ringgold, of the Navy, was the owner of ticket No. 4,695, which drew the elegant Angelo Cottage, valued at $2,000.

And 50 more.—Mr. Thomas Sexton, formerly news collector at the Fort of Baltimore, was fortunate in purchasing a quarter ticket, in the Literators Lottery, drawn on Friday, which drew one quarter of $10,000; but he was as unfortunate as to lose his ticket, on the morning of the day of drawing. Mr Sexton is a large amount not long since in one of our Lotteries.—Balt. Repub.

Foreign News.

LATE FROM FRANCE.

PARIS, Oct. 14.

The old news of the New York Journal of Commerce received by Captain Pell, of the packet ship Normandie, for a Galignani's Messenger of Saturday evening, Nov. 15th—the only Paris paper of that date which was on board. It contains news of the breaking up of the new Ministry, of the Loan just raised here, but precisely from what cause, we are unable to ascertain. The account says, "It is said to be connected with a determination of the King to enforce the law relating to the fulfilment of the treaty with Portugal, by the payment to the Portuguese Government of the sum of 25,000 francs, which the Chamber of Peers has refused to do, unless the Chamber of Deputies shall first vote the money."

THE MINISTRY.

PARIS, Nov. 15.

The Moniteur of this morning is still silent upon the dissolution of the Cabinet.

The Journal des Débats says: "The Minister of the Interior, President of the Council, the Minister of War, and also the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Minister of Commerce, the Minister of Finances, and the Minister of Marine, have all tendered their resignations to the King, which he has accepted."

The Gazette de Francinions with four others, says, "Marshal Gérard, the Duke de Broglie, Count d'Argout, and Count Montalivet, have tendered their resignations."

The Gazette says, "On Thursday evening a Council of Peers, chosen from the Council of Ministers, was held at the Tuileries."

There is not important question, said to be before the new Cabinet, the bill for the amnesty, passed by the Chamber of Peers, although it has not yet received the royal sanction, is the Chamber of Deputies, which is to assemble on the 24th inst. The Chamber of Peers, on the 10th inst. by a majority of 120 to 30, rejected the bill for the Indemnity to the Portuguese, which was passed by the Chamber of Deputies, by a majority of 10 votes. The Chamber, was crowded.

This was enough to enable the new Ministry to form a Cabinet, but it was not so easy to form the Ministry, when mention was made of the Count Montalivet, Minister of Finance, and Count Molé, Minister of Foreign Affairs, it was found that the Duke de Broglie, Count d'Argout, and Marshal Gérard, would not accept office, unless the Ministry should be reconstructed, and the Count Molé, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Count Montalivet, Minister of Finance, should be retained in their offices. The Ministry, as it now stands, is composed of the following persons:

Count Molé, President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs.
Count Montalivet, Minister of Finance.
Marshal Gérard, Minister of War.
Count d'Argout, Minister of Commerce.
Duke de Broglie, Minister of Interior.
Admiral Rosamel, Minister of Marine.

The Count Montalivet, Minister of Finance, is the son of a Member of the Convention, who was proscribed by the Directory, and died in exile. The Count Molé, Minister of Foreign Affairs, is the son of the celebrated Count Molé, who was guillotined during the Revolution. The Duke de Broglie, Minister of Interior, is the son-in-law of the celebrated Madame de Staël. Marshal Gérard, Minister of War, is the celebrated Marshal Gérard, who was created a Marshal of France by Louis Philippe, for his services in the Revolution of 1830, and who commanded the French troops in the Belgic Revolution, and was created King of Belgium by the Congress of Belgium, which place he declined. Count d'Argout, Minister of Commerce, is a Peer of France, and was Minister of Finance in the Cabinet of Count Molé, in 1832. Admiral Rosamel, Minister of Marine, is a Peer of France, and was Governor of Algiers, and Minister of Marine in the Cabinet of Count Molé, in 1832.

The Paris correspondent of Lloyd's, says, "The prospect of a change, for the worse, of the Ministry, has caused a fall of 20 centimes, perhaps also the prospect of the Coming fall of members of the Peace Party, all had concurred to cause the fall. Upon the whole, the aspect of Europe's disarming, the Marshal's resignation, and the Ministerial crisis, is not a cheering one."

The Paris correspondent of the Courier says, "The Ministerial crisis, which was expected, has at last arrived. The Ministry, as it now stands, is composed of the following persons, viz. Count Molé, President of the Council, and Minister of Foreign Affairs; Count Montalivet, Minister of Finance; Marshal Gérard, Minister of War; Count d'Argout, Minister of Commerce; Duke de Broglie, Minister of Interior; Admiral Rosamel, Minister of Marine. The Count Molé, Minister of Foreign Affairs, is the son of the celebrated Count Molé, who was guillotined during the Revolution. The Duke de Broglie, Minister of Interior, is the son-in-law of the celebrated Madame de Staël. Marshal Gérard, Minister of War, is the celebrated Marshal Gérard, who was created a Marshal of France by Louis Philippe, for his services in the Revolution of 1830, and who commanded the French troops in the Belgic Revolution, and was created King of Belgium by the Congress of Belgium, which place he declined. Count d'Argout, Minister of Commerce, is a Peer of France, and was Minister of Finance in the Cabinet of Count Molé, in 1832. Admiral Rosamel, Minister of Marine, is a Peer of France, and was Governor of Algiers, and Minister of Marine in the Cabinet of Count Molé, in 1832. The Count Montalivet, Minister of Finance, is the son of a Member of the Convention, who was proscribed by the Directory, and died in exile

POETRY.

The lines which follow are taken from the "Minstrel Girl," by Thos. G. Walsh. They are beautiful, both from the tenderness of their imagery, and the [illegible] of their numbers.

She leaves Lagan's bower for under the [illegible]
The golden sunlight in long thin [illegible]
The tangled branches, as the breeze
And every pinioned bird is silent
Around the bower and at the [illegible]
Awaking with a [illegible]
Is unseen spirit set to [illegible]
Earth's perfume to the [illegible]
That nice lay before her [illegible]
Like a broad fisher, [illegible]
The scattered beams of day [illegible]
To one [illegible]
And broad and [illegible]
As quickened by some spirit [illegible]
In very wanton dancing [illegible]
To music [illegible]

And there she [illegible] that minstrel lay
The breeze [illegible] wanton [illegible]
Where curls [illegible] and [illegible]
Or parted lip and [illegible]
Her dark and [illegible]
In battle [illegible]
And round her [illegible]
Was like [illegible]
Forgetful of closing [illegible]
Had [illegible]
And on the [illegible]
The fever [illegible]

And early she had [illegible]
Each holy chord [illegible]
The changing early [illegible]
Were power [illegible]
She [illegible]
Like music [illegible]
The stirring [illegible]
The stations [illegible]
The fall of [illegible]
The sighs [illegible]
At even [illegible]
The [illegible]

But chief [illegible]
Its golden [illegible]
To form the [illegible]
Of music [illegible]
The sun went down [illegible]
One moment, [illegible]
Rested his front [illegible]
A glory round [illegible]
And sunset, [illegible]
A banner from [illegible]
A wave of hazy glory [illegible]
Along the [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

From Every [illegible]

THE YOUTH, THE SERPENT AND THE COW AND ASS.

An Arabian youth, [illegible] to the custom of [illegible] sure fabled camel, [illegible] vast desert of Kerman, [illegible] of the caravan, and [illegible] on the borders of a [illegible] er of Allah, and [illegible] destruction. The [illegible] onwards, and [illegible] ing place, some [illegible] in expiring in the fire. [illegible] alive, and the [illegible] had fanned the [illegible] ing from brake to [illegible] tree, speedily [illegible] The youth, [illegible] gazing on the [illegible] when on a sudden [illegible] reached his ear.

He looked about [illegible] distance from him, [illegible] young element, a large [illegible] as it seemed, in its [illegible] bound and extended [illegible] of the flames.

On observing the approach [illegible] ler, the serpent [illegible] "Oh youth! pity my miserable condition, and although we are, at [illegible] enemies, yet extend a helping hand, and save me from the wretched fate which [illegible] out assistance, instantly awaits me."

The youth had drunk deeply of the bitter cup of adversity, and from experience [illegible] learned the value of kindly [illegible] sion. He said, "[illegible] mazion, that to serve the wicked is to injure the good," yet thy condition and plea [illegible] and thy destruction so [illegible] I have [illegible] thee, that I will for once act contrary to the advice of the wise." Having said this, he fixed his wallet to the point of his spear, and stretching out the hand of assistance, advised the serpent to take speedily advantage of the means of escape offered to him. The serpent lost no time in coiling himself upon the bag, and was drawn safely out of his perilous situation.

"Go," said the youth, "whenever thy inclination may lead thee, and henceforth, out of gratitude for the service now rendered thee, abstain from injuring mankind."

"Stay!" asked the serpent, "[illegible] require me to abandon the obstacles of my very nature? Knowest thou not that it is an inherent principle fixed within me, which bids—nay, commands me to do all the harm I can to every son of man? I cannot and will not give up that disposition, which is now planted within me by my Creator; and I will not go from this spot, till I have inserted my deadly fangs both into thee and the camel."

"Do! but this instant," replied the youth, "render thee an important service? And among what class of God's creatures is it the custom for such a evil for good? and with what reason it shall [illegible] such a [illegible]

"[illegible]" said the youth, "[illegible] reached the [illegible] his attention to the bag hanging at the saddle-bow; by means of which he had been drawn out of the flames.—"Now," said the fox, "I know thou speakest what is false; for how could a serpent of thy great size be contained in so small a compass?"

Ere he indeed arrived foot on the destined [illegible] the youth, was anxious to prove to the [illegible] truth of the assertion, and offered to convince him by again placing himself within the bag. The fox said, that if indeed he would [illegible] it with his own eyes, he [illegible] would, and would then fairly [illegible] the middle circle between them." Upon the young man stretched open the mouth of the bag, and the serpent, decoyed by the wiles of the wily fox, coiled himself in it as it was before.

The fox instantly called, "O youth, thus [illegible] with the cruelty of the power give him a [illegible] lesson to his Lord, spare him not."

The youth, with all speed, closed the mouth of the bag, and dashing it with violence to the ground [illegible] himself and [illegible] the serpent [illegible]

[illegible]

CONSCIENTIOUS MISER.

[illegible] A Dutchman, named [illegible], who [illegible] of the city of Sheidt [illegible] died [illegible] He was [illegible] Country [illegible] Dutchman [illegible] and [illegible] he [illegible] and was [illegible] clear [illegible]

"We will [illegible] for running off [illegible] and who [illegible] there, I will [illegible]

Before the [illegible] he [illegible] protestant [illegible] times [illegible] to reason and [illegible] "You know [illegible] all become [illegible] thing that is [illegible] The [illegible] of the year [illegible] of [illegible] dollars.—U. S. Gazette.

FORCE OF IMAGINATION.

A few years ago a celebrated physician, author of an excellent work on imagination being desirous to add experimental to his theoretical knowledge, made application to the Minister of Justice to be allowed as opportunity of proving what he asserted, by an experiment on a criminal condemned to death. The minister complied with his request, and delivered over to him an assassin, a man who had been born of distinguished parents. The physician told him that several persons who had taken an interest in his family and obtained leave of the minister that he should suffer death in some other way than on the scaffold, to spend the disgrace of a public execution, and that the easiest death he could the would be by blood letting. The criminal agreed to the proposal, and counted himself happy in being freed from the painful exhibition which he would otherwise have been made of, and rejoiced at thus being able to spare his friends and family.

At the time appointed the physician repaired to the prison, and the pain of bleeding been extended on the table, his eyes bound, and every thing ready, he was slightly pricked near the principal veins of the legs and arms with the point of a pin. At the four corners of the table were four [illegible] filled with water, from which rows of small [illegible] falling into basins placed to receive them. The patient, thinking [illegible] had that was trickling into the basins became weaker and weaker by degrees, and [illegible] marks of the medical man in attendance in reference to the spirits and appearance of the blood (made with that intention) increased the delusion, and he [illegible] and soon [illegible] death ensued [illegible] audible. The professional [illegible] which [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] the